

of the ideal, the moral & spiritual forces. Comes out more strongly as we advance taking this human element as most important active force in progress, - when that a very great deal of this activity has been unconscious (so far as progress is concerned.) The really important changes seem to have been brought about indirectly & without special designs of those who did things of crucial importance - the foster life of nationalities in Eng., the free play of individ. enterprise, & full representation in politics, enabled her to go ahead. There was the reaction of the gold standard on commercial. The men who played their part in developing the life of Eng had no concept that they were doing anything. - The really determining cause in progress of Eng life. Some busy people who built up unscrupulous business of Eng had no idea that they
