

DOCTORS COULD NOT HELP MY KIDNEYS

"Fruit-a-lives" Cured Me

Mr. Geo. W. MacLennan, Prop.
Crestview, Ont., Jan. 25th, 1912
"For over twenty years, I have been troubled with Kidney Disease and the doctors told me they could do me no good. They said my case was incurable and I would suffer all my life. I doctored with different medical men and tried many advertised remedies, but there was none that suited my case. Finally, I gave up and tried 'Fruit-a-lives'. I have been using them nearly all the time since, and am glad to say that I am cured. I have no trouble now with my kidneys and I give 'Fruit-a-lives' the credit of doing what the doctors said was impossible. I am seventy-six years old and am in first class health."

TRAINING GERMAN

In keeping with the German Government's idea of making the empire one vast training school for the development of the best there is in the youth of the country for national commercial success, regular business school courses are being organized in the German army, so that the recruit during his term of military service will be fitting himself for the business life he will have to enter on quitting the colors.

The hundreds of thousands of children are not permitted to pass through the public schools and to drift through life as unskilled laborers. Each one, as far as the Government can order it so, is turned out skilled in some occupation.

One of the most powerfully educative forces in the empire is the continuation school originally intended to maintain some kind of discipline over youths from 14 to 18 years of age prior to their enlistment in the army. Of late years these continuation schools have been changed into vocational schools.

Twice every year great flaming posters call the youth of the land to obligatory attendance at the trade and commercial schools. These posters enumerate more than 100 trades of vocations and each youth is summoned to appear at the school devoted to his particular calling.

MAN WHO AIDED DARWIN

Always a Student of Nature, a Great Reader and Writer

When Darwin was making his researches which were afterwards given to the world in the "Origin of Species," "The Descent of Man," and other epoch-making works, one of his chief assistants was Mr. W. B. Tegetmeier, who died in London at the age of 96. As a boy Tegetmeier used to buy wild birds and keep them in his father's house in St. James's, and he also adopted pigeon fancying. It was through a neighbor, Mr. Yarrell, who was also a well-known writer on birds and fishes, that Mr. Tegetmeier made the acquaintance of Darwin, who at the time was in search of facts about variation in animals. Darwin gratefully accepted his help, and in his volumes made many acknowledgments of the assistance rendered by his fellow naturalist.

Mr. Tegetmeier was of service to Darwin in many different directions. For instance, he substituted for him the "Racing Calendar," the statistics of racehorses during a period of twenty-one years, and also the births of greyhounds as recorded in the "Field" for twelve years. On more than one occasion he suggested a method of research which Darwin adopted. For instance, he tried an experiment by which a bee was led to build a single cell, and found, as he suspected, that the cell, in fact, was a circle. He also read a paper on this discovery at the British Association meeting in 1858.

HOUSE OF MYSTERY

Weird Jumble of Useless Things in Recluse Doctor's Home

A strange collection of articles, which the late Dr. John Phené hoarded in the rooms and grounds of his mystery house at Chelsea, came to light when the contents of Cheryne House were put up for auction. The storehouse consisted of an old stone bridge. Behind rose the tall mass of the queer building, erected for a purpose which is not clear and decorated externally with the relics of a hundred antiquated places—odd columns and capitals, gargoyles and impish, while round about lay the heaps of stones and classic statues, the masses of meaningless iron and marble, ecclesiastical symbols, baths, allegorical symbols and cupids, and church furniture, which Dr. Phené made it his absorbing mission in life to collect.

He must have suffered from a mania for acquisition. There were twelve foot figure of Queen Victoria, crassly robed, two anvils, basins and baths, a broken spinning wheel and a block of carved stone which nothing but a traction engine and a body of determined men could move. It used to be rumored locally, and truly believed, that a wedding breakfast prepared many years ago, but never eaten, was rotting away in the darkness of one of the rooms. No proof of this was discovered, however.

In a second house there was the same evidence of collection without method: chairs, engravings, plaster casts, books, stained glass, flag poles, window-panes, dust thick upon everything, balustrades incomplete and wrapped in worn-out paper. It was a veritable jumble of useless things in the recluse doctor's home.

SCORED ONE ON

THE BISHOP

The clerical fox hunter is a fast disappearing figure. A generation or two ago, however, the country parson who rode to hounds was by no means unusual. G. W. Russell has a story of Bishop Samuel Wilberforce, who was once effectually scored on by one of his own clergy whom he had rebuked for his addiction to foxhunting. The bishop urged that it had a worldly appearance. The clergyman replied that it was not a bit more worldly than a ball at Blenheim Palace at which the bishop had been present. The bishop explained that he was staying in the house, but was never within three rooms of the dancing. "Oh, if it comes to that," replied the clergyman, "I never am within three fields of the hounds!"

LISTEN TO US

"We are only little ones, but we know Zam-Buk eased our pain and cured our sores. Perhaps it would cure you, too, if you tried it?"
Isn't this sound advice from "babes and sucklings"? Take it! The speakers are the children of Mrs. E. Webster, of Seignours St., Montreal, and the mother adds weight to their appeal. She says: "My little girl contracted scalp dandruff at school. Bad gatherings formed all over her head, and not only caused the child acute pain but made her very ill. The sores discharged, and occurring on the scalp we feared she would lose all her hair. She was in a pitiable state when we tried Zam-Buk. Zam-Buk is 'something different' in the way of balms. It cleanses, soothes, kills off the germs and ends the painful smarting. Other ointments contained in Zam-Buk stimulate the cells that produce dandruff. Zam-Buk, however, soothes, cleanses, and kills off the germs, and ends the painful smarting. It is also a great service for piles. All free. Mention 'Graphic' and 'Zam-Buk' to the dealer or to the manufacturer, The Canadian Ointment Co., Toronto."

FREE BOX

Send us 1 cent stamp for postage and we will mail you a box of Zam-Buk. Use it for all skin troubles and dandruff. It is also a great service for piles. All free. Mention 'Graphic' and 'Zam-Buk' to the dealer or to the manufacturer, The Canadian Ointment Co., Toronto."

TO STUDY ENGLISH ARMY DISCIPLINE

New York, Jan. 4.—Among the transatlantic passengers sailing from New York today was Major Charles B. Hatch, of the United States Marine Corps, who has been sent abroad on a rather interesting mission. Major Hatch is in charge of the naval disciplinary barracks at Port Royal, S. C., and the purpose of his visit to Europe is to study the system of discipline in the British army and navy, especially the detention system in force at the Aldershot barracks.

A DISAPPOINTMENT

Those who have looked to woman suffrage as a sure cure for all the ills of society must be disappointed at reading the story of how difficult it has been to secure women to sit on juries in Kansas. A learned jurist in that state has held, very feebly, that if women were to vote they should be also considered available for jury duty. In making up the panels in his court, the names of women have been drawn, but very little else happened. Those who bore the summons to the home of certain estimable ladies were invariably informed by servants that their mistresses were not at home. Other women came into court and showed their talent for inventing excuses in order to be relieved from the duty. The net result has been that it is apparently as difficult to secure women for juries, as far as the experience of Kansas can be taken as typical, as it is to secure men. This is saying a good deal and is also very sad.

APPOINTED MANAGER

Mr. Herbert McNaughton, who has been in charge of a store at New Mills recently and was formerly in a similar position at Dorchester, has been appointed manager of the departmental store to be established at Marysville by the Partington Pulp and Paper Company. He assumed his new duties on Thursday. The grocery business at Marysville has been combined with the other and the store formerly occupied by it will be used for storage purposes.
