(From Captain Marryal's last novel.)

No hand of North American Indians could ero and the dog Mum. Not a word was spoken; they continued their route over grass-lands and ploughed fields, keep ug in the shade of the hedge rows: if Rushbrook stopped for a while to reconnecte, so did Joey, and so did Much, at their restant tive distances, until the march was resulted. For three unless and a half did they thus continue until they arrived at a thick cover. The wind whist led through the branches of the bare trees, chiefly onk and san; the cold damp fog was now stationary, and shrouded them as they proceeded cautiously by the beaten track in the cover, until they had p used through it and arrived on the others and a survey on the courters of a supercepter. and sah jims cold samp. By we now station ary, and should stay, and should shall be disagrey and none of the considers. In the first was time to go to bed, I was a supposed by the beaten track in the cover, must held an acceptable to all fidelicits of the cover, and a supposed through it and arrived on the other with the diamond-paned windows. Bush brook walked out elear of the cover, and abuse house the cover and the public hand to secretain precisely the direction to so to be exactly to leavant of the keeper's house, that the noise of the report of his gun given to be beard. Having cleared the headers have been it was time to pay for all brook walked slowly and cautiously through the bursel within two or three inches of the ground, and walked slowly and cautiously through the break wood, followed as before by Josey and Muo. After before a quarter of a mice's walk, a rattling of mical was brard, another yet opposed bort; it was the harred of the foreign piece which had brounded one of the wives attached to a spring gan, ast for the benefit of ponchera Rushbrook lifted up his left hand is a sign to Josey not to move, and following the wires of the ponchera Rushbrook lifted up his left hand is a sign to Josey and Muo. It is astonishing how much the nature and disposition of a child may be altered by early tunion. Let a child be always with its nurse, even under the guidance of a mother, regularly brought up as children usually are, and it was continue to be a child, and even children after child, and even children after child, put it by degrees into situation of peril, requiring thought and observation beyond its years—ac custom it to nightly vigils, and to watching, and to would fain fight, for he has arisen in raving delirition hold its tongue—and it is astonishing how the childhood is gone. But take the same child, put it by degrees into situation of peril, requiring thought and observation beyond its years—ac custom it to nightly vigils, and to watching, and to hold its tongue—and it is astonishing how the to hold its tongue—and it is astonishing how the mind of that child, however much its boly man unifer will develope itself solas to meet the a mand upon it. Thus it is with lads who are sent early to sea, and thus it was with little Joey. He was a man in some points although a child in others. He would play with his companions, laugh as loudly as the others, but still he would never hemother a hist of the sent sent to be breathe a hint of what was his father's emplo ment. He went to church every Sunday, as did his father and mother; for they considered that poaching was no orime, although punished as such by the laws; and he, of course, considered it no crime, as he only did what his father and mother wished. Let it not be thought, therefore, that the morals of our little hero were affected by his father a profession, for such was not the case.

A BUMBOAT-WOMAN ON CHURCH "O, I know nothing about other people's husbands," replied Mrs. Chopper, hastily. "Now, then, let, us go and order the clothes; and then be able to go to church on Sunday.

4 What! won't you go to church!"
Bless you, child! who is to give the poen their breakfast and their beer? A bumbon woman can't go to church any more than a baker's man, for people must eat on a Sunday. Church, like every thing else in this world, appears to me only to be made for the rich. I always take my

Bible in the beat with me on Sunday; but then BANK OF BRITISH NORTH AMERICA I can't read it, so it's of no great use. No, dear, to band of North American Indians could have I can't go to church; but I can contrive, it is don't rain in the evening, to go to meeting to hear y. AN USHER'S EMPLOYMENTS.

I handed the toast to the master and mistress the head-ushers, and parlour-boarders, but wa not allowed any myself. I taught Latin and Greel and English grammer to the tittle boys, who made faces at me and put crooked pins on the botton of my chair. I walked at the head of the string when they went out for an airing, and walked up stairs the last when it was time to go to bed. I had all the drudgery and none of the comforts: I was up first, and held answerable for all deficiencies: I had to examine all their nasty little trousers, and hold weekly conversation with the hotcher as to the possibility of repairs; to run out if a hen cackled, that the boys should not get the egg; to wipe the noses of my mistres's children, and carry them if they roared; to pay for all broken glass, if I could not discover the culprit; to account for all had smells, for all noise, and for all nk spilled; to make all the peas, and to keep one hundred boys silent and attentive at church: for all which, with deductions, I received 40l. a year,

He tries to fied that all was safe, moved homewards, and avert his thoughts from his unhappy condition; arrived without further adventure, having relieved and it is in vain. He tries to read, but the letters Joey of the heavy sack as soon as they were in honce before his bewildered eyes; his mind canthe open fields.

At three o'clock in the morning he tapped at the back-door of the cottage. Jane opened it; and the spoils of the night having been put away in a secret place, they were all soon in bed and fast asleep.

Here is a strewd remark on the REFECTS OF TRAINING.

It is astonishing how much the patters and the spoils of the may be a patters and that he grievously needs shaving. He finds conversation a relief, and dreads solitude more than death; but no one comes nigh him. He must bear his misery as best he may. He paces his appropriate the stake.
