J. D. McDonald, district passenger agent of the G.T.R. was seen yesterday, and he said:

"The idea of running our trains to the exhibition is not new at all. In fact we tried the experiment some few years ago and found that it was far from profitable. In the first place the people have to be educated into walking a block or two and waiting several minutes to get their train from the various stations that would be established where trains would stop that were to run to the grounds. That ducation takes time, and we have but two weeks out of the year to run such trains.

When, in addition to the above, we mention that a contract has been let for the erection of extensive Coal Docks, when we further state that many other important enterprises are engaging the attention of many busy minds, one may begin to gather some idea as to the importance of Pors Arthur, and what all this means to the investor. Every new enterprise means the introduction of fresh capital, and this in turn spells the employment of master minds, the skilled mechanic and the laborer, and all this leads up to the purchase of residential property. This is what we are offering you to-day.

col. S. W. Ray, of the Banking House of Ray, Street & Co., says: "No doubt values of real estate with other places of inferior position and prospects. They should be at least 50 per cent higher than they are."

(Probably Col. Ray is as well known in banking, financial and business circles as any other mon in Canada, and he is known to be somewhat cautious and conservative in his opinions, hence the added value of the above declaration.)

George Clavet, President of the Board of Trade, states: "A steady growth of the town is unavoidable, and values in Real Estate are bound to increase."

W. F. Langwerthy, Crown Attorney, says: "For a man with little mency to invest, no place in Canada offers better advantages than Port Arthur. In my opinion real estate is cound to rapidly increase in value, and the increase in value that has taken place within the last few years is only the commencement."
