The local beaches.

The race was won by S. C. Jensen of the new Illinois Athletic Club. His official time was 44.41 2-5. None of the out-of-town contestants finished.

Mr. King was one of the best known Republicans of Indiana and had taken a prominent part in public affairs. His daughters were aged 12 and 14 years. Miss Bradshaw was 14 years of age and was a neighbor of the King family, whose guest she was to be over Sun-ing at high speed. The machine was wrecked. The six bodies were scattered along the track for 100 feet and all were badly mangled. The skulls were fractured, arms and legs were broken, chests crushed, and the clothing was stripped from the dead. The locomotive of the passenger train was deralled, but was replaced in the tracks without the aid of the wreck train. The daughters of Mr. King were Katherine, aged 16, and Josephine, aged 12. Miss Bradshaw was 16 years old and was the daughter of Robert Bradshaw, general agent of a range company at Fort Wayne. She was one of the candidate during the disturbance of Carada, the cost of woollen clothing between the really unchanged Wall-street conditions. Business had been apparently very dull for some time, the a good many people seemed to be still buying wet goods and lining their inner man as usual. The campaign was carried on from the Licenseholders Association office, and a few spotters employed. Marked money was used and these coins have been found on the guilty men. The downtown hotels were the principal sufferers, the some of the more outlying houses did not wholly

Some of the cases of appropriation were particularly daring, and nearly all were worked in private rooms.

In one specific instance the drinks came to 80 cents, and the bartender remarked, putting the change in his pocket, "that that was a commission for him and was one of the ways he made his money." In another the hotel's portion was $3.25. The till got the odd quarter and the bartender the
