For INFANTS. NVALIDS and the AGED

The high winds of March carry sany serms that infect the delicate nucous membranes that line the noses Tulles, fairy like and filmy, are extensively used for the dance frocks of the youthful devotee. Just at present there is the greatest tendency for combining several soft colors in the one gown—the advent of the full skirt permits the employment of yards and yards of shadowy materials—and one of the most popular ways of intended in the three or four tiered skirt models.

Petticoat Creamy White.

The foundation petticoate of one such lovely frock is of creamy white. A dainty gathered, skirt of lavender falls to the hem of this foundation and still another of shell pink tulle in tunic effect reaches to within four inches of the others Hand-sewn hems are a feature of this lovely model, as are the tiny French roses which reach in straps over the shoulders and wind once or twice around the upper part of the arm.

Tulles, fairy like and filmy, are extensively used for the dance frocks and throats of bables and young children and cangerous of these germs is the one that causes grippe or influenza. This disease is not very dangerous in itself, but its complications are so frequent and so many and the degree of prostration is apt to be so great that a little child having this liness should be most carefully watched. The Reason for Making Early Choice of Your Easter Dress

Select your Easter apparel to-day?

Most every lady who selects ready-to-wear apparel as her dress will appreciate two things: First, the satisfaction of early choice; second, the time needed to make the necessary and unavoidable "alterations" to have the apparel entirely satisfactory.

Our workrooms never were so busy as they are to-day. This means that earlier choosing is the order
