

"PIGS IS PIGS"

Editor Observer: As a resident of Hartland I wish to call your attention to a small matter of some slight importance. Last winter the local government, in order to encourage production, agreed to furnish a certain number of pigs to "pig clubs" to be started by the boys of the province, and a club was formed by the boys on both sides of the river, known as the Hartland and Somerville club.

The local government did its part and sent six pigs to this club—but then Hartland got it in the neck, for every pig went to Somerville and all the Hartland boys got was to hear then squeal with fright when they realized they were being hauled across Hartland bridge.

I claim this is not a fair deal for Hartland. Somerville has had the best end of everything in the past. Their people attend the town churches and school; they have the privilege of looking across to the town whenever they like, and have a beautiful suspension bridge to travel on. Not satisfied with this they scoop up all the pigs belonging to Hartland and Somerville club and hauled them to the west side of the west side of the river.

It is even said that of the six pigs that only two were given to Somerville boys and that the other four are clubbed together in a dug-out belonging to a prominent Somerville man.

However as far as that is concerned the Somerville people can fight it out among themselves, and I believe that is the way they settle their disputes, and let the best man win—and hold the pigs.

Hurrah! How's This

Cincinnati authority says corn dry up and lift out with fingers.

Hospital records show that every time you cut a corn you invite lock jaw or blood poison, which is needless, says a Cincinnati authority, who tells you that a quarter ounce of a drug called freemane can be obtained at life cost from the drug store but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.

You simply apply a few drops of freemane on a tender, aching corn and soreness is instantly relieved. Shortly the entire corn can be lifted out, root and all, without pain.

This drug is sticky but dries at once and is claimed to just stick up any corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. If your wife wears high heels she will be glad to know of this.

The arduous work of transferring the printing plant of The Observer to its new quarters on Main street will, the manager sincerely hopes, have been accomplished by the time the next issue appears. This will be done without the paper being delayed for an hour, but it will mean an immense amount of work on the already overburdened staff. Editors of the job and advertising departments are asked to kindly have patience if their work progresses rather slowly, and readers ought not mind if for a week or two news features are abbreviated somewhat. The change is wholly for the ultimate betterment of the service to the public.

Playing Safe

"These life guards are a great protection," said the matter of fact young man.

"Surely," buzzed the coy girl, "a strong swimmer like you has no fear of drowning."

"None whatever. But if a girl stabs her toe and imagines she's going to sink it's better for her to be saved by a professional rescuer. She isn't so likely to get her gratitude mixed up with her sentiments."—Washington Star.

He Was Surprised Himself

Young Horwood was a newcomer at the beach resort. One morning old Josephine met him and, stopping, said abruptly:

"See here, sir, how did you dare to kiss my daughter last night on the dark plain?"

"Well, by George, sir," replied the young man, "now that I've seen her by daylight I wonder myself."—New Orleans Times-Picayune.

"Cravings." That may be so, but my wife seems to be trying to get along with just a little less.—Judge.
