HOW CORPORAL J. W. MCINTYRE GAVE UP LIFE

Details of Circumstances Received From Friend

WAS IN RESERVE TRENCH WHEN THE END CAME

Eight Died Together, Instantaneously—Buried in Little Spot to Rear of Village—"One of The Worst Nights We Have Had," Says Writer

Details of the circumstances surrounding the death of Corporal J. Walter McIntyre, Methodist theological student, who was killed while at the front with an infantry battalion, come in a letter from a close friend, a member of a New Brunswick artillery unit. Extracts from the letter are as follows:

"Friday, June 16, was one of the worst nights we have had. As I wrote you before, I could not sleep, so watched the fight from a distant hill—an awful, but grand sight. The shells fell just like heavy rain. As we got ready for bed, a little Scotch lad in my tent said: 'Boys, pray for the boys in the trenches; for tonight is going to be one hell of a time.' I at once thought of Walter, and was not surprised when I received the news, but I could hardly believe it. I had seen him going into the trenches, sometime before, shook hands, and he promised to see me next time they were out. He looked fine, far better than a couple of months ago.

"He was sitting in the reserve trenches, on one of the bags, near the village of H— Seven other fellows went with him. They never knew what hit them, so did not suffer any pain. He, with the others, was buried in a little spot to the rear of the village. I had hoped to be able to send a snap of the spot, but find it impossible. I will make it my business to try to see the spot and have it properly marked, although it will be pretty hard to do just yet.

"Canadian and German both suffered. Many were found in the death-grip, showing that they had had it out with their fat or cut each other with their bayonets. Walter was spared this. If his private papers have not been sent home, let me know and I will try to trace them from this end. I can promise little, but will do my best.

"Walter was well thought of by the boys, and many will miss him. 'Mac' was always smiling and cheering someone. I believe he was talking a chap who was in the trenches for the first time when Fritz got both.

"War is hell, and the infantrymen are the men of the hour."

All honor is due them. I tell you I feel bad, but will feel worse at the home coming. Poor Duggies. Love to all.

GETTING BACK VOICE AFTER ELEVEN WEEKS

Carleton Soldier Recovering in London Hospital

WAS IN FOUR HOSPITALS IN FRANCE; NINE DOCTORS

Pte. Roy Macaulay One of the Few Who Came Unscathed From the Crater Charge of the 26th on Oct. 13—Shell Shock Caused Loss of Speech

Pte. Roy Macaulay of the 26th Battalion, a son of G. A. Macaulay of West St. John, in a letter to his mother, dated June 21, states that he was recovering his voice, the loss of which he sustained as a result of shell shock eleven weeks before.

Writing from the King George Hospital, London, Pte. Macaulay says in part—

"I recovered my voice this afternoon as the result of electrical apparatus applied by Dr. Stewart, a civilian specialist here. Whilst a Sister regulated the batteries, the doctor applied the electrical instrument to my neck, while showing me how to hold my mouth to pronounce 'P' and 'K.' I tried for ten minutes, but could not until finally he got me coughing and at the same time trying to articulate 'K' and 'B.' Then I found I could say it faintly and then plainer until I found myself stuttering and talking with effort.

"In the morning the doctor will give me a lesson in talking in order to make the effort easy and eliminate the stuttering. It is wonderful, considering that I was in four hospitals in France, attended by nine doctors. The last doctor put me under chloroform to bring me to a high state of excitement and yet I could not speak.

"Considering everything, I have been rather fortunate. You know I was one of the few of 'A' Company who returned unscathed after the crater charge of Oct. 13. During seven months I spent nearly every spell at the listening post, that is, with a comrade, one goes out over the parapet into No. Man's Land as far as the barbed wire. Of course this is at night time. After lying on our stomachs, for two hours rest, we return to the trench for two hours rest, and so on it goes. The chief danger is in going and coming, for if they detect us by the light caused by flares, a machine gun is turned on us and possibly bombs, mortars or rifle grenades chase after us. The last time out two chaps in the next post were killed by a grenade.
