of seeing such a happy and animated group of school children as was displayed when the curtain rose on the Central School Concert given in the Opera House last evening. The sight was simply amazing and one never to be forgotten. About five hundred and fifty children were seated on the stage on an embankment of seats extending about twenty feet in height. They were arranged according to their different grades with each teacher commanding her own section. During the choruses, in which all of them took part, they sang with a volume which filled the whole house, their childish voices ringing out with an enthusiasm and whole heartedness which thrilled and captivated the im-

Never before was the Opera House so well filled. It was taxed to its utmost capacity and many were trance. And never before were the excellent local entertainment. Everything passed off in a style which reflected great credit upon both the performers themselves and their capable

There is one man, however, to whom the greatest portion of the credit is due. That man is Mr. Plewes, the principal of the Central school and the promoter of the concert. The whole idea and plan of the entertainment was of his own making, and he certainly should be very highly complimented on the most excellent and gratifying results

Mr. Plewes is a man of inestimatable capabilities and puts his knowledge into practical use in the advancement of modern school life and education. During the comparatively brief time he has been principal of the Central school he has through his ambitious nature, energetic work, and skilful management built up for himself a most enviable reputation as an able and efficient public school

Little did the School Board realize when they engaged Mr. Plawes what a prize they were receiving. His work in Wallaceburg was such as proclaimed him a very valuable man, but what was Wallaceburg's loss was Chatham's gain and the Central school has now at its head, one of the best Public School Principals in Ontario. In fact Mr. Plewes is worthy of the highest complimentary remarks that can be paid him. He has a natural gift for managing children who, while they respect and obey him, do not look upon him as a harsh task-master, but rather as a companion and friend, who is fondly and deeply interested in their welfare.

The Central school to-day, is one of the finest, most up to date, and best regulated public schools in Ontario. and its efficiency along these lines is daily progressing. The work of these little tots, under the instruction of Miss Green was amusing in the extreme. They sang and acted their parts with an intelligence and activity seldom found in children so young. Miss Green has indeed great reason to be proud of the work of her small charges.

The event of the eveening, however, was the presentation of the gold medal to Miss Belle Weber, awarded by Alex. VonGunten for obtaining the highest standing among the pupils from the Central School, who passed the recent entrance examinations. "Before presenting the medal" said Dr, McKeough, "I must congratulate the zealous, competent, energetic principal of the Central school, and the excellent and efficient staff of teachers, who have produced such a gratifying result in their first entertainment.
