Evolution of Women as Seen From Planet Mars

A Glimpse of the Female Sex as Viewed From a Universe of Supermen

Under the title "As Mars Sees Us" Elizabeth Field Yardley has outlined an unique encyclopaedic version of the specie "Woman" as compiled by the specie "Man," and, indeed, viewed from a planet of supermen. Although rather lengthy for brief notice, it is too good to abbreviate. It follows, in its entirety:

His brow wrinkling anxiously, the Chief Doctor of the School for Universal Research up in Mars handed the binoculars to a student at his side.

"Observe," quoth he, "and tabulate accurately the progress of events in that queer-looking little body down yonder."

Swiftly the student brought forth the Encyclopaedia of Minor Bodies. As he ran his finger through the index, his lip curled disdainfully.

"That, Doctor," he said finally, "we have classified as The Little Egotist." Continuing, he read from the reference book: "Inhabitants, a primitive race; lived until recently in caves nad jungles; still truculent and barbaric; depend for existence upon the physical consumption and digestion of matter called 'food.' The race has attained but meagre understanding of the metaphysical consciousness; planet is called The Earth; and they ar just outgrowing the theory that it is the centre of the universe."

Being descended from many generations of supermen, the Chief Doctor smiled indulgently.

"It is in evolution," he said, "that we see the history of the universe. For some time past I have detected signs of change in an inhabitant of The Little Egotist called 'Woman.' Observe this creature closely."

The student sighed, for he had been in deep contemplation of the soul's progress in Sirius. Still, being a superman also, he undertook the appointed task without remonstrance.

Before the school closed its doors for the day, he had appended to his note book this data:

"Interesting evolution noted in specie called 'Woman,' found on The Little Egotist. Alleged 'scientific' theory that it was evolved from protoplasm; queer religious tradition that it was made from rib of specie called 'Man' led to its subordination to 'Man.'

WHAT THEY OWE TO THEIR MOTHERS

Prominent Business Men Tell How Their Mothers Have Helped Their Success

"Back in the early days of joy and hope, there was some one thing which our mothers saw in our character that needed care and inspiring suggestion to bring it to fruition; and when this had been accomplished, we found that we attained a better balance of character and were thereby better enabled to battle in the whirlpool of life."

So thinks Owen E. McGillicuddy, the well-known writer. He has voiced his confession, together with those of other prominent business figures in an article headed, "What I Owe My Mother."

"Most of us," he says, "as we look back upon the days of our early youth catch a deeper meaning of what motherhood has done for us. We must have been the recipients of that unalloyed love poured forth from a heart which measured not its capacity to give, and, therefore, was sweetest in the giving."

"Mothers," declares Mr. McGillicuddy, "can impart information and instill sound truths which will last in after life as luminous mottoes to mark the way, no matter how dark that way may be."

Considering this, the writer decided to obtain the opinions of a number of men in Toronto who had obtained a modicum of success in their respective callings. Here are a few:

Mr. Herbert J. S. Dennison, the well-known patent attorney, says: "A phrase which I remember very distinctly as being frequently used by my mother is, 'You must never touch a pin's point which does not belong to you.'"

Mr. John W. Garvin, B.A., editor and author of "Canadian Poets," declares that his "respect for, and love of her, broadened in early manhood into tender reverence for womanhood" which he has never forgotten and never will forget.

Mr. J. M. McClelland, of the publishing house of McClelland, Goodchild and Stewart, in answer to the query replied: "Fair Play, Fair Play, above all things, Fair Play."

These are only a few of the men who have been glad to publish broadcast just what they owe to their mothers.

Rev. Alex. White, of Renfrew Baptist Church, has refused a tempting offer to take an eastern pulpit.

Irish Rangers Visit Erin

London, Jan. 17—Lieut-Col. H. J. Trihey and Major W. P. O'Brien, of the 199th Battalion, Duchess of Connaught's Own, Irish-Canadian Rangers, Montreal, have sailed for home, but their departure will not affect the proposed tour of Ireland by the battalion at the end of the present month.

The entire program for the tour has now been arranged and provides for a visit of the principal cities, where civic hospitality will be extended to the Canadian battalion. The arrangements for the tour are in the hands of Major Campbell Stuart, who has just returned to London.

The Irish Times of Dublin assures the Irish Rangers of a hearty welcome, and adds that all Ireland might well rejoice at the Rangers' visit, as the battalion is a practical representation of the ideal of harmony and co-operation between Irishmen of all creeds. Ireland, it says, is in need of the example and stimulus which the Irish-Canadian Rangers will bring.

The Lord Mayor of Dublin has formed a citizens' reception committee to look after the visitors, and will give a banquet to inaugurate the tour.
