MAYOR AND LAWYER ENGAGE IN SQUABBLE OVER DUMP GROUND

Mr. Edmund Weld Speaks on Behalf of Rowing Club.

Mayor Quotes City Solicitor's Opinion Given Last Year.

Alleging that the proprietor of the West London dump was filling in the river from the north bank, and increasisg his land area at the expense of property-owners on the southern bank, by diverting the current of the river and forcing it over to the south bank, Mr. Edmund Weld, representing the London Rowing Club, made some strong contentions before the board of works Thursday night.

That Scarrow Row.

"That row of houses (meaning Scarrow's row) ought never to have been built," said Mr. Weld, "The dumping said Mr. Weld. "The dumping on the north side is driving the channel over to the south side. Last year we had to go to a large expense to construct a breakwater to protect our property.

That was discussed last year," said Mayor Graham never heard of it," replied Mr. Weld. "The city should protect the river. It is a matter which concerns the city.

Wouldn't Take Chances.

"For the city to risk an expensive litigation to try and put a stop to erator. this," said the mayor, "might be a case of pulling the chestnuts out of the fire for property owners. We have the city solicitor's opinion in the matter. He says it would be a question of defining the normal water-mark. An action might be taken if the board of health were to declare the dump a nuisance or a menace to health."

"It is purely platitudes for the city solicitor to say that an action could only be taken on sanitary grounds, declared Mr. Weld. "That is a child's way of looking at it. Of course, if you don't want to take the matter up with the city solicitor-
