BOXING HEALTHY

SPORT FOR MAN

No Decline in Game With

Sports When Conducted on

Level—Public Demands Fair

Play—Prominent Men All

Over the Country Indulge in Sport for Health.

A great many people have the idea that boxing is brutal and debasing. Because it is, there are a great many noble and health-giving amusements.

Boxing is not declined in the public opinion on its own account, but mainly because of the hands of promoters who pull crooked deals for gain, with the public club in Nashville. A decision which appealed to the public as being rank was rendered at the end of a four-round bout between two little fellows who had boxed fairly well. The rumpus that followed the decision was such that one of the officials of the club entered the ring to quiet the crowd with a speech, and instead of quieting them only raised a louder outcry by his statement, "Gentlemen, this is practical boxing, and it is a decision and please all. The sympathies of the crowd are usually for the home boy, and they want to see him get the decision, no matter what the real facts are." He got no further with his rash statement, for his voice was drowned in a roar of disapproval. They gave him to understand that all they wanted was to see fair play, no matter who won, but they did want to see fair play.

Regarding good men who believe in boxing for mere sport, there is no man better versed on this subject than the Sullivan, president and now secretary of the A. A. U., Jr. Boxes.

Mike Donovan might have continued the list. He might have said that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., likes boxing and boxes occasionally with Jack Harvey for the exercise and the fun of it. In the theatrical profession one might mention a score of actors and managers who box almost daily. Mr. Ex-langer boxes often with Harry Harris, who used to be a fighter, and is now a theatrical manager of a reputation.

John Madden, the great horseman, was once a professional boxer. Recently he engaged Abe Attell and took him down on his farm to teach boxing to the two Madden boys. James B.

Reynolds, member of the tariff board, is a very clever boxer. Harry Payne Whitney is a boxer and a lover of boxing. Drexel Biddle of Philadelphia has boxed for years with Bob Fitzsimmons and Jack O'Brien, and has even fought several good professionals just for the fun of it.

Warren Barbour of New York is a splendid heavyweight boxer, once winning the national amateur championship in the heavyweight class. M. T. C.

Waterman, the leather king, once beat his favorite dad to box with

Batting Nelson and Puckey McFarland.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—America was the land of origin of the white hope idea, but it has been worked to the death in many lands. But it has been left to France to develop a concrete idea of the hope scheme and inaugurate a method by which it is hoped to produce a white champion of the world. M. Carpentier, the exponent of the scheme, is a native of France. Subscriptions to the fund for the scheme have been very liberal since the beginning of the year. The scheme is a concrete one, and it is expected that it will produce a white

Thirty-four Baseball Players Died

Last Year, Practically Broke.

Reasonably accurate statistics show that thirty-four ball players died during 1911, and of this number only two families in comfortable financial circumstances. Here is another example of come easy, go easy, for the old-time player who has made his money when at the height of his fame.

To-day conditions are reversed. The star players realize that they will soon be "has-beens" and sell their club. It is not an uncommon thing these days to read of a
