seems hall hip bending on its stalk."

Miss. Butcher is more like's resected. She is not quite so this live so therefor as Mrs. Stavert, but they are very much alike otherwise, only that Mrs. Butcher's bright, dimpled face is set in aframe passors become carls. Her eyes are dark blue, and her color brighter than Mrs. Stavert's, and she has the sweetest rocebud mouth imaginable. In addition to her other charms, Mrs. Butcher possesses more accomplishments than usually fall to to the lot of one lady, being a clever musician, an artist of no small music, and a gifted anateur actress.

But it is not alone by their personal charms that these ladies attract adhiration. Their sweet disposition and charming manner have won for them, beets of friends, and athough they have only been among us a short time, there are few things that we should regard as such a social calamity as the removal of either Mr. Butcher or Mr. Stavert from their respectively sease.

Of all Manchot a lar ladies, periage the one towhom the term "beautiful" could be appropriately applied is Miss Minnie Galt, sister of Mr. John Galt, of the engineering department of the I; C.R.
Miss Galt's features are of a higher type than is usually net with, carrying one back irrestitibly to the days of ancient Rome. She has the queenly sigure, small head and clear-out features of the Roman maidens, with massis of dark, nearly blick, hais, char olive completion and slightly haughty expression, contradicted by the peculiar gentleness of her beautiful dark eyes.

Some years ago there was an entertainment given in the Pythian temple, by members of St. Georges church, at which there were a series of beautiful fals, leaux, among others the scene where Cornelia shows Aer jewels to her friend. Miss Galt took part, dressed as a Roman maiden, and I have always thought of her as she looked thea. She seemed to be in her proper dress and character, and I wish she could have had she portrait painted, in the classical dress which entitled her so well.

I am painfully aware that I have done Miss Galt nothing like justice, but the fault lies with my too feeble pen, and not with my stulject.

It is a fact beyond dispute that in no town in the maritime provinces does one see prettier, better and more stylishly dressed ladies than in this old and APRIL 10.—A large audience greeted the appear ance of our amateurs in the Masonic hall, last Wed-nesday evening. Their very creditable rendition of that difficult and rather heavy play, She Stoops to Conquer, speaks yolumes for their application and Conquer, speaks volumes for their application and energy. Some of the parts were very cleverly sustained, notably that of Tony Lumpkin, which in the hands of Mr. W. F. Pepper was a most unqualified success. The acting of Mr. T. M. Burns, in the character of Charles Marlow, was excellent. Miss Meahan was a very handsome Kate Hardcastle, and Miss Minnie O'Brien a graceful and pretry Constance. Mr. Bertie Lannigan and Mr. Baldwin. Miss Minnie O'Brien a graceful and pretty Constance. Mr. Bertie Lannigan and Mr. Baldwin as George Hastings and Mr. Hardcastle respectively, were very good. Miss Cullen sustained her reputation for good acting in her part of Mrs. Hardcastle. The minor parts of the play were well taken by Mesars. Frank McLear, D. Doyle, J. M. McGinley and J. Melvin. The entertainment closed with the laughable farce, Paddy Miles, with John J. Harrington as the Limerick Boy. His acting kept the audience convulsed with laughter. The other parts were taken thus: Doctor Coates, Bertie Launagan; Harry Coates, W. F. Fepper; Mrs. Fidget, Miss Cassie McGinley, Jane, Miss G. Hatton; Job, D. Doyle; Reuben, James McGinley. Miss J. Burns left on Thursday for Woodstock, where she will be the guest of Miss Janie Wilbur for a few weeks. She was accompanied as far as St. John by Miss Minnie Burns.
