NEW BRUNSWICK'S

Hon. L. J. Tweedie Tells of the Large Share This. Province Has Borne

(Montreal Evening News).

"New Brunswick is enjoying an unprecedented prosperity and is more than doing its share in schaling mar-to fight for the Empire and in other patriotic works," said Hon. L. J. Tweedie, former Lieutenant-Governor of New Brunswick, last night. Mr. Tweedie was in town for the day on his way to Toronto, on private business.

"The province is prosperous," he said. "The depression that was felt in other parts of Canada after the declaration of war did not affect. New Brunswick. We never have any startling booms, but when financial crises come we are not affected. The lumber cut last winter was not up to the average, and I don't suppose it will be this winter, but we are having a general prosperity that was never before equalled.

"About July 7, 1914, all the soldiers quartered at Leipzig knew that something of a serious nature was going to happen because the guards were doubled at the barracks' gates every night to see that none of the soldiers escaped. New uniforms were issued and also new, strong boots, and the soldiers escaped. New uniforms were issued and also new, strong boots, and the soldiers were ordered to wear them a little every day so that they would not be so hard when they had to march in them."
