BOIESTOWN, Northumberland Co., Oct. 7.-Miss Laura Gunter, who has successfully conducted music classes in this place for some time, has gone home on a visit.

The flour mill is about completed. The buckwheat plant is now being installed. When finished the mill will have facilities for grinding grain of all kinds. All of the wheat flour produced has been found to be of excellent appearance and quality. Large numbers of men are daily leaving for the woods. Wages average about four dollars more per month than last year.

Councillor E. J. Parker of Derby, manager for the Vaughan Lumber Co., has returned to Boiestown for the winter. He is occupying the store in the McMillan block, and has a large stock of merchandise. Fred W. Mc-Cluskey, who has been acting C. E. R. agent at Cross Creek, has returned. Ducks are plentiful along the river and partridges are greatly in evidence in the woods. McADAM JUNCTION, Oct. 9.- The other day while the cook of the board-

The chancel was prettily deco- many years, proceeded to exhibit and explain the purposes and uses of a great variety of Indian curiosities much in favor. The singing was hearty which were piled up on two tables extending across the whole front of the pulpit platform. Persons selected from the audience were dressed in native costumes, characteristic of those worn by the native Christian women, the heathen Telugu women, the young widows, the Gadaba bride, a Mohammedan boy and a Vislinu priest. The musical instruments, domestic cooking, eating, travelling, agricultural and religious utensiles and paraphernalia of the Telugu and other tribes were shown and commented on, together with a large number of brazen, gilt, alabaster, stone and wooden idols, which had been actually used and worshipped. Besides these were a display of ornaments, mats, idols, sandals, Fakir begging bowls, toilet articles snake charmer's outfit, photographs of natives and Christian converts, and many other things, which kept the attention of the audience riveted for over two hours. Musical selections were interspersed, choruses by the choir, a solo by Mrs. Webb (a pupil of the Boston Conservatory of Music), with accompaniment by Mrs. R. A. March,

The history of the Phoenix foundry is the history of the Fleming family in St. John. George Fleming, its founder, was born in Kirkaldy, Scotland, in 1801, and served an apprenticeship at the machinist trade at the foundry in Dumferlane. After working there as an apprentice and journeyman eight years, he went to Glasgow, where he remained two years, then to Cork for three or four years; thence to the Bay Chaleur and to Pictou, whence, after working a short time, he came to St. John in 1832 and entered the machine shop of Harris & Allan. Here and a duet by Rev. Mr. Wetmore and he remained about a year, after which he worked in Boston, Baltin at the Pembroke iron works in Maine He returned to St. John in 1834, and early in 1835 formed a co-partnership with Thomas Barlow, a carpenter by trade and John Stewart, an iron moulder, under firm name Thomas Barlow & Co., and preparations were made, by the manufacture of tools, for the establishment of the Phoenix foundry, the buildings of which were erected that year. The steam engine of the establishment was built by this firm and was the first ever constructed in New Brunswick. Mr. Stewart left the firm in 1847 and Mr. Barlow in 1849, when Thomas Humbert, who had been a clerk for some years in the previous firm, bought out Mr. Barlow's interest and the firm became Fleming & Humbert. This co-partnership was dissolved in 1868, and Mr. Fleming continued the business alone until 1870, when he associated with him his sons, William and James Fleming, under the style of George Fleming & Sons. The first low-pressure marine engine built in St. John was from these works for the Carleton ferry boat. They also built engines for the steamers Emperor, Empress, David Weston, Rothesay, May Queen, etc., and a large number of large mill engines. As locomotive builders the firm early achieved a high reputation and they filled in the run of years large orders for engines for the Intercolonial, Joggins Railway Co., the N. B. and P. E. I. Yesterday in the county court the cause of Harriet M. Steeves, executrix under the will of the late F. E. Morton, against W. T. McLeod was before Judge Wedderburn. This was a suit to recover on two promissory notes, given by defendant to the late F. E. Morton, which was resisted on the grounds that one note was a renewal of the other, that the amounts had been reduced by certain payments, that the notes had been given under contract for renewal at pleasure, and that there was a set off of a certain amount due defendant as executor under the will of Henry Carson by rustee of the estate of the late Judge Morton, and that the latter had obtained from McLeod the works of Lord Erskine, valued at $50 which were still held by the plaintiff as part of the Morton estate.

Attorney General White and Mr. Allison appeared for the defendant, and Seo. W. Fowler for the plaintiff.

Evidence having been heard for both parties, and many intricate questions discussed by counsel, it was agreed to send the case to the jury, with all points of law reserved, and the verdict to be amended by the judge in accordance with his decision thereon, or set aside, and leave granted for new trial. The questions given to the jury by the judge were: 1st. Were the notes sued too soon? If so their duty was done, and they would return a verdict for defendant. If not, they would decide what amount was due upon them. 2nd. In the latter event, what offset, if any, should be allowed?

3rd. Whether a separate suit should ce had to determine the liability of the parties for the amount claimed under the Carson will? After a brief consideration the jury returned an answer to the first question in the affirmative, and the verdict was consequently given for the defendant. The legal questions will be now considered and future action determined. Smith & Langstroth's merry-goround returned today and is being set up in the field adjoining the Episcopal church. Their tour is said to have been cuite successful.

NEW BUILDINGS IN CHARLOTTE-TOWN.

The Charlottetown Guardian reviews the building operations of the year in that town. The new Prince of Wales college is nearing completion, also the new P. E. Island hospital. expressing his personal sorrow at the sudden death of one of his warmest friends and the severe loss to the congregation, of one who for many years had been a loyal member and an efficient trustee of the church. Mr. Fleming, he said, not only stood for the best elements in our industrial world and for those qualities that adorn citizenship, but he also bore an impressive witness to the place that religion ought to hold in our modern busy life. His days were filled with reflection which are so essential to spiritual culture. He often spent his evenings in thoughtful reading. In the midst of a busy week he often met with us in this house of praver.where the noise is all shut out and the soul is alone with God. He knew well how apt one is to miss the Voice of the
