affen's sympating follows the scalely dead, a child only fifteen months old, climed over a low curb of a well, and walked or fell into it. The well is on the property of Mr. Nelson Mitls, opposite Borland's tavern, and is about 35 feet deep. The father of the child noticed his sudden disappearance, and also the vibration of the bucket chain. He immediately descended, & there, sure enough he found his young adventurer, whom he placed in a bag which had been thrown to thim by the mother, and delivered him on terra firms, much to their joy, without a mark of injury about him—the juvenile Sam Patch walked up to the curb, seemingly nothing loth to try the exploit over again.— THE HON. H. J. BOULTON. Our member, in spite of himself, occatonally exhibite his Tory predilections, he is not satisfied with voting upon all occations with his old Tory friends, but he must a needs bring in a bill one clause of which is in conflict with the principles of Responsible Government. We had untended showing up the inconsistency of our member, but our cotemporary (the Journal and Express) has saved us the trouble. He says:
—Long Point Advocate.

"The Hon. H. J. Boulton, who has altered his mind very materially within the The Hon. H. J. Boulton, who has altered his mind very materially within the last twelve mossas. has not omitted to hark back' from his vosition on Responsible Government, and has made a more easing attack upon it than ever Macnabite or Draperonion could have conceived. Why the member for Norfolk does this, we are at a loss to conjecture, but he will advance his popularty little thereby, and may run some elight risk of his seat for his 'glorious old' constituency. If he had said at the late dinner there, what he has advanced in a bill of his, now before us, he would have been hissed from the room as a traitor other principles of Reform. By the Parliamentary report it will have been perceived that he introduced a bill have been perceived for more than a year, so that the time of meeting is virtually, if not actually, fixed—we condition of Mr. Balda in, and his supporters, on these grounds, and thought that this was the only feature of the bill. A copy of it reached us on Friday, & we never were more astonished than on perusing it. The second clause says: 'And be it enacted, That no putture TRRILIMENT SHALL BR DISSOLVED DURING THE PERIOD FOR WHICH IT SHALL BR DISSOLVED DURING THE PERIOD FOR WHICH IT SHALL BR DISSOLVED DURING THE PERIOD FOR WHICH IT SHALL BR DISSOLVED DURING THE PERIOD FOR WHICH IT SHALL BR DISSOLVED DURING THE PERIOD FOR WHICH IT SHALL BR DISSOLVED DURING THE PERIOD FOR WHICH IT SHALL BR DISSOLVED DURING THE PERIOD FOR WHICH IT SHALL BR DISSOLVED DURING TH FUTURE PARLIAMENT SHALL BE DISSOLVED 2....4....200...... 10 14 DURING THE PERIOD FOR WHICH IT SHALL BE ELECTED, &C. Verily, we are destined to see great changes in the world of politics! What becomes of responsibility when men can hold office for four years without a chance of their removal? What becomes of the people, when their rulers are placed beyond their power, or correction, for four years? Mr. Boulton may say that he would elect Parliaments for the proposition and institute. 13 "100 5 10 11 27 "214 11 11 10 54 ... 200 East ... 11 1 10 8.... 200...... 2 6 3 9.... 5 10 11 10.... 11 1 10 £172 3 51 say that he would elect Parlaments for two years—but the principle is had in either case, and he affects to be a great stickler for 'principles.' If the House ratified such a proposal, it would be undeserving the confidence of an independent people, and we should be certain that the palmy days of Toryism were again revived. The Parla-ment must be within call at any time, and the voice of the community be of such im-parlances to be at any moment able to BIDDULPH. portance as to be at any moment able to bring its representatives to account. Still Mr. Boulton plumes himself upon he fact that he is a liberal, and rants in the flouse, 8 4 4 for three hours together, about 'progress,'

The postage on newspapers, shall remain as it is for the present, but the Bill gives authority to the Governor in Council "establishing the rates of postage on Newspapers, printed Pamphlets, &c., or directing that in any case or class of cases they be free of postage."

We would suggest that the bill be amended so far, at least, as the postage on newspaper exchanges is concerned, unless it is the intention of the Governor in Council to use at once the authority given them. This tax to which publishers are subject is a heavy burden; but of this we suppose Mr. Hincks, who has introduced this bill, is fully aware. The united Press of the Province DOWNE.
