

NOVA SCOTIA AND, IF POSSIBLE, MARITIME OLD HOME SUMMER

At Joint Meeting and Luncheon of Board of Trade and Rotary Club Last Evening Horatio Crowell of Halifax Told of Plans—Movement to Bring All Maritime Province People from States and Upper Canada in 1924.

The need, the history of the movement, and the plans being developed to secure a Nova Scotia, and if possible, a Maritime Old Home Summer for 1924, was the subject of an interesting and enlightening address by Horatio Crowell of Halifax, the guest of the St. John Board of Trade and the Rotary Club at a supper held at Bond's last evening.

In beginning his remarks, Mr. Crowell said that he wished to address those present, not as a Nova Scotian to a New Brunswick, but rather as one Maritime Province man addressing fellow Maritime Province men, all imbued with the same idea, that of the betterment and development of the three sister provinces. He was present, he said, with the full approval and support of the directors of the Nova Scotia Old Home Summer.

The movement in which he was interested was the re-planting of as many native born Maritime Province people living abroad as was possible in the interests of this project he had traveled all the New England States, and had gone as far west as Toronto. While overseas at the beginning of the war, he was a journalist, and later as an officer, he said he was astounded by the ignorance displayed concerning the Maritime Provinces. It was a prevalent idea there that Canada began at Quebec and Montreal and extended westward, nor was this idea confined to the Old Country alone, even in the United States, where many were entirely oblivious to our existence.

There are three ways by which the Maritime Provinces could be put in their proper place in the opinion of the British public, he said, they were by the Federal Government; the railways and by the offices maintained by the provinces in London.

As regards the Federal Government nothing could be expected, their officers not only do not advertise the Maritime Provinces but are even opposed to them to a large extent. The railways naturally favored the West as it was in their interest to do so, in regard to the provincial offices, that of New Brunswick was situated in a central portion of the city, while the Nova Scotia office was entirely inadequate, neither was the office in the United States, where he considered were fulfilling the purpose for which they were intended.

Today the balance of political power in the Dominion lay in the West, the financial in Montreal, and the population was also centered in the West. Since the war there has been a large exodus of returned men from the Maritime Provinces, largely to the American West, and yet in Nova Scotia in two counties alone, there were 2,000 square miles of undeveloped land, possessing good wealth, and the situation was similar in New Brunswick.

If the three provinces are to prosper they must be developed, to do this the people must be aroused from their existing condition of affairs. A larger population is needed to develop the country and no people are better suited to do this than our own people, for they are naturally most interested in our progress, one native born is the equal of at least two immigrants.

Plans were being projected for the development of a Canadian Merchant Marine, trade was necessary to ensure its success, and the Maritime Provinces should see to it that they take a fair share in that trade.

Mr. Crowell said he had first proposed his scheme to the Halifax Board of Trade, and under their auspices he had toured all Nova Scotia, addressing every town council and every club or society interested in the welfare and betterment of the province. At the conclusion of the tour a conference had been held at Halifax, thirty-five delegates were expected to attend two hundred came, and on the whole, as strongly in favor of the holding of a Nova Scotia Old Home Summer, and ready to assist in every way the plans necessary for the holding thereof, that the native born of the province and their children might return to the land of their birth; might see what was being done, and might further be done, and finally might be induced to remain in the province in preference to the land of their adoption.

Mr. Crowell referred to the fact that for every Nova Scotian in his own province there was another living in the United States today, in Massachusetts there were 79,000, in New York state 79,000. The figures he said were appalling and humiliating.

Mr. Crowell took occasion to say that while his remarks were confined to his own province in regard to figures and other data he left it to his hearers to judge as to how far they might be applied to the other two provinces.

We might boast of our unlimited resources but as long as they remained undeveloped and as long as no action was taken to use them they were developed and utilized, it was no much profit.

That the Nova Scotia Old Home Summer might be realized, a committee of nine have been appointed to arrange a programme, formulate an idea of the necessary expenditures, and submit a report in June.

It was proposed to have an export paid secretary in every county who would study his district thoroughly and do all he could to promote the observance of the Old Home Summer.

Another proposition was the holding of an International Exposition, in which every county would be fittingly represented, civic improvement leagues are being formed in every town in the province and will endeavor to make their towns as attractive as possible with shade trees, parks, well paved streets, and all other necessary improvements.

The government is to be asked to establish a department of Natural Resources, and a complete survey of the possibilities of the province.

No man or woman would return to the home province in 1924 without a determined effort being made to retain them. If they were to stay, better roads, better hotels and other accommodations must be secured and the aid of the government will be called for in this respect.

From the first the speaker said it was to make the plan a maritime one, but it was felt that some definite plans should first be established.

The plans proposed were big ones, but the records of the province during the war had established boundless confidence in their capabilities, what was needed was united action, jealousy, selfishness and lack of interest had been largely responsible for the backwardness of the maritime provinces in the past. In the future both parties, and all classes should unite in concerted action in all that is vital to the interest of the three provinces. The people of the Maritime Provinces must not be dismayed by the greatness of the proposed plans for the betterment of their country, they should remember that they are Canadians, and nothing is impossible to them.

At the conclusion of this patriotic address in which optimism in the land of his birth was predominant, Mr. Crowell received a hearty thanks from the committee present, from R. E. Armstrong, secretary of the Board of Trade, who expressed the great pleasure it afforded him in doing so.

Prior to Mr. Crowell's address the Rotary Club supporting the mayor in the action he proposes taking.

Thomas H. Macaulay, the new general manager of the N. B. Power Co., as well as two new members were introduced at the beginning of the evening.

VETS TO DISCUSS ITS POSITION IN FEDERAL POLITICS

At the Convention to be Held in Montreal March 22nd the Political Question to be An Important One.

Montreal, March 1.—(Canadian Press)—At the Dominion convention of the Great War Veterans' Association, which meets in Montreal for the week of March 22, and at which it is thought, 900 delegates will attend, one of the most important subjects to be considered will be whether the association is to take an active part in Federal politics.

This course is advocated by certain Ontario and Western branches, but is not at present regarded seriously by many of the members in Montreal. The convention will include land settlement for soldiers; pensions; annuities; insurance; civil re-establishment of returned soldiers and the burial of veterans.

The government is to be asked to establish a department of Natural Resources, and a complete survey of the possibilities of the province.

STIRRING BEGINNING OF MOMENTOUS SESSION

Summed up, and viewed solely from the standpoint of its political effect, it was a good opening for the Government. Mr. King's attack, while it immensely pleased his followers, was too general in its character to be effective, while on the other hand, Sir George's reply put the Unionists in good stead and unquestionably gave them a new and better opinion of the Ministry.

Hard On Crear. Of Mr. King's amendment it is likely to prove more embarrassing to the Farmers than to the Unionists. The Government feeling, and rightly so, that its mandate has not expired, and will not expire before 1922 at least, can quite logically and reasonably reject it, and its followers, whether through a sense of loyalty, or through hostility to the danger and dislocation of an election at this time, or because of a feeling of "safety first." (Not an inconsequential factor in deciding a politician's vote) will support it. But what of Mr. Crear. If he supports the amendment, then he puts himself into the position and danger of being regarded as Mr. King's first lieutenant in the House, a position which, in the eyes of all who are interested in the movement, is neither wise nor safe. If, on the other hand, he votes with the Government, then Mr. King merely succeeds in driving potential and longed-for allies into the camp of the enemy, a feat in which he once before showed considerable proficiency.

THE BANKERS' TRUST COMPANY HOLD FIRST ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of The Bankers' Trust Company was held at the offices of the company on Wednesday, 25th instant.

While the company has been in existence for a period of eight months, three of these were consumed practically in rounding out the organization details, leaving only five months of practical operation. No figures are available but it is understood the results of these initial months' work have been most gratifying.

Lieut.-Col. Sir H. Montagu Allan, C. V. O., was elected president in place of Mr. K. W. Blackwell, who became vice-president.

In this connection it may be said that it was always understood Mr. Blackwell would retire from the presidency of the company at the end of the first year, and he only assumed that position temporarily, and in place of Sir Montagu Allan, who was absent in connection with war work on the other side when the company was organized.

Apart from this change the same board was re-elected with the following executive officials:—Lieut.-Col. Sir H. Montagu Allan, C. V. O., President; K. W. Blackwell, Vice-President; D. C. Macarow, Vice-President; Jas. Elmsly, Manager.

MRS. JEAN MULDREW AT W. I. CONTENTION

Mrs. Jean Muldrew, of Ottawa, head of the Home Department of the Soldiers' Settlement Board, met with a cordial reception from the delegates to the Women's Institute Convention, when she pleaded the cause of wives of soldier settlers recently at Winnipeg. She was assured of the cooperation of the convention and of the extension department in any effort to extend the hand of fellowship. According to Miss Gertrude Dutton's report there are now 125 Women's Institutes in this Province. Miss Dutton urged the inclusion of the foreign born women in the membership, where possible, citing one successful institute where the majority were of non-English extraction.

BITRO-PHOSPHATE IS GOOD FOR NERVOUS PEOPLE

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE. Frederick S. Kelle, M. D., Editor of New York Physician's "Who's Who," says that weak, nervous people who want increased weight, strength and nerve-force, should take a 6-grain tablet of Bitro-Phosphate just before or during each meal.

This particular phosphates is the discovery of a famous French scientist, and reports of remarkable results from its use have recently appeared in many medical journals.

If you do not feel well; if you tire easily; do not sleep well, or are too thin; go to any good druggist and get enough Bitro-Phosphate for a two weeks' supply—It costs only fifty cents a week.

Eat less; chew your food thoroughly, and if at the end of a few weeks you do not feel stronger and better than you have for months; if your nerves are not steadier; if you do not sleep better and have more vim, endurance and vitality, your money will be returned, and the Bitro-Phosphate will cost you nothing.
