CHILDLESS WOMEN

Please Read This Letter And See What Natural Method We Do For You.

Bernice, Ont.—"I had spent a long time, and after taking a lot of medicine, I was unable to conceive and bear a child. I was made strong and healthy and I have been ever since. Now we have a fine baby boy six months old, and I know that I would not have this baby and would still be suffering if it had not been for your medicine. My husband and myself are very happy and contented and we are worth their weight in gold, and I recommend this medicine to all. One of my girls is taking them now."—Mrs. NAPOLEON LAYTON, Berwick, Ontario, Canada.

Landing a Trout at Banff

LAKE MINNEWANNA, near Banff, Alberta, attracts many motorists during the summer. The water scene, the look-alike gliding across its smooth surface, is an ideal evening drive from Banff to this lake, and the way it is interesting to stop at the animal enclosures where the Government has established the wild animals of the country. As the car approaches along the trip, the sight of the browsing elk is especially attractive. In the spring the stately mother elk stalks proudly about with her young. In the fall the mating note of the bull re-echoes down the open valley. Many a battle-royal is fought by the males at mating time. The Bow River is the headquarters of the lover of water sports. Canoes, row-boats and launches are to be had any time of day. Plenty of good fishing is to be found a short distance from the river. There are some picturesque canoe trips there is nothing more picturesque than paddling up the Bow River to Shadow Creek, which drains the Vermilion Lakes. As the canoe glides into the mirrored waters, the swampy willows nod above the heads of the paddlers; at occasional trout darts from one shadow to another in the depths below. Little bursts of sunshine brighten the winding waterway till the canoe glides out onto the unbroken sunshine and the wide sweep of the first Vermilion Lake.

The Bow River is a typical mountain stream and has its rise sixty-five miles west of Banff and north of Lake Louise. Its head waters, the Bow and Hector Lakes, are fed from great ice-fields, which, in the first days of warm spring, cast their ice beds into the river, and the turbid waters gathering strength with each mile, tear madly down the narrow canyons bringing with them uprooted trees and all the debris lying within their reach. The lover of the wilderness may obtain valuable information of several beautiful and exciting canoe trips at the boat-house. The old tote-road of constructed days west of Banff is almost obliterated, and in its place the Government is rapidly erecting a big way which will link the eastern provinces with British Columbia.

The trip to be made in early spring, late August it is scarcely possible to see the wild sheep who abound in large flocks on the sun slopes on the north side of the valley. During the summer, though, occasional few may be seen any time of the year. In the early spring, the valley is trod along beside the valley, in the fall the ground is so damp that the various groups of elk, among the elk, terrible battle place among the males. The elk are grazing and bawling their heads in a racket which can be heard a long distance in the otherwise still hills. Crossing the Canadian Pacific.
