Did you ever have a headache that made Sunday feel like wash-day?
Q Perhaps you have been drinking inferior teas.
Q No, you don't need medicine—all you need is a package of Grand Mogul Tea.
Q This tea combs the kinks out of the nerves. Why? Because it is rich in theine (the flavoring essence) which is just concentrated sunbeams. Grown on the high table lands of Ceylon, this tea contains the elements of a pure nerve-food.

Grand Mogul Tea

Q There are no other teas "just as good" as Grand Mogul. 25c, 30c, 40c and 50c per pound.
Q Sold only in packages lined with air-tight paper. Premium coupons on each package. The cost of these coupons is not taken out of the tea but is simply a part of the advertising appropriation.

The burnished plumage of the peacock owes its brilliancy and splendor to a healthy condition. Let the bird be sickly, and the plumage droops and grows dull. There is no exception in nature to the rule that beauty depends on health.

Women who see their beauty waning rarely associate the external change with failure of the womanly health. They do not understand the close relation of the general physical health to the health of the delicate womanly organism, until after being cured of womanly diseases by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription they find the color returning to the cheek and the flesh to the body.

"Favorite Prescription" establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"Several years ago I was very poorly," writes Mrs. May Kelley, of Sylvia, Kans. "so weak I could hardly walk across the floor, and at times suffered severely. I took two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and got well and healthy—gained twelve pounds in two months and was the picture of health. Your medicine have cured me. Almost everybody I meet says, 'You look so much better than you have for several years; you look well now.'"

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a lady's laxative. Nothing equals them for gentleness and thoroughness.

Bird Elocution.

The blue jay is a great elocutionist and gives utterance to many unlooked for remarks, but the one most often heard in the woods relates to the possession of a "chee-tidley-unk." Just exactly what sort of creature or thing this is no one can tell, but whenever I am in the woods I hear the jays exclaim "Chee-tidley-unk—got him," to which the meadow lark in the pasture clearing replies, "Oh-so-cheat," with a most sarcastic drawl on the "so" and an infection on the "cheat." As a rule, the meadow lark says his say while perched on a fence post, and he talks with his mouth wide open. There are a lot of little people in the thickets who are always in such a hurry and talk so fast that it is difficult to tell what they say. There is that gayly colored little fellow the red start, crying, "T-wet-wee-when-when-whissett," and the dainty summer yellow bird, who has something to say in the same line and much in the same manner. What he wants is wheat, and although he never eats it, his constant cry is, "Wheat, wheat, wheat, wheat, wheat, wheat."—Dan Beard in Recreation.

Fools All the Doctors.

"There is a hale and hearty looking old chap walking about town," remarked a New York physician lately, "who for years has had a complication of diseases which make him most interesting to the profession. The ailments of which he shows undeniable symptoms are rarely seen in combination, and the state of his inner workings is a matter for speculation among the doctors who have examined him."

"The old fellow himself loves to tell that when he first asked medical advice some twenty years ago the physician, a famous practitioner in those days, wrote across the diagnosis he had put down on paper: 'This man cannot live thirty days. I should like to be present at the autopsy.' That great doctor has been dead these many years, and the dying patient still smiles cheerfully and seeks a cure for his malady. Queer, isn't it?"

Crockett and the Mules.

When Davy Crockett sat in the national legislature as a representative of the state of Texas he had many clashes with men of more education, but less wit, than himself. It is told of him that one day while standing in front of his hotel on Pennsylvania avenue a swarm of mules trotted by under the custody of an overseer from one of the stock farms in Virginia. A congressman from Boston, who was standing near by, attracted Crockett's attention to the unusual sight, saying:

"Hello there, Crockett. Here's a lot of your constituents on parade. Where are they going?"

The celebrated hunter looked at the animals with a quizzical glance, and then, turning to the other, said quietly, but with great emphasis, "They are going to Massachusetts to teach school."

The Kitchen in China.

"In China everything seems to us to go by contrary, and the front part of the house is devoted to the kitchen," says a missionary. "Upon entering the house at the front door one is introduced into the culinary department, and so important an adjunct to a household is the kitchen that the population of towns and cities throughout the empire is reckoned by the number of kitchens within the walls. Brick chimneys in China are a thing unheard of, and the smoke from the fire is allowed to roll lazily along the ceiling out into the court or through an aperture made in the roof. The kitchen fire is usually built in a mud stove, for any other kind of a stove is unheard of, among the poor classes."

The Rajah's Guest.

It is the custom in Sarawak that the rajah's house shall be open to his subjects at any time. That same Kavanagh chief from Baram who visited me, Dian, by name, presented himself one night at Astana when the rajah had a dinner party. His appearance, clad simply in a chawat (waistcoat), with five followers in equally full dress, among a dozen people conventionally attired was a piquant reminder that I was "east of Suez." Dian pulled a pipe and I was going to say from his pocket—lit up and bore his part gallantly in the social amenities of the evening.—London Express.

Cutting a Hailstorm.

During a severe hailstorm in the Himalayas our native gardener brought out a hatchet and placed it edge upward in the garden to "cut the storm," as he said. Catlin, in his "North American Indians," describes a ceremony of the Mandan Indians in which hatchets and edged tools are sacrificed to the "spirits of the waters" to avert a recurrence of the great deluge, of which the tribe has the tradition.—Notes and Queries.

She Might Wish.

"I have always wished my wife to wish something for herself for every birthday since we have been married." "What does she wish generally?" "Well, the last fifteen times she has been wishing for a piano."

Grammatical Discussion.

Young Arduppe—Is it right to say "deem" or "consider." Miss Arrees? Miss Arrees—Oh, both are allowable. For instance, I deem you a nice young man, but I cannot consider you at all.

Court Jews.

Court Jews were the officially appointed bankers and money lenders of European rulers down to Napoleon's times, after which most of them became merged in the great business houses which deal nowadays with international finance. One of the founders of the house of Rothschild was court Jew at Frankfurt toward the close of the eighteenth century. It was with him that the elector of Hesse-Cassel deposited £1,000,000 when the first Napoleon was threatening his dominions, and the way in which the sum was protected and restored when Europe was settled again first made the name of Rothschild famous in finance. Up to this period Jews had no rights as citizens in most German states or in Austria, and the office of court Jew was necessary to give them standing.—London Globe.

The Banshee.

The banshee is the domestic ghost or spirit attached to certain Irish or highland Scottish households and is supposed to take an interest in the welfare of the family generally, and especially to wail at the death of any one of its members. The banshee is pictured in Irish folklore under the form of a little old woman with long hair, which she continually combs, at the same time keeping up an incessant weeping and wailing. The incident of the comb is exactly similar to the legend of the German lorelei, a spirit which sings, while the banshee weeps, as an accompaniment. The proud distinction of possessing a private banshee is allowed only to families of pure Milesian stock. The word is derived from the Gaelic ban-sith, a woman fairy.
