KING HUMBERT KILLED Shot Through the Heart While Entering His Carriage.

Monza, Italy, Monday, July 30.—King Humbert has been assassinated. He was shot here last evening by a man named Angelo Bressi, of Prato, and died in a few minutes.

The King had been attending a distribution of prizes in connection with a gymnastic competition, which took place about ten o'clock. He had just entered his carriage, with his aide-de-camp, amid the cheers of the crowd, when he was struck by three revolver shots fired in quick succession. One pierced the heart of his majesty, who fell back and expired in a few minutes. The assassin was immediately arrested, and was with some difficulty saved from the fury of the populace. He gave his name as Angelo Bressi, describing himself, of Prato, in Tuscany.

PRINCE OF NAPLES AWAY.
Rome, Monday, July 30, 4.30 a. m.—The news of the terrible event did not arrive here until after midnight. Signor Saraceno, the premier, immediately summoned a meeting of the cabinet, and the ministers will start at the earliest possible moment for Monza. The Prince and Princess of Naples are on board the Yela, yachting in the Levant. Signor Saraceno has left for Monza.

HE WAS AN ANARCHIST.
London, July 30.—Angelo Bressi, the assassin of King Humbert, according to a special despatch from Rome, dated today, is an anarchist.

HUMBERT'S CAREER.
Humbert IV., king of Italy, the eldest son of the late King Victor Emmanuel, was born March 14, 1844. The youthful heir to the throne was closely connected with the movement for the unification of Italy, which followed the events of 1859. He took part in the work of reorganizing the ancient kingdom of the two Sicilies. When the war between Prussia and Austria was imminent, Prince Humbert was despatched to Paris to ascertain the sentiments of the French government in reference to the alliance between Italy and Prussia. On the outbreak of hostilities, he hastened to take the field; obtained the command of a division of Gen. Caldini's army with the title of lieutenant general, and was present at the disastrous battle of Custoza (June 23, 1866), where, it is said, he performed prodigies of valor. On April 22, 1868, he married, at Turin, his cousin, the Princess Marguerite Marie Therese Jeanne of Savoy, daughter of the late Duke Ferdinand of Genoa, brother of King Victor Emmanuel. This union resulted in the birth of a son at Naples, Nov. 11, 1869, who received the names of Victor Emmanuel Ferdinand Mary Januarius, and the title of Prince of Naples. After the seizure of Rome by the Italian troops in 1870, Prince Humbert and the Princess Marguerite took up their residence in the Eternal City. He succeeded to the throne on the death of his father, Jan. 9, 1878. As he was entering Naples, Nov. 17, 1878, a man named Giovanni Passanante, approached the royal carriage and attempted to assassinate his majesty with a pistol. The king escaped with a slight scratch, but Signor Cairoli, the prime minister, who was with him, was wounded rather badly in the thigh. When the would-be assassin was condemned to death, Humbert commuted his sentence to imprisonment at hard labor. During the cholera epidemic he exposed himself freely in his endeavors to alleviate the sufferings of the sick and dying. By these and other actions of kindness, the young king won the affections of the Italian people.

CHINA HOLDING THEM AS HOSTAGES.

If the Allies Advance the Legationaries in Peking Will all be put to Death—That is the Threat Made

London, July 30.—The Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Express, telegraphing yesterday, says: A new imperial edict promulgated this evening urgently orders all viceroys and provincial governors to endeavor to negotiate peace with the powers whose ministers are "held as hostages pending the result of the overtures for the abandonment of hostilities against China." The viceroys are also commanded to guard their territories vigilantly against attack and to prevent, by all means in their power, the advance of the foreign troops, especially along the Yang Tse Kiang. The decree says that the officials will answer for their lives any failure to execute these orders. Commands are also given that not a single foreigner shall be allowed to escape from the interior, where there are still fully 2,000 Europeans connected with missionary work in isolated stations.

LI KEPT THIS BACK.
When the governor of Shantung communicated to the consuls the imperial decree of July 24, he omitted important passages addressed to Li Hung Chang. "It is signified inadvisable to kill all the ministers, but it is equally unwise to send them to Tien Tsin. It will be much wiser to keep the survivors at Peking as hostages. You are commanded to hasten to Peking. You are incurring imperial displeasure by delay. You have been appointed viceroy of Chi Li because of your military experience you will successfully lead the imperial armies against the foreigners in Chi Li, which Yu Lu, the present viceroy, is unable to do, owing to his ignorance of military affairs."

Li Hung Chang replied to this edict asking to be allowed to retire on account of his age.

AN AMERICAN INTRIGUE.
An astounding American intrigue has been revealed to the consuls here in the shape of a skillful attempt to get the maritime customs placed in the hands of an American missionary, who, although he was an active ally of Sheng in the latter's endeavors to hoodwink the world with regard to events in Peking, was supported by the American officials in his claim to the appointment of inspector-general.

Sheng now admits that he had telegrams since July 19 announcing that every foreigner in Pao Ting Fu was murdered, including 40 British, French and American missionaries and announcing also that two French Jesuits and 1,000 converts have been massacred at Kwang Ping Fu, on the borders of Shantung and Chi Li. A majority of the consuls favor strong measures against Sheng's duplicity.

Local officials assert that the Italian priests murdered in Hu Nan were wrapped in cotton which had been soaked with kerosene and were slowly roasted to death. It is believed that all foreigners in Chi Li have by this time been massacred, and the wave of massacre is spreading toward Ning Po and Hong Chow, from which point 30 English and American missionaries are endeavoring to escape in boats down the river. Officials here anticipate a general rising along the Yang Tse Kiang about Aug. 1.

TUNG THREAT.
Berlin, July 30.—The Chinese legation in Berlin has received a message from Sheng, director-general of railways and telegraphs, saying that he has received a despatch from Peking announcing that Gen. Tung Fuh Siang threatens to kill all the members of the legations if the international forces advance upon Peking.

Evidently the legation is embarrassed by the receipt of this despatch, as the Chinese minister has not communicated it to the German government.

The legation has cabled to viceroy of Nankin requesting him to try to get information as to whether the widow of Baron von Ketteler, the murdered German minister, is still alive.

boat, Capt. Mann, in the "Clarence," and Commodore Riddell in the "Beatrice," set out for the scene of the accident. Captain J. W. Mann sighted the body in the water, but was unable to mark the spot, as he had no anchor on board. Shortly afterwards the afternoon storm came up and the yachts were forced to run back to the piers.

In the evening Capt. Fellows went out with the Arthur and three or four row boats. The search for the body was kept up till dark, but without success. The crew of the "Scorpion," a trim little yacht from Erie, Pa., which put into the Eau on Saturday night, lent their grappling irons, and also several from the boat assisted in the search for the body. The search is being continued today.

Carey's father was telegraphed for and he in company with Alex. Floyd, Harry Murphy and Roy Chrysler, reached Rondeau in the afternoon, coming from Chatham on a handcar, and joined in the search.

A GAMING PARTY.
Saturday evening, four of the employees of the "Beaver" Mills went out to spend the Sunday. They took with them a tent which they pitched near Captain Fellows' boat house. The members of the party were Hugh Murphy, George Hibbert, James Kerr and the drowned man. They got up early Sunday morning and hiring Capt. Fellows' sail boat went out for a little pleasure ride. Carey was a good swimmer. He claimed to have swum across the Detroit River several times. The rest of the story is best told in Mr. Murphy's own words:

"Carey expressed his intention of going in for a swim, and undressed in the boat. He was a good swimmer, we knew, as he had been in the night before with us. Fred asked how fast the boat was going, and then before we could come up into the wind, he jumped off the bow of the boat. This swung the nose around and before we could come about we were some 50 yards away. Carey swam for a while and then he shouted, 'Good-bye, boys,' threw up his hands and went down. We made all speed to the spot, but we couldn't find any trace of him. The weeds were bad at this point and he must have got tangled in them."

SECOND SON DROWNED.
Mr. Carey, son, took the loss of his son very much to heart. This is the second of his boys to lose their lives by drowning. In 1883 his eldest son, Robert Alexander Carey, was drowned at Pikeville in his 10th year. The lad was fishing with some other boys when he fell into the river.

Frederick Henry Carey, who lost his life yesterday at the Eau, was 23 years of age. He was night packer at the Beaver Mills, and his employers speak in the highest terms of him being a good workman, and always obliging and industrious.

DROWNING FATALITY AT RONDEAU.

Fred Carey Plunged off a Boat to Swim and Lost His Life

Sunday morning about ten o'clock, Fred Henry Carey, son of Robert Carey, Harwich, just outside the city, was drowned in the Eau, off Lone Tree Point. Hugh Murphy, James Kerr, George Hibbert and Carey went out for a sail, Mr. Murphy having the tiller. When about three miles from the piers, Carey said he was going to have a swim. He undressed and jumped off the bow of the boat while it was running under full way. Before his companions could round up and come about Carey was 50 yards away. The boat put back, but before they got near him, the young man cried out, "The weeds have got me, I am going down; good-bye," threw up his hands and sank and never rose again. The unfortunate man's friends remained in the vicinity of the scene an hour, making every effort to attract the attention of the yachts that were out in the Eau, but their efforts were of no avail. They then marked the spot as well as they could, and rowed to the piers where they told of the drowning. Capt. McCormick in his
