Dixie Quintette Delighted a Large Audience Last Evening.

Opinion was unanimous that the last of the course of concerts given last night at the Wesley Church, was undoubtedly the best. For this, the fourth and last concert, the Dixie Quintette appeared before a large audience, which was held completely by the talent of the colored performin this city.

The group is composed of five dark gentlemen, Messrs, Saunders, John-son, Conley, Joseph and Turner, each the singers immediately had the atten ion of the assembly and that attention was kept on the performers withinstrument.

A most fine reading was given by Mr. Johnson, taken from the works of Paul Lawrence Dunbar. The artist patient endurance. The sad death occurred yesterday responded to an encore with encour-dealt with by Mr. Johnson. Perhaps nothing heard in Brantford has excelled the richness and tone of Mr. Turner's basso voice and his songs, "Poor Black Joe" and "Rocked n the Cradle of the Deep," were intoned with great sympathic feeling. He sings superbly and encores were demanded. 'Sweet Salutee' was the name of a pleasant little song given n English as spoken by the incoming paniard. The closing number, Buckwheat Cakes', was a fine effort and upheld the reputation already established, of the Quintette, and giving the audience the best of good wishes the artists brught their performance to a close and the most successful concert of the season was over.

To Discuss Plans

There will be a meeting this afternoon of the railway committee and the board of works at the city hall, when the question of raising Lorne oridge will be discussed.

ple romaining in a sleeplike trance for several years, these trances being often caused from injuries to the head, but no one has had so long a sleep as a woman named Caroline Allison, who lives in the little island of Okuo, off the coast of Sweden. The sleeper o' Okuo was born in 1861; she was a perfectly normal child, and for the first fourteen years of her life s; e was strong and healthy. She did not go to work till just before her 14th birthday. One day she came home complaining of toothache, and went to bed. Soon afterwards she fell into a deep trance, which lasted from 1875 unil 1907, a period of 32 years. While in this state she did not seem to see or hear, nor did sh. show any trace of feeling, for though her arms were pricked with pins, needles, and other sharp instrumen che was not once observed to wince. Only once or twice did she seem to wake from her lethargy. On one occasion in response to a cry from her mother, she moved her lips as if to try and speak. When her mother died Caroline must have been conscious of the fact, for she burst in tears, though there was no other change in her condition. Two years later, when her brother was drowned, she also had a fit of weeping. For thirty years and more her only nouris' ment consisted of two cupfuls of milk a day.

After the ceath of her brother she was left to the care of a housekeepe and then gradual signs of awakening intelligence began to cawn. Once she was left alone for several hours with food near her, and the food was seen to have gradually disappeared. There doubt that her trance had been broken. A few months later she regained conscioueness, asking for her mother. She did not recognize her brothers at all, for she only re-membered tlem as tiny boys. Gradually she regained possession of Ler faculties, until, at the age of 46, she had completely recovered from her trance, being in perfect health and well and hearty in every way.

She only remembers her early life, but nothing that happened during her long illness.

The Dignity of the Hammer. "By hammer and hand all arts do stand," was the ancient motto of mechanics' guilds or associations.

Physiognomy.

Physiognomy-the art or science of telling a man's character from the cut of his face—is very old. The first systematic treatise on the sub-ject is that attributed to Aristotle. The first printed works on the subject came out in 1470, since which time innumerable books on physiog-nomy have appeared. As to the comparative merits of physiognomy and phrenology, it is perhaps not too much to say that, as a key to character, the former beats the latter "all
