On 219 Special Trains.

C. G. Railways

Up to March 1st 757,400 Troops have travelled over Government Railways.

Thousands arrive each week at Halifax and are sent forward to Dispersal Areas.

Since the war began in 1914 up to March 1st, when S.S. Belgic disembarked her returned soldier passengers at Halifax 757,400 troops have been carried on special trains over the Canadian Government Railways.

The first train which carried troops over the Government Railways the year the war was declared was numbered one and all special troop trains to and from Halifax since that time have been numbered consecutively. The last train from the Belgic was on Saturday—No 1279. Each train averages about twelve cars with an average of 50 men to a car, which figures up a total of 767,400 men carried. Of course in addition to this thousands of soldiers have journeyed between Montreal and Halifax by regular trains during the past four years.

The movement of troops back to Canada is now approaching its greatest activity. Last Sunday 6000 arrived at Halifax by the transports Lapland and Belgic and fifteen special trains were despatched westward inside of fourteen hours.

S. S. Megantic with soldiers and dependants arrived Wednesday and S.S. Adriatic is due Sunday. The movement of returning men is to be kept up actively all summer.

The process of disembarkation at Halifax is being carried on without a hitch, and there is a fine system of co-operation between the Military and the Railway officials.

Value of Leisure Time.

Life is energy; we feel ourselves only in doing, and when we inquire what a man's value is we ask what is his performance. The deed is the proof of faith, the test of character, and the standard of worth. To do nothing is to be nobody, and to have done is to have seen. True work fixes attention, develops ability, and enriches life; it strengthens the mind, forms the will, and inures to patience and endurance. It is what we do and suffer to overcome nature's indifference and possibility to man's weakness and progress. It is the means where, by what is not ourselves is taken hold of and made to do service.

True work, then, is furtherance of life, and it cannot be rightly understood unless it is looked at in this light. To know the worth of work we must consider first of all what is its effect upon the worker. If it warps, cripples and degrades him it is not true work, though he should thereby amass vast wealth or gain great reputation. That work is best which helps to make men and women wiser and virtuous; and that which breeds vice is worst, is life better than idleness, which is evil because it breeds vice.

The political and social conditions which are most favorable to work that elevates and enriches and purifies human life approach nearest to the ideal; the political and social conditions which involve the physical deterioration and the mental and moral degradation of multitudes are barbarous, and unless they are improved must lead to the ruin of the State.

We are the slaves instead of being the masters of our work; we have forgotten that work is a means not an end; as the money for which we work is a means and not an end. Believing that work and riches are the ends of life we work with feverish hurry, and our greed grows as our possessions increase. "God," says Euripides, "hates busy-bodies, and those who do too much." We are too busy, we do too much. And the temper our reckless activity creates makes us incapable of leisure, which is the end of work.

The man is worth, not what his work is worth, but what his leisure is worth. By his work he gains a livelihood, but his leisure is given him that he may learn how to live, that he may acquire a taste for the best things; may acquaint himself with what is truest and most beautiful in literature and art, in science and religion; may come to a knowledge of how he may find himself, not chiefly in the narrow circles of his private interests, but in the wide world of noble thought and generous emotion.

For every man who rises above the vulgar life is divided into two parts, the one to be devoted to means, the other to ends. On the one side he places the things of practical concern—trade, business and politics; on the other things which are ends in themselves—the upbuilding of his own being, with the help of religion, philosophy, science and art.

Whoever permits the occupations whereby he gains a livelihood to absorb his whole thought and energy is necessarily an incomplete man. He lacks openness of mind, breadth of view, the sense of beauty, and the disinterested love of knowledge. His perception of spiritual truth is dimmed, and he is made incapable of the purest and most generous emotions. To give him something of this, leisure, if rightly used, may serve; and hence I say the man is worth what his leisure is worth.

—John Lancaster Spalding.

Are Girls More Refined By Nature Than Boys?

There is a popular belief that boys are crude and rather vulgar by nature, says Professor O. Shea of the University of Wisconsin. This tradition has become established because girls, after three or four years old, seem to be more refined than boys in speech and in manners. But the difference, may not be a native one; it may be due to difference in training, and especially in environment and companionship.

From early childhood boys are subjected to rough association from which girls are protected. Boys are permitted to hear obscene language, which girls speaking generally, never hear. Vulgar people try to restrain their coarseness when a girl is present, but they never think of doing so before a boy. Even in public performances, as in the theatre, obscenity is often indulged in if only men are present; whereas little if anything of the kind would occur before girls or women. Lewd actions are exhibited before boys and men while girls are never admitted to places where such actions are permitted.

If boys as well as girls were guarded from vulgarity and their activities rightly directed, society would hold the same moral standard for men and women. The late Speaker Cannon held the same standard, and the following story is pertinent. At a stag dinner where he was once toastmaster, a certain congressman prefaced a vulgar story with the words: "As no ladies are present, I will tell the following story:" "Pardon me, you may omit part of your remarks," interrupted Speaker Cannon, "though no ladies are present, many gentlemen are."

Public sentiment always requires that the environment of the girl be more wholesome and refined than that of the boy. If boys are more susceptible why are they not safeguarded? Will someone who is in the habit of ascribing native vulgarity to boys answer this question.

Thoughtless, though doubtless well-meaning people, are constantly seeking to improve the environment of girls so as to keep their thoughts, feelings and conduct wholesome, sweet and refined, but they let boys grow up under debasing conditions and then lament over the fact that they are not naturally refined, scrupulous about their speech and manners. Many parents expend more time and money in getting nice clothes for a daughter than for a son, and then they wonder why he is not so particular as she is about his appearance.

The result of this general indifference to a boy's esthetic nature is, of course, that the boy, as a rule, is coarser in his thought, speech and action than the girl. But is the difference due to sex or to the fact that we neglect the boy and permit him to look out for himself, with the result that he is often subjected to vicious suggestion? It is a wonder that, take boys as they are, they are not worse than they are.

The Greedy Rich

We see the men whom God has allowed to gather wealth, refusing to submit to God's law for riches. Instead of remaining "poor in spirit," they swell up with the pride of possession; they grow increasingly greedy for gain and more gain. At whatever cost they build up their tower of money, set a calf of gold atop of it and worship there the rest of their lives, with their backs to the ten commandments, and by consequence, to the rights of their fellow-men. They defraud the laborer of his wage, corrupt legislators, buy illegal privileges, bribe the press, strangle all honorable competition, remorseless as any beast of prey. Pursued, they cover up and throw out misleading trails. Questioned, they assume the air of injured innocence and lie with an art which con-

A Distinguished Jesuit.

Father A.H. Jousse, S. J., who has come out of the war with especial distinction, has been appointed instructor in diplomatic French, and lecturer on French literature in the School of Foreign Service at the Jesuit University of Georgetown, D. C. Father Jousse is described in despatches as the "hero of the Marne, Verdun, and the Argonne." He was called to the colors at the beginning of hostilities, served as an officer of artillery for over three years, until his skill as an expert with the famous "seventy-fives" caused the government to appoint him instructor in artillery to American officers. He fought at Rheims and also took part in the "race for the Channel," was wounded while fighting in the Argonne, within the space of one month was cited three times for heroic deeds, and was made a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor.

Among distinguished laymen honored with a seat in the First Eucharistic Congress of Cuba were his Excellency Don Marie Garcia Menocal, president of Cuba, represented by Dr. Rafael Montoro; Dr. Jos. Antolin del Cuello, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and Dr. Conzallo Arostiqui, Secretary of Public Instruction.

An indignant citizen rang up one of the dailies regarding a newspaper report, which alleged his death from influenza in the following style:

"Look here," he said on the telephone, "do you know my death from flu has appeared in your paper?"

W. H. O. Wilkinson Streetford says:—"It affords me much pleasure to say that I experienced great relief from Muscular Rheumatism by using two boxes of Milburn's Rheumatic Pills. Price 25 cents a box."

"Now Rashtas," said the Captain, "don't you want to make your will before you go over?" "Will nuthin," said the boy, "will I be worryin' about is, will I come back?"

Fainting, Dizzy Spells Weakness and Shortness of Breath.

These feelings of faintness, those dizzy spells and "all gone" sinking sensations which come on from time to time indicate a weakened condition of the heart and disordered state of the nerves.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have no equal for strengthening the heart and invigorating the nerves. Mrs. C. A. S. Drake, Paris, Ont., writes:—"I have used on towards the second box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and find they have done me good. I had those fainting, dizzy spells once in a while, and also weakness and shortness of breath, and would become so tired up at times I could hardly sleep without sitting up in bed. When walking too fast I would have to stop and try to catch my breath. I feel a lot better since I have used your pills and know that they have helped me wonderfully as I have improved very much."
