

Broadway, at Leonard Street, New York City, 1847.

A bit of realism is portrayed in the picture which is true to life as it was on Broadway in 1847. Then it was that the silver spoons, forks and knives produced by Rogers Brothers and destined to become celebrated as 1847 ROGERS BROS.

"Silver Plate that Wears" had the first beginning in popular favor that has assumed the proportions of a national preference.

The Cromwell and Old Colony patterns here illustrated are much admired and in a measure reflect the quaintness of early designs. Like all 1847 ROGERS BROS. silverware, they are made in the heaviest grade of silver plate and backed by the largest makers with an unqualified guarantee made possible by an actual test of over 65 years.

Sold by leading dealers everywhere. Send for illustrated catalog.
