EXIT THE GREAT WESTERN.

This is what the Toronto Globe puts at the head of an editorial article, in which it bewails the exit and effacement of the Great Western railway.

We are to have railway monopoly now, says the Globe, deeply sympathizing with the people of Western Ontario, who, after investing their money in the Great Western, find themselves handed over body and bones to the Grand Trunk.

The disappearance of the Great Western is a very serious injury to the large tract of country which formerly enjoyed the advantage of the competition between the two lines.

It is not for public money? And, further, that among the applications of that time there were some half a dozen affecting Western Ontario, all got up expressly for the purpose of invading Great Western territory, and forcing that company into surrender?

The Globe regrets now the effacement of the Great Western, but where was the Globe six months ago, when the Great Western was fighting for dear life in the Ontario assembly?

That the necessity for radical change in the moral culture of our youth exists, is undoubted; but how to effect that change is a difficult problem to solve.

After having said with its influence the scheme for detouring the Great Western company by local legislation, the Globe now turns round and calls frantically for new competition with the Grand Trunk.

the third through line east and west. You will find fresh competition now, why then did you help the conspirators to kill off the competitors we have had in Western Ontario for over a quarter of a century?

In the effacement of the Great Western as an independent line a great crime has been committed against the interests of this province. But it won't do to put all the blame on the Globe, traitorously as that journal has acted towards Ontario's interests in this matter.

THE BIBLE IN OUR SCHOOLS. During the present year considerable discussion has been indulged in and some action taken, chiefly by teachers and preachers in council, regarding the introduction into our schools of the bible as a text book.

The friends of the movement affirm that the necessity for a more thorough teaching of the principles of religion than is now given exists, and seek to have this done not alone, as hitherto, from the pulpit, in the Sunday school, or around the family circle; but through the medium of our school system, and at the expense of the state.

In the first instance it would remove for an indefinite period the complete amalgamation of the public and the separate school system, intensifying the already strong partisan or sectarian feeling existing among the different denominations. It would be a misfortune very much to occur.

There are already very many Roman Catholics in Ontario who elect to send their children to the public rather than the separate school, and their numbers are every day increasing.

There is at least a prospect that the cow-byre nuisance will be done away with in Toronto. They-law recently passed by the city council appears to be an effective one in the face of it; and there is every reason to believe that Mr. Costaworth will do his duty in the premises, and that he will not allow it to remain a dead letter.

It is a most ominous sign of the entanglement of Ontario to the rule of the Grand Trunk, that already influential western journals are humbly bowing the knee before the rising sun. The Spectator and the Times in Hamilton, and the Free Press and the Advertiser in London, are all more or less deferential in their tone towards the Grand Trunk, and talk as if hating a prayer to Mr. Hickson that their lawyers have after all. We like better the attitude of the Berlin Telegraph, which boldly says that fusion is a good thing for the country.

and we are well warranted in changing our city by-laws to meet the change. Let us hope that the citizens generally will support the commissioner in doing his duty, and that now they have an efficient nuisance-law, they will not stultify themselves by being, like the American politicians we read of—"in favor of the law but against its enforcement."

THE POPULARITY OF THE ENGLISH NAVY. The recent intense interest taken in the bombardment of Alexandria, by the Anglo-Saxon people throughout the world, shows how much more regard the naval actions of England are noticed than her deeds of war on shore.
