IRVING'S FAREWELL BREAKFAST. Edwin Booth Proposes the Health of His Great English Rival. From the New York Sun April 30. Mr. Irving entertained at breakfast yesterday at Delmonico's some seventy gentlemen "in acknowledgment in some small degree," he said, "of the great hospitality and kindness which had been shown him unremittingly since the day that he landed in New York."

Mr. Irving has been in a measure the victim of hospitality during his visit to the United States. No member of his profession, and no public man, not even excepting Lord Coleridge, who has in a long time visited America, has undergone as much conviviality and festivity as

Mr. Irving. He stands it remark-ably well, but he confesses that the voyage which he begins upon the Aurania to-day comes just in time to save him from some internal cataclysm or perennial gout. Mr. internal cataclysm or perennial gout. Mr. Irving has at no time since his arrival felt that his character as a visitor precluded him from entertaining on his own behalf, and he has devoted every opportunity that he could seize in the intervals between the entertainments that were given to him in giving entertainments in return. His breakfast of yesterday was intended to be compre-hensive, and was as much so as was comhensive, and was as much so as was com-patible with the hour, It was of excellent quality, the best which the season affords, and it was admirably served in Delmonico's large ball room. Among the large company assembled were Edwin Booth, Lester Wallack, John Gilbert, Parke Godwin, John McCullough, Chauncey M. Depew, Charles Dana, Judge Shea, Julian Hawthorne, A. W. Gilder, Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain), T. Bailey Aldrich, George Parsons Lathrop, John Foord, Wm. J. Florence, Gen. Winslow, Dion Boucicault, Gen. Horace Porter, J. H. Loveday, Harry Edwards, E. A. Bugk. Mr. Irving, .oward the end of the break-Mr. Irving, "oward the end of the break-fast, asked "he company to empty a glass with him which was done with a great deal of cordiality. He then read a letter from a firm of western circus managers, offering him an engagement in a company composed entirely of stars, with which they propose to devastate the country under a mammoth canvas, giving the Shakespearean drama with lectures between the acts by a coographic and a cores

For catarrh. Out of 2000 patients treated during the past six months, fully ninety per cent have been cured of this stubborn malady. This is none the less startling when it is remembered that not five per cent of the patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefitted, while the patent medicines and other advertised cures never record a cure at all. Starting with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of living parasites in the tissues, Mr. Dixon at once adapted his cure to their extermination; this accomplished, the catarrh is practically to read, and the persented startment has ever attempted to other reatment has ever attempted to cure saturny is unquestioned, as cures still.
