MARKETS AND FINANCE

Tuesday, May 4.—Business on Central market this morning was slow—not much being offered, and not many buyers. Prices did not change to any great extent, although beef was very firm and found a good sale. Live hogs were a little higher. Not much wheat is being brought in, but the price remains unchanged. TORONTO MARKETS

LIVE STOCK MARKET.

Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 65 car loads, composed of 1436 cattle, 79 hogs, 11 sheep, 35 calves.

The quality generally was good, although some of the dealers stated that there were not as many of the good to choice butchers as there was one week ago.

Trade was good, and all the butchers' cattle was sold at about the same quotations as were paid at the close of last week.

Exporters—Export steers sold from $5.50 to $6.05, one extra quality load being sold by McDonald & Halligan at the latter price. Export bulls sold at $4.25 to $5 per cwt.

Butchers—Butchers' cattle sold well, fully as high as the best quotations on Thursday last week. Prime picked lots brought from $5.30 to $5.50; loads of good, $5.10 to $5.35; medium, $4.75 to $5; common, $4.25 to $4.65; cows, $3.50 to $4.75; bulls, $4 to $4.25.

Feeders—A few short-keep feeders were bought, weighing 1150 lbs. each, at $5.10 to $5.35 per cwt.

Milkers and Springers—Fred Rowntree bought four milkers and springers at $45 to 52 each.

Veal Calves—Receipts were light, prices for the bulk ranged from $3 to $5.50 per cwt., but a few of good to choice quality brought $6 to $6.50 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs—Export ewes were quoted at $4.50 to $5.25; rams, $3.50 to $4.25; yearling lambs, grain fed, $7.25 to $8 per cwt.; common yearlings, $5 to $6 per cwt.; spring lambs, $3 to $5.50 each, with something of good weight and choice quality worth more money.

Hogs—All kinds of prices were quoted. H. P. Kennedy quoted $7.15 f.o.b. cars, at country points, and $7.40 fed and watered. E. Puddy bought 6 hogs from a farmer's wagon at $7.60 per cwt.

MARKET EXPERTS TALK.

Topics says:

New York, May 4.—A further sharp advance is to be expected following decision with liberal investment buying. It would not be well to buy on indiscriminately small bulges. B. O. is about the best coaler of a higher grade. We look for a much better price for stocks like Penna, Atch, Hills and Harriman stocks, L. N., and C. P. R. Earnings reports are strong bull arguments.

Denver, WZ, Tex, Alton, KSU and KT stocks are in a position to be advanced sharply at any time. For the long pull we would buy Con. Gas and Penna shares. Colo. Southern is in a position to do much better. Much is likely to be made of Readings concerted earnings, it will sell higher than at any time in its history, but it will not do to buy it on a small margin. Would wait for breaks before buying Wheat for turns.

Baring says:—Again I have been correct in predicting a strong market for Reading yesterday. Rg. will probably go to 165 on this move. On any reaction of a point or two it should be an excellent purchase. The decision in the Commodity Clause was distinctly favorable to Reading. It allows railroads to own stock in coal mining enterprises just as they have done, but does not allow them to mine coal themselves.

Keep long of A.F. PA will work up to 145. O. W. will sell at 55. Ice directors will meet soon and increase the dividend, it should be bought around 40. R. I. and R. Z. are both a splendid purchase at the market. They all are going much higher. If they break this afternoon do not be afraid to buy all active stocks. I expect some very bullish news on N. P. and G. Q. soon.

Summary—American stocks in London, heavy, 1-8 to 1-2 above parity. U. S Court of Appeals reverses 33,000 fine on Atchison. Newspapers recognize substantial victory for railroads in commodity case decision yesterday.

Turkish situation is improving. Southern Railways March showing is best in two days.—Dow, Jones & Co.

Get long of PA, hold BO, and remember this RG is going much higher. Copper will go higher.—Joseph.

London Copper Market. Futures decline 1s 3d. Spot decline 2s 6d.

Cars—Wheat 10, Corn 164, Oats 250.

It isn't every man who has the happy faculty of being able to loaf and look busy.

When a woman begins to feel that she has thrown herself away by marrying a worthless man he may feel that it's a toss up.

KINRADE INQUEST.

discovered it for themselves by intercepting this letter?

Yes.

In one of these letters when Baum's first letter arrived you say your family saw the letter come in, questioned you as to what it was and you told them it had nothing to do with any love business and was only chit-chat and you proceeded to say if they knew what that letter was and the character of it there would be trouble?

Yes.

"And while you were doing that your mother intercepted a letter and knew what was going on?

She didn't tell me about it.

But it was true?

Yes.

I noticed in another letter you say your people are constantly urging you to marry Mr. Wright?

I kept it up for some time, it was only a joke.

Do you wish the jury to believe that the letter of Feb. 10th, in which you told Mr. Baum your love was at an end, was a joke?

No.

I observe now, Mr. Coroner that it is 20 minutes after 10 and I am ready to go on or adjourn, just as it is convenient. There has been some criticism of the length of the sessions.

What would you desire, Miss Kinrade? would you prefer to continue this examination, or have an adjournment at this point?

I would like to get through if I can.

Just as you desire.

How long will you be?

I can't tell.

I would like it continued.

Then, Miss Kinrade, will your tell us from whom those flowers came that were received by you at the theatre?

I don't remember.

What was the reason of having suspicions if the name was on the card?

I don't know.

What was the name?

I don't remember.

The persons who were about you at the time inform me you were in a great state of agitation.

I thought it was Miss Elliott's brother.

And what was his name?

Claude.

Any other name?

I can't remember.

Can you remember an occasion when a box of sweets came to the theatre?

Yes.

Do you remember that you were thrown into a great state of terror then?

No.

Do you remember telling those about you that they were poisoned sweets?

I may as a joke.

Did you then go and peep through the curtain to sweep the audience and see if you saw your enemy, whom you feared?

Mr. Staunton arose and protested. He said that it was an improper question.

Mr. Staunton's interruption proved a sharp clash. He charged that Mr. Blackstock repeated only half of the replies given by the witness, conveying a wrong impression to those who could not hear her answers.

I defy any one to say they heard me say the witness said she had an enemy, was Mr. Blackstock's warm retort.

All right, read this question, said Mr. Staunton.

The stenographer did so.

"That shows," said Mr. Blackstock, that the statement made is absolutely falsified like a lot of other remarks made about this case from the same source."

"Then, Mr. Theatrical, you don't know what the English language means," was the sarcastic barb thrown by Mr. Staunton, and Mr. Blackstock smashed back in sledghammer reply his remark creating laughter. He said. Then I shall certainly never learn it from Lynch-Staunton."

"Did you go and peep through to see some one you feared?" asked Mr. Blackstock after the storm subsided.

"That's better," said Lawyer Staunton.

Miss Kinrade said she might have peeped through the curtain to see if she could see who sent the candies, because she did not like eating them not knowing where they came from.

What was Miss Elliott doing lurking down there all these months?

I don't know what her business was.

When you were here before you said you thought she was down there just to be near you?

I thought that was the reason.

Did you see her after you took up your residence in Portsmouth in May?

Yes.

Where?

She and Mr. Warburton came to the theatre one night.

Did you introduce them to Mr. and Mrs. Butler?

Yes.

Mr. and Mrs. Butler tell me they never saw Miss Elliott?

I do not remember any more than that.

Is that the only occasion on which you saw them?

I think I met them at Norfolk one morning.

Was that the morning Mr. Baum saw you with the blonde lady?

I do not know.

Can you tell me who that lady was?

No.

Miss Elliott used to defray your expenses?

Generally.

You called her Aunt Marion?

She had told me to.

Tell me, is that a picture of Miss Elliott? said Mr. Blackstock, holding up a paper.

It does not look like her.

Is it her?

No (very positively).

Did you have a photograph of her?

I asked her for one, but did not get it.

Miss Elliott, you say, was angry with you for going to the theatre?

And Mr. Warburton, too.

And from that time she did not pay your expenses any longer?

No.

Then from the time you went to Virginia Beach until you arrived home Miss Elliott did not pay any of your expenses?

No.

You know it is important that we should ascertain what amount of reliability we can place on your testimony?

Certainly.

And you can tell us no more about Miss Elliott, Mr. Warburton, Mrs. Goldsmith or Mr. Foster?

No.

Can you give us the address of any one of them at any time?

I don't know that I can.

And they are persons with whom you have lived on terms of intimacy, at times, and have carried on correspondence with at least two, and you say you can tell us no more of them?

Yes.

I am instructed there is no choir master in any church in Richmond or Manchester by the name of Foster. I ask you if you can give us any more information about him?

I cannot tell you any more.

Do you know whose remains they were Miss Elliott brought to Philadelphia the time you were going to meet her?

Some cousin of hers.

Man or woman?

Woman.

Young or old woman?

She did not tell me much about that.

And you met her in Philadelphia when she was there with the remains?

Yes.

You told me these flowers might have been from Claude Elliott?

Yes.

Where did he live?

He had gone to England in the summer of 1908.

Then what made you think you met him in Richmond?

I do not know

Where did you meet him before?

In Goderich, I think.

What was he doing then?

I think he was at some college.

Was it Queen's, at Kingston?

I do not know.

That was in the summer of 1907?

Yes.

And when you got a box of flowers in Richmond in 1908, what made you think it was from Claude Elliott?

The first thing I thought was that they were from Miss Elliott's brother.

And he was a man you did not like?

Yes.

And your only explanation is that a man you had not seen for a year, and who had gone to England, might have sent you the flowers?

He was the person I thought of.

You stayed at the Bedford Hotel in Goderich?

Yes, for one week.

The whole length of your stay in Goderich?

I'm not so sure.

Why did you not tell us when you were being examined before, that you stayed at the Bedford?

I did not remember then.

Do you think you were there a week?

From August 1st to 8th.

And nobody was with you at that hotel?

I don't remember.

You don't remember. Was anybody with you in the hotel—anybody living with you?

No.

You were registered alone, without any friend?

Yes.

And when you were here last you had forgotten that?

Yes.

And when you were in the South did you send fictitious reports to the papers of concerts and functions at which you had sang?

I don't remember anything like that.

Did you cut any out yourself?

No. They were sent home. Miss Elliott generally sent me the papers home.

But Miss Elliott came back with you, to Montreal?

She brought them to me.

Where?

To my home.

What, to your home here in Hamilton?

Yes.

Why, Miss Kinrade, this is the first we ever heard of Miss Elliott visiting at your home; none of your family, they tell me, ever met her.

She came when I was alone.

No other member of the family present?

No.

Did you take these newspaper clippings and get them printed in book form?

Yes.

With the knowledge and consent of your family?

Yes.

And those newspaper clippings were accounts of concerts and functions which never took place?

I sang at some of them.

Holding up a book of clippings, Mr. Blackstock asked who was responsible for it compilation. You had them printed for the purpose of using them, did you not?

Yes.

And you took one South and gave it to Mr. Baum?

I took several.

And represented them as reports of events that actually took place?

Some of them.

I am told that at least some of these are reports of functions which never took place?

I sang at Toronto and Hamilton, and those clippings were genuine.

And about Goderich; You were represented as singing in Kincardine on Aug. 7, and you say you were in Goderich at that time—a considerable distance away?

Quite a distance.

Then about this reception at the residence of Mrs. Wells in Norfolk. That is reported to have taken place on May 14, yet you write your father that it was to come off in June, and it had already come off. Can you explain that?

I do not remember.

Miss Elliott was not married to Warburton when you were in the South?

No.

Did you see her when you got back in October?

Yes; they passed through.

Did you tell Mr. Baum that you had a friend across in Norfolk who was about to be married?

I do not remember doing so.

Can you account for Miss Elliott signing herself Elizabeth when her name was Marion?

I think her name was Elizabeth Marion or Marion Elizabeth.

Did you ever hear of Mrs. Caille?

Mrs. Carle?

Mrs. Carle, a Detroit woman?

Yes.

Where did you meet her?

I had seen her at Goderich, I think.

Is that her picture? (holding up a newspaper).

I would not recognize it as such.

Did you see any of these people in Hamilton at any time?

Not that I remember.

Did you ever see Claude Elliott in Hamilton?

Yes.

When?

I met him at MacNab Street Church one night, and he walked home with me.

When was that?

It may have been two or three weeks after I came back from Goderich.

Ever see Mr. Warburton here?

He never was here that I know of.

Do you know a man who went by the name of Mitchell?

There was a Mr. Mitchell in the choir of MacNab.

Was Miss Elliott here after you came back from the South—this last January or February?

No.

Sure?

I am quite sure.

Were you out on the morning of the tragedy?

No.

You know a young woman has said she saw you out that morning. What do you say to that?

Then, Miss Kinrade, did you tell Mr. Baum on one occasion that your sister Ethel had said to you, alluding to Mr. Wright, that you had succeeded in getting rid of one husband, but would not succeed in getting rid of another?

No, indeed.

You have already said you were never married; were you ever engaged to any other person than those mentioned?

No, only Mr. Wright.

Do you remember Mrs. Butler telling you she had heard the report that you were married?

No.

You don't remember it?

No.

Then the statement of the reception given to you by Mr. Wells, of Norfolk, is that correctly stated in the paper?

As far as I know.

In that account it is said a bunch of roses was presented to you by the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wells. They instruct me that they have no son.

It was a mistake, Miss Elliott gave me the flowers.

Is it also a mistake that you wore a rope of pearls?

No. Miss Elliott loaned me the pearls.

Did you intend going back to Virginia this spring?

Did I?

Yes.

No. I had no intention.

How do you account for your brother Earl writing your mother in April last asking if you were going back to Virginia?

I say she is very much mistaken.

You know one witness says she saw your sister Ethel out that day and another said she thought she saw her. What do you say to that?

I say they were mistaken.

Miss Kinrade, is there any explanation you wish to make, any statement of any matter you have been ashamed of, because if you do I give you full opportunity?

None.

You have already told me you understand the necessity of our understanding the degree of reliability that can be placed on your evidence?

Yes.

And you are not surprised that we find it necessary to ask you about your occupation in the South?

Yes, I am a little surprised about it.

When Mr. Blackstock pressed this Mr. Staunton again protested that this was not evidence.

Mr. Blackstock again appealed to the witness to see if she could realize the importance of these questions.

She declared she could not see the necessity of it.

Mr. Staunton once more protested and asked for a ruling.

Mr. Blackstock again afforded the witness an opportunity to make a statement or an explanation of any of the answers she had given, but she declared she had nothing to add.

It was 11.20, and the jury decided to adjourn until 7.30 to-night.

Miss Kinrade stepped briskly out of the box, and hurried out of the court room with her fiance.

Before the jury adjourned Mr. Blackstock said he would require the presence of Miss Kinrade, her mother and father when the inquest was resumed. He requested that they be asked to attend under the Crown subpoena, and Coroner Anderson conformed by officially announcing to the witnesses that they must be on hand to-night.

World's Finest Butter.

The wealthy women who have gone in for dairy farms should take notice of the fact that the butter of Denmark is considered superior to any other in the world, and consequently cast about to find Danish dairy maids. The butter packed in Denmark sells for $1 a pound, and is shipped in air tight and three-pound tins to such warm regions as South America, South Africa, Egypt, India and the East and West Indies, standing the climatic changes perfectly. It is said that no preservatives are used and that the remarkable properties are due sole ly to the care taken in the scientific sterilizing of the milk and cream. It is also maintained that there is no secret process, but, nevertheless, says The New York Tribune, American dairymen who journey to the most famous Danish dairies, and even travellers on pleasure bent, are all refused admission to the butter-packing establishments. The Danish packers import from America 1,000,000 pounds of butter annually, which they press and ship to the ports mentioned, the same butter not standing three trips when sent directly from this country.

The Power of a Tune.

"After the siege of the Pekin Legations, a dozen Russian soldiers, bent on loot and outrage, raided the house in which one of my band-boys lived with his young mother and beautiful sister," said Sir Robert Hart recently, at a dinner at the Authors' Club, London. "The boy snatched his violin and played the Russian National Anthem, and the booted soldiers stood to attention. They they left the house without molesting any one."
