The floor, the wall, the ceinings are all procelain, the floor and room the form of tiles, the latter having open to the form of tiles, the latter having open to the form of tiles, the latter having open to the form of tiles, the latter having open to the form of tiles, the latter having open to the form of tiles, the latter having and the remaind parts it is embossed and colored. The whole is perfect in form, coloring and lustre. The pans were tall of the richest milk, covered with the yellowest conting of cream. The obliging mand gave us as much as we vered with the yellowest coating of cream. The obliging maid gave us as much us we sould drisk. Around the walls, beautifully painted upon china, were likenesses of all the royal family, the children represented in the of the quiet, beantiful scenes of cou

AMUSING INCIDENT.—Mike, a Hartford housies, was ordered-to saddle one of the houses and bring him to the door. After considerable delay, Mike at length led out the gallant steed, bur with the punnel of the saddle turned unambitiously tailward. The proprietor shortly appeared, and after the convalision of laughter at the grotesque appearance of the rig had sufficiently subsided to enable him to speak, he asked Mike it that was the way the put on saddles in the old was the way the put on saddles in the old county. A sudden gleam of intelligence shot across the honest face of the Irishman, as be bursts out with the air of one who had incovered account of the saddless o
