

Fashion's Fancies.

Chestnut is a favorite shade of brown. Zouave jackets are among the coming styles. Suits of rifle green, tailor-made, will be much worn. Cloth bonnets will be worn with cloth dresses. Silver white is the new shade for bridal dresses. Sleeves have a decided tendency to fullness at the top. Seal brown suits, tailor-finished, are very fashionable. Fur trimmed pelisses will be worn as the season advances. Flamingo pink is a new shade deep enough to be called red. Bison hair cloth is the fabric destined to supersede camel's hair. Pointed or tapering crowns for bonnets are no longer fashionable. New round hats have stiff, high crowns and straight or rolling brims. Tapestry or brocaded silks form parts of the richest velvet costumes. Large balls and spots are the newest designs for Oriental and Spanish laces. Parisians are combining gray with crimson, yellow, green, blue and rose color. The long Newmarket coat and the Newmarket bonnet, a jockey style, go together. Greys, browns and indefinite shades of blue or blue-green bid fair to be very popular. Many new buttons glitter like jewels, being made of colored pearl and colored metal. Combinations in two materials are largely employed in new fall and winter costumes. Plain plaited and gathered skirts will be more worn by fashionable women than any other. All drapery, both at the front and back of the coming costume, is exceedingly bouffant. Ribbons, laces and natural flowers are the ornaments that have taken the place of jewelry. Grey and brown in various shades are the favorite colors for the new felt hats and bonnets. For travelling and utility suits for fall wear, checked and hair-lined flannels will be much used. Embroidered ladies' cloth costumes will be as popular, and almost as costly, as those of velvet. Astrachan plush and beaver in its natural color are the preferred trimmings for winter wraps. Winter cloaks will be very long, high on the shoulders, fitting close, and with small ottoman sleeves. The figures in the richest and most fashionable black velvet brocades are outlined and veined with jet. Dresses of cashmere and silk remain popular, continue in style. From across the sea come rumors of the decline of colored hosiery and the supremacy of white balbriggans again. Buttons are small and bullet-shaped, plain jet, metal or pearl, or set with brilliants or cameo, and with painted centers. Thin nets and gauzes, with heavy embroidered figures in chenille of jet, are the popular fabrics for the new evening toilet. In velvet costumes the skirt is no longer of broadened velvet, but the figured material is used to make the long basque or Louis Quinze coat, and the skirt is plain.

Met His Match.

Anderson, the wizard, met a Scotchman who stole a march on him after the following pattern: "Enter Scotchman—'I say, are you Professor Anderson?' " "Yes, sir, at your service." "Well, you're a smart man, and I'm sumthin' at a trick, too, you know." "Ah, indeed, and what tricks are you up to, sir?" asked the Professor, amused at the simple fellow. "Well, I can take a shilling and change it into a gold piece." "Oh, that's a mere alight-of-hand trick; I can do that, too." "No, you can't. I'd like to see you try." "Well, hold out your hand with a shilling in it. This is your shilling, is it?" "Sure, its nothing else." "Hold on to it, presto! change. Now, open your hand." "Scotty opened his fist, and there was a gold sovereign on his palm." "Well, you did it, I declare; much obliged to you!" and the Scotchman turned to go out. "Stay," said the Professor, "you may leave my sovereign." "Yours! want's that my shilling, and didn't you turn it into this ere yellow thing, eh? Good-bye!" And as he left the room he was heard to say—"I guess there ain't anything green about this child."

Another Witness.

A. Chard, of Sterling, testifies to the efficacy of Haysard's Yellow Oil, which is used for a badly injured knee joint. It is one of the great household remedies for inflammation, pain, soreness, lameness, etc., and is used both internally and externally with infallible success.

The Boundary Line.

Between comfort and discomfort is often very slight. Have you rheumatism or neuralgia? or are you a sufferer from obscure nervous pains? Why suffer longer? You can purchase for 10 cents a bottle of that king of pain—Folsom's Nerve-Liniment, or you can get a large bottle for 25 cents. It cures promptly. It is sure, pleasant to take, and never fails to cure all kinds of pain. Don't wait an hour, but send to Wilson's drug store and get a trial bottle. Nerve-Liniment is the sure pain cure.

They all tell the same story. W. Thompson, jeweler, Delhi, suffered for years from Dyspepsia, got no relief until he used Dr. Carson's Stomach Bites. He says it was just the medicine I needed. It has cured me.

TO PRESERVE THE TEETH.

A Few Plain Facts and Good Advice by a Dentist. Doctor, are not a great many teeth ruined by having the enamel worn off with tooth powders? No; that is a most pernicious fallacy. I wish all this world knew the truth, that the enamel of a tooth cannot be worn off with a brush and any kind of tooth powder; not if it were scrubbed for five hours a day for 150 years. More teeth are ruined by a fear of scouring them than by all other causes put together. The best way in the world to preserve a tooth is to keep it highly polished; then no foreign substance adhere to it. These adhesions and gradual rustlings are what destroy teeth. If you wish to keep a piece of steel polished, if you do not, it will rust away. It is precisely the same with a tooth. The only danger that can arise from the use of the hardest tooth powders is that they may injure the gums. Don't ever use charcoal or salt, for, while they are excellent for cleaning, they are ruinous to the gums. Charcoal is full of the gums or cut into them and cause trouble; and grains of salt, you know, have very sharp edges and corners. Cattle bone tooth powders are the best, I think. But by all means keep the teeth clean and highly polished. That reminds me, continued the dentist; a handsome and well-dressed lady came here yesterday and wished her teeth fixed up. I looked into her mouth and saw about the foulest chasm I ever gazed into. Why, it was worse than a sewer. I told her I would give her a prescription, and when she had used it thoroughly for a week I would see her again. The prescription was for a tooth-brush and a box of powder. Doubtless she was vexed when the druggist compounded it, but it was what she most needed nevertheless. I have heard that many medicines given by the physicians injure the teeth. Is that true, doctor? No, not to any considerable extent. I'll tell you where that idea comes from. You know, when a person's sick he isn't so apt to clean his teeth as when he is well. That is one trouble; but a greater is that the teeth are not used much. Sick persons eat but little, usually; and what they do eat is often in the form of pastes or gruels that do not demand much chewing. Now, the teeth are like any other part of the person; if they are unused they become soft and more subject to the decaying influences. Put your arm in a sling for a month and the muscles and whole member will become soft and flabby. So with a tooth that is not used for some time. Now, when a tooth is growing softer each day, and it is not being cleaned as often as it was when it needed cleaning less, of course it rapidly fails. This is why the medicines are charged with the destruction.

How to Improve the Complexion.

Is it true, asked a New York Sun reporter of a well known physician in 38th street, that girls are now drinking goats milk to improve their complexions? Undoubtedly, said the physician promptly; and it is also true that they are indulging in lettuce juice, asparagus, cream, glycerine, camphor, poultices, arsenic, patent nostrums of every variety, and chemical masks. They try everything on earth except the fundamental requisite. I have had an extensive experience in treating cases of skin trouble with women, and am still surprised at the ease with which they are fooled by all sorts of quack medicines and devices. Last spring I had a girl under treatment whose stomach was almost ruined. She had been taking an internal compound, sold in Fourteenth street, which was expected to make her arms plump! It was not an idiot, either. Another patient of mine excited my ire a short time ago. She was the most speak-like and ghostly-looking specimen I ever saw. Her skin was a dead white, and her eyelids were crusted and violently red. She was quite satisfied with her color—or lack of it—but wanted me to take away the color from her eyelids. I frightened her into confessing that she had been consuming quantities of a compound said to have been stolen from one of the beauties of the sultan's harem, and then began to clear her blood. But do you think goat's milk improves the complexion? My dear sir, don't you understand that none of these things improves the complexion directly? It may be possible to improve the general health so much by the use of goats' milk that the complexion is benefited, but that will only follow where goats' milk is suited to the system. Very many people don't drink milk at all. Rubbing milk on the face is the wildest sort of folly. I will tell you how every woman who reads the Sun may get a good color—by systematic exercise, regular meals and seven hours' sleep every night. Sounds kind of ancient doesn't it? A little jaded. Well, it's the only recipe known to us, and it will never fail. Let any woman try it for herself and see.

A Wrong opinion.

Many a dollar is paid for prescriptions for some disease that never troubled the patient, and when the sole difficulty was worms which a few of Freeman's Worm Powders would remove. These Powders are pleasant, safe and sure, contain their own cathartic, and are adapted for children or adults.

Honest and True.

This is eminently the case with Polson's Nerve-Liniment, the 'great pain cure.' It is an honest remedy, for it contains the most powerful, the purest, and most certain pain subduing remedies known to medical science. It is honest, for it does all it claims to do. It is honest, because it is the best in the world. It only costs 10 or 25 cents to try it, and you can buy a bottle at Wilson's drug store. Nerve-Liniment cures toothache, neuralgia, pain in the back and side. All pains are promptly relieved by Polson's Nerve-Liniment.

Farm and Garden.

Notes on Live Stock.

Horses should no longer be turned out at night. A cold rain may bring on troubles which are difficult to cure at this time of year. If horses are unavoidably drenched, rub them dry as soon as possible, and cover with blankets. Horses need to enter upon the winter in good health. Cows cannot be kept in good flow of milk without ample rations of rich food. As the pastures become bare, corn stalks, cut and mixed with ground oats and corn, may be given. Feed the tops of beets, turnips, etc., in small quantities. The aim should be to have the cows in fine form at the close of their pasturage. Speak for March lambs this month. There is often a fine profit in buying poorly-fed sheep from sections where fodder is scarce, and turning them off fat in the spring. In this way a large amount of straw, if fed with corn, may be made into manure as a second source of gain. Brood sows need to be kept in good condition to meet the male next month for March pigs. It is best to begin at once to feed for pork, using the soft corn first. The pens should be clean and warm. The store pigs will do well on the slops of the house with bran stirred in. Skim milk is good for these. The pullets will lay eggs through the winter if kept in a warm house, and provided with crushed shells and good feed. Chopped cabbage and other green food is relished by sheep, along with other grain. Avoid crowding the poultry, and keep the nests, walls, etc., free from vermin. Early fattened poultry are more profitable marketed during the latter part of October and early in November than at any other time.

Food for sheep.

The most economical and appropriate combination of food for fattening sheep will depend upon the cost of different foods in the locality. Nearly all the grains raised are healthy for sheep unground, with the exception of millet, which is probably neither healthy nor economical when fed unground; because of its hard husk and small size it is not masticated nor digested, but mostly passes through the animal whole. Rye, oats, barley, buckwheat, peas, beans, Indian corn, wheat, bran, shorts or middlings, and oil meal, are each and all good food for fattening sheep; but sheep should not be fattened upon a single food, as they are fond of variety and will gain faster when allowed to have it. Sheep are so fond of succulent food that they will pick over large fields, in open winter, trying to find it. They suffer when kept wholly on dry food for several months, and for this reason the last food mentioned, oil meal, should be provided in small quantity for them. The feeder can not err in giving too great a variety in the food of sheep. The best ration we have ever known fed to fattening sheep was composed of equal parts by weight, of oats, flaxseed and millet, to fifteen bushels of the mixture was added one bushel of flaxseed, and all ground fine together. Each sheep was fed two pounds of this ground mixture with hay, and made a regular gain of three pounds each week, besides growing an unusually fine staple of wool. This was made up of equal parts of oat, flaxseed and millet, and added one bushel of flaxseed, and all ground fine together. Corn and Oats for Horses.

The comparative value of corn and oats for horses may be briefly stated as follows: The former is deficient in many of the elements of nutrition so necessary for recuperating the constant wear and tear which necessarily takes place in the body of a living animal. On this account horses which are fed exclusively on corn and hay do not receive that kind of nourishment which appears necessary for the due support and maintenance of the animal fabric; hence we must not be surprised that corn-fed horses show signs of being languid, by sweating profusely while being worked, lack of vitality, etc. Oats, on the contrary, contain more of the essential elements of nutrition than any other article of food which can be fed with impunity to horses. Oats are not only the most natural food for horses, but are decidedly the most nutritious. They are the cheapest, because there is less risk in feeding them, and experience has proved that horses properly fed on oats and timothy hay can, with regular exercise, good grooming, and the proper sanitary regulations, be brought to the highest state of physical culture, and can perform more work with less evidence of fatigue than when fed on any other article of food.—[Market and Farm.

Saved by Josh Billings.

Josh Billings tells the following story of one of his own experiences:—"A few days ago I was driving in New York, and had got just alongside the Metropolitan hotel when a man with a satchel and duster hailed me. He said he wanted to talk to me a moment, and so I drove around on a side street, and we stood and talked. 'Now,' said the man, 'six years ago I was going down to my lawyer's office, in the town where I lived, to sign some paper transferring a matter of $10,000. Suddenly something of yours which I had seen in a paper came into my hand. It stopped short, though a minute, went on to the office and had the papers burned up, and did something entirely different to what I had intended. I saved by that $6,000. Now I don't know anything about how you are fixed, but if money is any object to you, if there is anything you want, I am ready to divide with you. What will you take?' 'I took a drink. We stepped into the Metropolitan bar, and, after a little claret and ice, I asked the man what saying of mine it was that he had saved his money on. He said it was something like this:—'Never take a bull by the horns, but take it by the tail, because then you can let go when you want to.' 'Yes,' said the stranger, 'I concluded it was just as well to take him by the tail.' 'I could hold on just as well, I could steer him just as well, and let go when I please.'"
