THE NEW OPERA HOUSE.
The excavators for the foundations of the new Grand Opera House are being hampered by the loose, sandy nature of the soil. The rain of Saturday night loosened it greatly around the edges of the excavation, causing several minor cave-ins. The old frame buildings on the north of the site have had to be propped up to prevent their tumbling. This morning the inner sections of the cement sidewalk in front of the site fell in for about half the length of the site, owing to the loosening of the soil under it. About a dozen of the large squares of cement fell into the excavation, but only one of them was hurt. They were lifted on this morning and will be relaid when the building is completed. The stone foundations will be finished this week, and the brickwork will then be proceeded with.

THE EVENING PAPER.
In the course of an editorial on "Journalistic Progress," the St. Thomas Times says: "Everything goes to emphasize, also, the increasing predominance of the evening over the morning paper. There is but a small class of people, comparatively speaking, who have the time to devote at the beginning of the day to the careful perusal of the morning newspaper. The paper which is most carefully read and digested unfolds for the freest work, and comfortable in his easy chair and slippers, soled by his evening paper from editorial to news items and scare-heads. And when he finishes the last line of what has been his evening's entertainment, he knocks the ashes out of his pipe, the paper slides to the floor, and he takes a peaceful preliminary snooze, while his wife, who has been anxiously awaiting that stage of the game, picks up the paper and hunts diligently for news and bargains. With them the morning paper has no show at all, for the husband and father must take up his day's toil, and the busy housewife must clean away the breakfast things and get the children off to school. They have no time for the morning publication. The evening paper is the paper of the busy men and women whose hours of daylight must be devoted to other things than reading.

Warde In "Othello."

It is to be hoped that the small attendance at the London Opera House on Saturday night was attributable to the disagreeable nature of the weather, for otherwise it would be a reproach to the artistic sentiment of London patrons of the drama if such an excellent Shakespearean actor and scholar as Mr. Frederick Warde could visit the city and present a sterling attraction like "Othello" without receiving encouraging patronage. The performance was a most enjoyable one throughout, and it is cause for regret that London is not more often given the opportunity of witnessing his like. The true friend of the stage owes a great debt to men like Mr. Warde, who refuse to cater to the demand for meretriciousness, but hold by the high ideals which were set up by the old dramatists and which must yet prove the salvation of the drama, if it is destined to continue a living power in the world of art.

Of Mr. Warde's "Othello" one can only say that throughout it was a most finished conception of the role of the noble-hearted but jealous-minded Moor. The tenderness of the new-made bridegroom, the dawning suspicion and growing jealousy, prompted by Iago's hints, the terrible rage and thirst for vengeance which culminated in murder, the overwhelming remorse which ended in self-destruction, all were portrayed with the fidelity which betokens the true artist in the profession. "Othello" is a play of the highest quality, and the more difficult of the two characters, received adequate treatment by Mr. E. R. Spencer. The double-dealing, the implacable but carefully-concealed hatred of the "honest ancient," were all faithfully presented. Osabel, Iago's daughter, brought her delineation of Desdemona the sympathy, the impulsive tenderness, and the sweet resignation that the part demands. Of the supporting company, only Mr. Douglas Fairbanks, as Cassio, and Mr. Cyrus Hales, as Roderigo, were worthy of mention.

One of the best matinee audiences of the season greeted the afternoon performance of "The Duke's Jester." As the play's former production was so recent, it is only necessary to say that Mr. Warde, Mr. Spencer and Mr. Spencer repeated their success in their respective roles of Ceco the Jester, Galeazzo the Duke and Nina de Borgia. The support has not improved, any but the company's former appearance here.

ECHOES OF THE FLOOD

The Three Rivers at Pittsburg, Pa., Receding.

Hairsbreadth Escape of a Fast Train and Its Passengers—Saved by a Boy—The Ohio Has Reached the Danger Line at Cincinnati.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 22.—At three o'clock this morning the three rivers were receding at the rate of three inches an hour. The Ohio River mark is 23.3 feet and falling.

One of the thrilling incidents connected with the escape of the train, west-bound, near Tyrone, yesterday. A boy riding frantically on the roof of the train, waving his cap, gave the warning to the engineer that saved the train from going full speed into a landslide. Even so, the train ran into a large rock, knocking off the cow-catcher of the engine, and a Pullman was badly damaged.

At Altoona another engine was seen on the damaged car was taken out of the train.

Chicago, April 22.—The great storm of wind, snow and rain, which prevailed in the middle west Saturday, settled around unexpectedly Sunday, and swept over Lake Michigan into Chicago. It did damage to property, blew down trees, and shattered electric wires and telegraph lines. The water along the shore of the lake into the heaviest sea of the season.

Cincinnati, April 22.—The danger line was crossed by the Ohio River flood, which started at the head waters last week, and did so much damage at Pittsburg and intermediate points. The back-water along the Kentucky side has inundated parts of Covington, Newport and other suburbs. The Mill Creek Valley is full of water, and doing damage. The west end of Cincinnati. A similar condition exists in the east end along the Little Miami bottoms. The worst condition along the public lands, and lower part of this city, where sewers are blocked and cellars filled with back-water. At 58 feet, trains cannot enter the Grand Central station, at 56 feet, the baseball park is flooded, and at 58 feet the races at the track in Newport, Ky., must stop. All of these things are in sight, and most of them are now being done. The crest of the Pittsburg rise is not due here till tomorrow, but the extent of it has been closely anticipated and preparations are being made.

REPETITION EXPECTED.
Pittsburg, Pa., April 22.—While Western Pennsylvania was fairly out of the clutches of the flood this morning, fears of a quick repetition of the disaster were not being lulled. A scale seemed to haunt the people. Weather conditions are not reassuring. It is again raining, and advices from the West are that the crest of the Pittsburg rise is not due here till tomorrow, but the extent of it has been closely anticipated and preparations are being made.

Mr. Mackenzie King, deputy minister of labor, and Mr. Rudolph Boudreau, secretary of the premier, returned to the city yesterday from Grand Mere, where the 400 employees of the Laurentide Pulp Company went on strike last week. Mr. King, who went to Grand Mere in his official capacity, in response to the request of the strikers, found upon his arrival there that as soon as telegrams were received from Mr. Sutherland, getting minister of labor, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, advising the strikers that the government would set the machinery of the conciliation act in motion, 150 of the men had returned to work and the other 250 were awaiting his arrival. Conferences were held with the men and with the employers, with the result that Mr. McGibbon, the manager of the company, admitted that the notice of change from a weekly to hourly rate of wages had been improperly given, and the men all resumed work on Saturday morning.

MRS. (REV.) PARKHURST AND THE POLICEMAN.

New Yorkers Have Problems to Solve as Well as the Southerners.

New York, April 22.—Rev. Dr. Parkhurst gave out last night in Atlanta the story of how Mrs. Parkhurst had been accosted on the street here by a policeman. It follows:

"Mrs. Parkhurst had just left the church, and was walking up Madison avenue. She was a woman who contends that no woman who attends to her own business upon the streets, and comforts herself in a becoming manner, has any fear of being accosted. She therefore very frequently walks alone during the early hours of the evening, and this is the first time she has ever been accosted. She was just putting on his gloves.

"How are you this evening?" he said.

"She did not notice him, but he was not to be disposed of so easily.

"Don't you live down on the avenue?" asked the policeman.

"Mrs. Parkhurst did not answer, and policeman walked by her side until she reached the end of the block, and then he left her.

"Only a lady had run her in. Then we would have had him. These policemen are our natural guardians, and when they insult our wives on the street, instead of protecting them, it is time to do something about it. I only mentioned the matter during my recent speech in order to show the people of the south that we as well as they have problems to solve."

WILHELMINA ANGRY!

Her Husband's Creditors Make Trouble Over His Bachelor Debts.

London, April 22.—Special dispatches received here from Paris report trouble at the Castle of Het Loo, over the bachelor debts of Prince Henry, the husband of Queen Wilhelmina. It is said that shortly prior to his marriage he promised his creditors in Berlin and Frankfurt to pay one-third of his debts within a month of the wedding, but the money has not yet been forthcoming, and the money lenders formally applied to Queen Wilhelmina. The latter declares her husband must pay his own debts out of the allowance made him by the state. It is now said the creditors have formed a syndicate, and propose to negotiate the prince consort's paper on the Amsterdam bourse, and Queen Wilhelmina is reported to be very angry.

Result From Exposure to Cold and Dampness or Injury of the Back—A Wonderfully Successful Home Treatment is Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills.

Though among the most painful and fatal of diseases, and has been the cause of many deaths, it is not necessary for anyone to be in doubt as to their ailment. Increasing weakness, rapid loss of weight, dull, heavy pains in the back, over the kidneys; frequent and pressing desire to urinate; scanty, highly-colored urine; quick pulse; dry, harsh skin; constipation and diarrhoea alternating; nausea and stomach troubles and dropsical swellings are the indications of kidney disease.

As the most frequent cause of kidney disease is exposure to cold and dampness or straining of the back and kidneys, it is especially common among workmen, teamsters, railroaders and farmers. Kidney disease is also the result of constipation, and is found to prevail among men and women of sedentary habits and those accustomed to irregular hours, highly-seasoned foods and alcoholic liquors.

If a council of medical men were called to select the most effective treatment possible for kidney disease, they could not do better than choose Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This is the prescription which Dr. Chase found most efficacious in his immense practice, and it is doubtful if any physician was ever more successful in treating kidney disease. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills owe much of their success to the fact that they have a direct combined action on both the kidneys and liver, and so thoroughly rid the system of complicated diseases of these filtering organs. There is no longer any doubt as to the efficacy of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. In Canada alone last year there were sold one hundred and ninety thousand boxes of this great kidney medicine; one pill a day, in a box; all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

DON'T ALLOW OPERATION FOR CANCER.

There is a Simpler, Safer and More Effective Method of Treatment.

Dr. J. C. Oliver, of Cincinnati, Ohio, U. S. A., in a paper read before the Ohio State Medical Society, May, 1895, said: "I have operated in a considerable number of cases of cancer recently, and with one exception, all have died within fourteen months after the operation."

This statement of a prominent surgeon, should make anyone suffering from cancer hesitate before submitting to operation, and consider carefully the evidence offered on behalf of the new constitutional remedy, which cures cancers, tumors, and all malignant growths, without the necessity of operation. It is a simple vegetable medicine that searches out and destroys the cancer growths, completely eradicates the disease, and at the same time builds up and invigorates the system.

Stott & Jory, Bowmanville, Ont., will be pleased to send full particulars of treatment, in plain, sealed wrapper, to any sufferer, on receipt of two stamps.
