

FRUIT TREATMENT HEALS KIDNEYS

Concentrated Fruit Juices Give Astonishing Results.

Anyone who has suffered with Weak or Irritated Kidneys—with the accompanying miseries of pain in the back, splitting headaches, swollen hands and feet, rheumatism and constipation—ought to try the Fruit treatment for their trouble.

To those who use intensified fruit juices—"Fruit-a-tives"—for the first time, it seems almost impossible that the juices of apples, oranges, figs and prunes combined with tonics, could relieve kidney trouble.

But a short treatment of "Fruit-a-tives" gives quick relief and the regular use of these intensified fruit juices or "Fruit Liver Tablets" prove their marvellous virtues.

Get "Fruit-a-tives" today and begin the Fruit treatment. At all dealers; 25c and 50c a box; or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.—Adv.

G. W. V. A. WILL BOOST VETERAN FOR POST

Secretary Contends Returned Man Should Fill Postoffice Vacancy.

With the resignation of Miss Mary Langford, clerk at the local post-office taking effect shortly, it is thought likely that the position will be filled by a returned man.

When Miss Langford was appointed, considerable opposition was forthcoming from the returned men who thought that in all fairness to them the position should have been given to one of their number. This morning George Turner, secretary of the G. W. V. A., was acquainted with the fact that a vacancy was looming. He stated that the association would endeavor to have the position filled by a veteran.

"It is only right that one of them should get the appointment and I will consult Postmaster Duncan regarding it," said Mr. Turner.

Daring American Aviators Hop Tomorrow On Perilous 860-Mile Pacific Journey

Lieut. Alexander Williams, the Noted Flier, Points Out Many Dangers on Trip.

WEARY SEA WASTES

Planes Will Keep in Close Formation Following Drastic Orders of Chief.

Special to The Advertiser.

By LIEUT. ALEXANDER WILLIAMS, JR., A. S. O. R. C.

New York, May 13.—An epoch in flight history is marked tomorrow when the three army fliers who are circumnavigating the globe take off from Chicago in the Attu Island and begin the 860-mile flight to Kashiwara Bay, on Paramushiru Island, one of the Kurile group. Not only will the three survivors of the gallant expedition cross the Pacific Ocean for the first time, but they will also have to break the existing record for a non-stop hydroplane flight, which is 792 miles. The feat is a far more daring one than that of the N.C.4, which crossed the Atlantic. Their land machines are equipped with pontoons, but should any accident befall them, they will in all probability be unable to ride for any length of time in the rough seas. Where aeroplanes of the N.C.4 type are seaplanes, built for that purpose and designed to ride the waves and having housing for the flyers that will protect them from the winds, the Douglas, cruisers with their land under-carriage removed, are perched high in the air above their all too small pontoons at the mercy of wind and wave. Men exposed, and should a forced landing in the open sea be necessary their hardships will be great. These pontoons are little more than sea sledges, skids designed only for landing in comparatively smooth water, and the planes were equipped with them only because it was impossible to provide adequate landing fields at all of the points that will be touched in the flight.

WEARY SEA WASTES

From the time the planes lose contact with the land until they sight Paramushiru Island there will be nothing to guide them over the weary waters of tumbling seas unless they go far out of their way to the north to sight the Komandorski Islands, Russian soviet possessions. It is all but impossible for a flier to know his position by taking sights on the sun as the sailor does, and therefore he must navigate entirely by dead reckoning.

Relying upon their compasses, which are none too accurate, the cause of many disturbing influences, the fliers will set a compass course for their objective, allowing for the speed of their planes, the twist given it by the propeller known as "Tor," and the speed and direction of the wind. Extremely good time may be made if the wind is favorable, that is directly on the tail of the plane, but in such a variable location this is something that cannot be counted upon, and the flier must be careful to watch for changes in the direction of the air currents, which may be so gradual as to be almost unnoticeable, especially when there is nothing on the ground by which to check a wind change that will make a difference of many miles in the drift of the planes.

Has Detail Map.

In a flight over the ground, the observer in the rear seat of the plane is provided with a detail map, upon which he can check up on landmarks which are designated, but when flying for hours over dull gray water such landmarks are non-existent. Flight maps will be used, however, and as mile after mile is covered the man in the rear seat will endeavor to keep pace on his narrow chart fixed on two rollers which slowly unwind before him a miniature reproduction of the terrain over which he is passing. One of the greatest hardships on a long flight of this kind is the deadly monotony. Fliers on long-distance flights have been known to fall asleep, and such a lapse on this trip would be fatal.

Following the drastic orders issued by the chief of air service, General Patrick, the machines will keep in close formation. Headed by the cago, Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, the flagship which takes the place of the found on the Adelaide street bridge recently. After a few minutes' conversation, kept in the bounds of good taste owing to the presence of a minister, the congregation dispersed, it being mutually agreed that there was no need for last rites by the minister, nor was there a patient for the doctor, a prisoner for the police, a corpse for the undertaker, and a story for the demagogue.

A message such as was whisperingly told over the phone, might rightly be described as a "whisper of death" the quietest thought that would "phone such a message?"

Plot Thickens.

Although the police, who are working on the case in an endeavor to find out the name of the man with the queer idea of humor, have nothing to say as to their investigations, The Advertiser has established the fact that the telephone in the local Conservative Club was used to transmit the messages.

London Tories and their newspaper organ have long been strong on "whispers of death" and it therefore seems quite fitting that the "hoarse whispers" should be breathed into a telephone from the headquarters of the true blue boys who do not see the ruin utterances of their one and only Arthur Meighan.

Although the originator of the messages no doubt thinks the whole affair rather humorous, the police do not see the point of the joke, and should the man be discovered, he will face a serious charge under the criminal code.

SYDNEY J. WILSON.

Special to The Advertiser.

Chatham, May 13.—The nineteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Will Wilson of Detroit, has been awarded the Boy Scout medal for saving four lives from drowning in the waters of Erieau, Kent County, last July. The presentation was made in the Cass Technical School of Detroit a few nights ago.

Sydney Wilson, who is now attending Ann Arbor University, spends his summers with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Stephenson of Erie Beach, and he is one of the most enthusiastic yachtsmen of Erieau. It was while on a trial spin with his new yacht, that, through the display of fearless bravery and prompt action as an expert swimmer, he was able to save the lives of Fred Somerville, Dr. Coulter and the latter's two little sons, who were capsized from a rowboat.

POINCARE WILL TAKE LONG REST

French Premier May Follow Literary Work Following His Retirement.

Associated Press Despatch. Paris, May 14.—Premier Poincare intends to withdraw from politics for the time being, taking a complete rest, and it is understood he will request a leave from the senate, so as not to have to appear in the debates following his retirement as head of the government.

M. Poincare has received requests from all over the world to write articles for leading publications, giving both his views of European politics and reminiscences of his twelve years as a government minister.

He will resume his political activities when he considers the time ripe. Meanwhile the question of who is to succeed to the premiership is easier put than answered, and it provides ample food for speculation among the deputies, who are already beginning to prepare for the opening of the chamber on June 2. It is also receiving the full attention of President Millerand, who, it is understood, will take an early opportunity to confer with M. Herriot, the Radical leader, on the political situation, so that the interregnum between the resignation of the Poincare ministry and the formation of a new cabinet will be as short as possible.
