INDIAN MAGIC. A Trick That Mystified Lord Lytian and

One That Didn't Work ble Explanations.

The following story of Indian magic was told me by the person to whom it was told by the late Lord Lytton. I give it in my own words for the excellent though hamiliating on that I have mislaid the manuscript

When in India Lord Lytton often sought out conjurers, but never saw any but the usual feats, such as the mango tree trick and the basket trick. The method in each case is known, or at all events plausible ex-planations have been given by Mr. Maskelyne and other experts. On the occasion Lord Lytton liked some-thing in the looks of the conjurer who was performing in an open space before his house. After the ordinary exhibition His Loydship asked the magician if he could not do some-thing more out of the common way. The man said he would try and ask-ed for a ring, which Lord Lytton gave him. He then requested an offi-When in India Lord Lytton often sought out conjurers, but never saw thing more out of the common way. The man said he would try and ask-ed for a ring, which Lord Lytton gave him. He then requested an offi-cer to take in either hand a hand-ful of seeds. One sort was sesame. The name of the other sort my in-formant did not know. Holding these seeds and having the ring be-tween his finger and thumb, the offi-cer was to ge to a well in the corn-er of the compound. He was to dis-pose of the seeds in a certain way—I think on the low wall round the well, into the depth of which he was to throw the ring. All this was done and then the magician asked Lord Lytton where he would like the ring to reappear. He answered, "In my dispatch box," of which the key was attached to his watch chain, or, at attached to his watch chain, or, at all events, he had it with him on the all events, he had it with him on the spot. The dispatch box was brought out. Lord Lytton opened it, and

eut. Lord Lytton opened it, and there was the ring. This trick would be easy if the British officer was a confederate of the juggler and if he possessed a duplicate key to the dispatch box. In that case he would not throw the ring into the well, but would take it into the house, open the box and insert the ring. But this explanation involves enormous improbabilities. insert the ring. But this explanation involves enormous improbabilities, while it is unlikely again that the conjurer managed to insert a dupli-cate ring into the dispatch box be-forehand. Lord Lytton then asked the invertee cate ring into the dispatch box be-forehand. Lord Lytton then asked the juggler if he could repeat the trick. He answered in the affirma-tive, and a lady lent another ring. Another officer took it, with the seeds, as before, and dropped the ring into the well. The countenance of the juggler altered in the pause which followed. Something, he said, head group wrong, and he seemed of the juggler altered in the pause which followed. Something, he said, had gone wrong, and he seemed agitated. Turning to the second of-ficer, he said, "Did you arrange the seeds as I bade you?" "No," said the officer. "I thought that was nonsense, and I threw them away." The juggler seemed horrified. "Do you think I do this by myself?" he said, and, packing up, he departed. The well was carefully dragged, and at last the lady's ring was brought to the surface. That ring at least had certainly been in the water. But had the first ring been as faithfully consigned to the depths? Experts will be of various opinions as to that, yet the hypothesis of confeder-acy and of a duplicate key to the dispatch box is difficult.—Longman's Magazine.

As Iros-Moeled Batterity. As Iros-Moeled Batterity. This man-schwant entered the studio, "Well?" said Whistler. "Lady Some-poor and the servent (she was one of the great ladies of the British peerage). "Where is she?" "In her carriage at the door, sir." Whistler took no further notice of his servitor, but resumed the read-ing of his proof sheets to me, and the puzzled footman, who was stand-ing behind his master's back and is bening me, shook his head slowly up and down, and-like Longfellow's Arabs-"silently stole away." Thus the reading went on for quite tea minutes longer, and the reader's sole walting how deadly cold it was on that March day, I called out to him, "I bef your pardon, Mr. Whistler, bet hink I overheard your ser-vant telling you that a lady was waiting to see you." "Oh," said he, mobbed with these people!" Then he vant telling you that a lady was waiting to see you." 'Ok.' said he, 'let her wait, let her wait—I'm mobbed with these people!' Then he went on reading for fully fifteen minutes more, and after that (his voice was getting tired, I daresay), he condescended to go dewnstairs and receive her shivering ladyship.—Frad-erick Keppel, in The Reader.

A good stomach is better than A good stomach is better than great riches, for a good stomach means comfort; contentment and a liking for work that makes the day's duties one continual round of plea-sure. And a good stomach is better than great riches because it is within the reach of all. Everybody cannot be rich because there is not momey enough to go round, but everybody can have a good stomach. Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets will give it to them. Thousands of Canadians will tell you the same story that Edward Rousseau, of Bruce Mines, Ontario, relates. Hed

Continuous Smoke

In the Philippines the use of tobacco is universal. The native child acquires the tobacco habit as soon as it is able to walk. In the northern provinces especially it is no uncommon sight to see a child five or six years old puffing vigorously at a big cigar. The women smoke fully as much as the men and commonly smoke cigars where the men use cigarettes. In the northern parts of Luzon immense cigars often a couple of feet long and as thick as the wrist are used. Such a cigar is suspended from a rafter of the house by a string and smoked during the day by all the members of the family as desired.

"alileo's Wit.

Salileo's wit, according to a biogra-phy, got him into trouble when he put into the mouth of Simplicio, the foolish opponent of the Copernican theory in his "Dialogues," an argument that Pope Urban VIII, had himself devised and insisted on Galileo incorporating in the work. Galileo made Simplico quote it as an argument he had from a "very eminent and learned personage." The enemies of Galileo persuaded Urban that he had been "made game of," and this was the offense of which Galleo was guilty. It was not for upholding the theory that the sun stands still and the earth moves that Galileo was tried by the inquisition. Urban himself had supported the Copernican doctrines both as cardinal and as pope.

to Make an Instructive Toy With a Lamp Chimney.

Take a straight lamp chimney and put a band of tin foil round its center, fastened with a little mucilage. Gum a narrow strip of the same along the side from the edge up to within half an inch of the center band. Now get a chimney brush and around the bristles wrap a silk handkerchief and then briskly rub the interior of the glass tube, being careful that your hand does not touch any of the tin foil. If you do this in the dark every time you draw your brush out of the cylinder you will behold a magnificent spark leap across the space between the two bands of tin foil, showing that you have electrifled the chimney by friction. round the central piece of tin foil with a piece of iron or brass wire, to whose hanging end you hang thin strips of rice paper. Rub the interior of the chimney briskly, this time, however, introducing your brush into that part of the chimney on the outside of which the long, thin tin foil is glued. The metal band will become charged with elec-tricity, which will be transmitted to the slips of rice paper through the wire, and you will see the slips of paper stand out horizontally. You will thus have demonstrated: First .- That bad conductors of electricity, such as glass, become electrified by friction. cond.-That good conductors, such as tin foil and wire, transmit the elec tricity from a charged body (the glass) to uncharged bodies, (the paper). Third.—That bodies charged with the same kind of electricity repel each oth-er (the paper). Choose a fine, dry day, and if in addition you thoroughly dry the glass and handkerchief it will guar-

He Could Be Trusted. Rev. Richard Cecil, who lived to be a greatly useful minister, was born in London in 1748. When a boy he was strong willed, but brave, straightforward and thoroughly to be trusted, hating all that was mean, shuffling or deceitful. One day his father, who had business in the city, took little Dick with him and left him in the door of the East India house, teiling him to wait there till he should finish his business and return to him. Taken up with other matters, his father forgot all about him and left the house by another door. Richard in the evening was missed by his mother. His father, now remembering where they had parted, said, "Depend upon it, he is still waiting for me where I left him." Immediately returning to the signification of the signification of the sure, he found p_{ij} or $\gamma_{p,b}$ faithfully waiting, as he had been orders had be

The illustrator is not supposed to have the poet's license, but he gives himself the scope he desires, and if his conception of a ligure or a scene differs from that of the writer it is simply a triffe worse for the writer. When Holman Hunt illustrated Tennyson's poem, "The Lady of Shalett," Tennyson was somewhat, taken aback by his first sight of the lady.

Sound judgment doesn't always make the most noise.

Even the worm will sometimes turn before it is trodden upon.

Nature has just one pigment on her pallette with which she produces all the marvellous tints of beauty, and that one pigment is the blood. The shell-like pink beneath the finger mails, the delicate rose of the cheek, the cherry ripeness of the lips, the irridescent brilliance of the cyces are all produced by the blood. Just as the permanence of a beautiful paint-ing will depend upon the purity of the colors with which it is painted, so the permanence of beauty depends on the purity of the blood. Paint, preserve 'beauty. Heauty begins in the blood, Dr. Pierce's Golden Med-ical Discovery is a true beautifier, because it provides for nature that pure blood with which alone she can paint. The use of this medicine will cleanse the skin, heighten the com-nexion, brighten the corr, and give to face and form that radiance of health which is the greatest charm of beauty. When heard in the dead of night, the "blind whistle" has an especially pathetic and mourn-ful sound.

The Skunk's Winter Home. Perhaps the funniest of all preparers for winter is the skunk, says St. Nicho las. And he calmly takes possession and settles down.
