Speaking of the fight for cheaper fares, Mr. Maclean said he had been able to show that our railways, endowed by the people of Canada, were dowed by the people of Canada, were drop a card before buying elsewhere.

Carrying traffic originating in New York and the New England States, and in Michigan, thru Hamilton, for two cents a mile, while sitting alongside of these passengers were Canadians paying three cents a mile.

"That's what you get for allowing corporations to get control of the railways," he said. An ordinary working man was more likely to take the people's view of these questions than a corporation lawyer, suggested Mr. Whit Madean amid any fause and Mr. Whit Madean amid any fause and Mr. Whit corporation lawyer, suggested Mr. Maclean amid applause, and Mr. Whitney should have the support of men like Studholme, who believed in the sponsibility for the rioting should be men in parliament entirely free from party prejudices, and the election of Mr. Studholme would be a good thing. He declared that the responsibility for the rioting should be ciple of public ownership. It would sponsibility for the rioting should be good thing to have a labor man to laid at the doors of the Cataract Company to the sanitary arrangements of factories; such advice could not come from a lawyer. Mr. Studholme's cause was good, and no inferry would come to either political party. If Scott was elected it would be an indication to the government that the working men were indifferent to their own interests.

Mr. Maclean concluded by urging or the Cataract Company, because it did not abide by the award. Mr. O'Donoghue devoted considerable time to the prison labor contract of the Ontario Government, which is most unpopular here.
