Dancers Meet a Terrible Death.

MADED, Nov. 16.—A terrible story of the intal interruption of wedding festivible is reported from Bejar. A young couple had just been married in a church, and the wedding party had gone to a restaurant where a wedding feast was served. After the banquet dancing was begun, and everything was progressing smoothly, when without an instant's warning the wells of the building collapsed, and the entire party, with the employes of the restaurant, were buried in the ruins. A crowd quickly gathered and the work of rescue was begun as rapidly as possible. When the wreck was cleaned away sufficiently for it to be known that no one else was in the ruins nine bodies were lying in a ghastly row on the sidewalk. The injured number are 30, some of whom will not recover, while others will be crippled for life. The building was thought to be perfectly safe. It was supposed the movements of the dancers caused its collapse.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY, K. OF L.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 16.—The General Empress Frederick's Favorite.

LONDON, Nov. 16 .- Empress Frederick has entered a great favorite of hers for the laureate stakes in the person of Mr. Remmell Rodd, author of "Feda," "Poems in Many Lands," and other volumes of smooth Tennysonian verse. Mr. Rodd is a young man of blameless repute, who has already enjoyed most of the plums of the diplomatic profession in its secretarial phase, having been attached to the embassics at Berlin, Athens, Rome and Paris, and it was when he was in Berlin, as the popular private secretary of Sir Edward Malet that he won the favor, nay, the warm friendship of Empress Frederick. With the daughters he played tennis and with the mother he talked Tennyson, the result being that no member of the British embassy was ever more welcome at the Crown Prince's palace, and when Emperor Frederick died it was Mr. Rodd whom his sorrowing widow selected to write the biography of her illustrious husband.

Tidying Up at Sandringham. LONDON, Nov. 16 .- Very extensive improvements have been carried out at Sandringham during the last eight months in dringham during the last eight months in the house, in the gardens and in the grounds and park. The portion of the hall which was burned last winter has been rebuilt with iron, with concrete floors and roofs. On the south side of the new wing bachelors' bedrooms have been built over the billiard room and bowling alleys, the upper story aflording additional accommodation for the servants. The interior of the house has been considerably redecorated. Many alterations have been made which were ungreated by the Prince of Wales. New hot houses have been constructed in the gardens, the lake has been enlarged, a rockery has been formed at the end of it and a 'drive has been made through the rockery has been formed at the end of it and a drive has been made through the park in the direction of West Newton, while an additional lodge has been built at the new entrance gates of the road. The bachlors' cottage in the grounds has been so considerably enlarged that it is practically a new house, and after the present winter it is to become the separate residence of the Duke of York.

The Queen's Movements.

London, Nov. 16.—The Queen and
Princess Beatrice are to leave Balmoral either on Thursday or Friday and arrive at Windsor Castle the following morning. According to present arrangements, the court will leave Windsor on either Dec. 16 or 20 for Osborne, and the Queen is to reside in the Isle of Wight for about nine weeks. The Queen has not opened Parliament since 1886, and it is said that there is not the slightest prospect of her being seen at Westminster in January next. It is claimed that there is no reason winetver why the Queen should put herself to much inconvenience in order to open Parliament, and that her strength really is not equal to the ceremonial, which is of an exceptionally prolonged and fatiguing nature. It is well known that in 1886 her Mojesty found it very trying indeed, and was unwell for several days afterwards.

It is understood that the Queen will be the guest of the Prince and Princess of Wales at Sandringham for a few days, when the memorials of the late Duke of Clarence, which are to be placed in the parish church, will be formally dedicated.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY, K. OF L.
ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 16.—The General Assembly of the Knights of Labor met here to-day. General Master Workman Assembly of the Knights of Labor methere to-day, General Master Workman Powderly, in the course of his opening address said: "During the last six months the people of this land have witnessed such attempts at making the power of aggregated wealth supreme as were never dreamed of before. Whether it be at Cour d'Alene, at Homestead, at Buffalo or in Tennessee, the instinct which guided rapacious hands was the same. The underground wire was set and the attack ran to the same center. Centralized wealth met the scattering fire of divided labor, and as a natural result labor lost in each battle. If the lessons are carefully taken to heart the sacrifices may not be in vain. The election campaign witnessed a very interesting discussion of the tariff, but there is more revenue illegally drawn from the pockets of manufacturers and workmen in one month by the railroads and telegraphs than we pay in tariff in a year. These and all other questions connected with them must occupy the attention of industrial organimonth by the railroads and telegraphs than we pay in tariff in a year. These and all other questions connected with them must occupy the attention of industrial organizations in the future, and the strike of the future must be a strike for the rule of the people. We can deery politice, but we must be politicians. We may shirk our responsibilities as citizens, but we are only piling high the wrath which follows neglect of duty. In a word, we must be the law-makers. When we in the last extremity are driven close to the wall and deprived of right and privilege, it is done through the law. If the law is defective, a hireling judge can always be found to construe it in favor of the wealthy. If every citizen of Pennsylvania understood his rights, if he performed his duty under the law, no judge would understood his rights, if he performed his duty under the law, no judge would dare to charge treason against workmen who struggle for recognition. The battle of the future must be fought on different lines from those which marked the past. These lines must diverge from and center at the ballot box—not as slaves to party, bent on obeying the will of a master, but as free men who value freedom and will maintain it."

The speaker advocated affiliation with the Farmers' Alliance and other similar organizations. He recommended the organization of social and beneficial features, and in conclusion he said he knew of nothing he had done during the year that he would not do over again.

NINETY MILES AN HOUR

Exciting Railroad Accident on a Mox ican Mountain.

Monteray, Mex., Nov. 17.—The particulars of one of the most remarkable and exciting railroad accidents that ever occurred in Mexico have reacted here. The catastrophe occurred three days ago on the Mexican national line, but only meager details of it were received here until to-day. The grade of the new canal road from this city for a distance of 90 miles to Saltillo is very steep, and two engines are required to get ordinary freight trains over the Sierra Maderia Mountains about Saltillo. On Sunday afternoon, as one of these double-headers was pulling a trainload of corn up the almost perpendicular mountainside, twenty miles south of Saltillo, the couplings broke, releasing the caboose and six cars filled with 3,000 bushels of corn from the train. James Martin, the conductor, and Frank Harwood, the rear brakeman, were in the caboose. They rushed out and began setting the brakes, but were powerless to stop the increasing momentum of the cars. Within a distance of six miles the train was running at a speed of 90 miles an hour. The cars began jumping the track at Buena Vista, and Martin and Harwood went down, both meeting a terrible death. Before Saltillo was reached, all of the cars with the exception of the caboose and one other had left the track. The train dispatcher at Saltillo was terror-stricken when he saw the the track. The train dispatcher as Sartillo was terror-stricken when he saw the cars pass, as he knew they were certain to erash into another double-header freight train that was putting up the mountain, twenty miles below Saltillo. There was no telegraph station within that twenty was the way as was not provided and the same tracks. no telegraph station within that twenty miles, and no warning could be given the crew of the train below. He did the next best thing by having the wrecking car out. The caboose and loaded car kept to the trade. Frank Davis, the engineer of the up train, saw them coming down the mountain but too late to save himself. His freman and the crew of the second engine jumped and received but slight injuries. Davis was buried under a pile of corn and debris. Both engines were completely dismantled.

As the stealing continued without interruption young Mitchell was charged with the crime, and finally confessed upon receiving a guarrantee from Dominion Postoffice Inspector Sweetman that he would not be prosecuted. The letters stolen were from young men and women in Boston and other prosecuted. The letters storen were from young men and women in Boston and other parts of New England to their parents, and to Canadian and American publishers, all supposed to contain money. The thetis were first discovered through the large number of duplicate postoffice orders called for. An extraordinary feature of the case is that Mitchell was never in the office alone, and all his thieving was done under the eyes of the other clerks.

A Street Railway Grievance.

To the Editor of the ADVENTISER:

Will you kindly allow me space in your columns to ventilate a grievance that the working girls have against the street car drivers on the Hamilton road. The company have kindly given them (the girls) the privilege of taking the 7:40 car from Adelaide terminus, as well as from other starting points, for half fare. Now, this morning, I went in company of a young lady, to assist her in getting a car, inasmuch as the time of arrival and starting is very irregular, and instead of stopping for a short time and looking around for passengers, he, after just watering his horse, hitched up and drove off without once looking back. I had to shout two or three times before getting his attention, and upon my expostu-I had to shout two or three times before getting his attention, and upon my expostulation he waxed impertinently sarcastic. Now, sir, on behalf of the working girls, the father of one of them, I wish to ask, is there a reguler time for the arrival and departure of this car, supposed to start from the Adelaide street terminus about 7:40, or the Adelaide street terminus about 7:40, or not? One driver drove off one rainy morning and two young ladies were running to catch the car, another two minutes would have sufficed for them, but the driver, who was not ignorant of the struggle that was being made by the girls to secure a ride and escape the rain, coolly drove off and left them the pleasure (?) of walking. London West Amalgamation.

London West Amalgamaticn.

To the Editor of the Adventures:

It is to be very much regretted that the city aldermen sat down on the London West amalgamation scheme so completely, especially after inviting us to join the city. We certainly never asked the city to let us come in. We are quite content to remain as we are, and we certainly should be better off than to come into the city as a part of No. 2 ward, as in that case we should never have a voice or vote in the City Council, for it would be a certain sure thing that a representative would never be elected from the village, neither would it be much to the city's credit abroad for having a little piece added to No. 2 ward, as they would never he cative is generally known by the number of its wards or divisions. But fully realizing the advantages to both sides in amalgamation, we dropped all animosity and came forward with the right hand of fellowship and waived everything except asking that our taxation be not increased for the short space of ten years. In this there would be no loss to the city, as our revenue covers all our ordinary expenses. Then there would be the increase of taxes on all nevenue covers all our ordinary expenses. Then there would be the increase of taxes on all nevenue covers all our ordinary expenses. Then there would be the increase of taxes on all nevenue covers all our ordinary expenses. We did not ask for police and fire protection, only just so far as it suited the city's interest to give it. Therefore, the inference to be drawn from the refusal to allow the taxation to remain a short time as it is now, shows that it is the intention of tax ourselves a little more and impro-ourselves as we like, than to have the city raise our taxes and give us no im-provements for it. Why, two years ago the city offered us far better terms— fire and police protection and an expendi-ture of some $25,000 to $30,000 on the liver. We ask none of this. Nothing but and suppose the city leave them as they are it would not amount to $10,000 in the ten years, and should the expenditure increase a little, the new buildings taxed would meet this. Yours truly,

John Chapman.
