O BRIN GAL MO STORE. BY BRY. E. A. TREACY.

RED Isle! O lovely land! r sweet to sing of thee! alleys green, thy monitains g cliffs that stem the sea. diver streams that glide along atreams the shore, with sweet song O Erin gal mo store !

Thy castlef lie in ruins gray Where scarce a sound is heard, Save when, at fading of the day, , Hoots weird the foul night-bird. Above the open door, Which loosly, mournfully swings, O Erin gal mo store !

Thy churchyard green, do awe inspire In every faithful breast; Benesith the shadow of the spire, The dead have sought their rest. Here pause ! and mark the heavy grass By best knees trampled o'er, When loving friends came here to Mass, O Erin gal mo Store !

A nation once—a NATION still Though barred of nation's rights Throughout the land the gallant thrill For freedom all united The wide land shall float o'er, From city hall and rugged crag. O Erin gal mo store

The star of FAITH still brightly shines The star of VAITH still brightly shine Dear land, thy face upon; How sweet the view of thy shrines Where martyrs' crowns were won. When God shall heaven and earth re Thee, too, He will will restore, And bless with a celesti My Erin gal mo store
