FIRE AT THE WALKER HOUSE. An alarm of fire was sounded from box 16, corner of King and York streets, about 11 o'clock last night. The whole brigade responded to the call and discovered the fire to be room No. 22 on the third floor. The bed and bedding were completely des-troyed and the sheeting of the room badly scorched. The damage will amount to about $150. A World reporter was refused any information, and was not allowed to go up-stairs by the would-be official who guarded the staircase. Things must be run in a queer manner in this house, as when asked to produce the fire alarm key they could not find it. Hence the delay in sounding the alarm. This was the third time that the house was discovered to be on fire last night. The executive committee met yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, present Ald. Boswell (chairman) Love, Irwin, Clarke, Woods, Blevins and Hallam. The committee, led by Ald. Blevins, made a full investigation into the matter of paying 54 per day to assessors for their of paying $4 per day to assessors for their attendance on the court of revision.

An account from Christopher Robinson, duly certified, for $175 for consultation was passed. A claim from a person who had his arm broken through a defective sidewalk was recommended by the solicitor for payment, The reports of the various committees were adopted after Ald. Blevins and Hallam distinguishing themselves in trained to show Miss Helen Coleman appeared at the Royal last night as the ideal "Widow Bedott," in Frank Wynkoop's drama of the same name. View of the City—The Corn Exchange— The Barber and the Statistician—Theo-dore Thomas—Haverley and Booth— The Woman's Exchange.

What an epitome of life Chicago preents. It may well be compared to an imense stage on which a daily drama of uffering and misery and cruelty and a daily comedy of fun and enjoyment is enacted by a half-a-million actors that inhabit the city, while with a many-voiced chorus produces a pargon of noise and confusion, and as extensive an orchestra of rumbling confusion, wagous and screeching tugs and ear-pierc-ing whistles fill the smoky air with an in describable pardemonium of unearthly ounds. The city at night presents a striking and strange appearance. Walking down Madi-son street, and mingling with the endless throng that distributes itself through the labyrinth of strets, we pass a group of brilliantly-lighted beer palaces and variety halls, from which emanate a deafening crash of music and almost overwhelming crash of music and almost overwhelming odor of poisonous whisky and stale free lunchs; then we cross the sluggish river, and discern in the dis-tance a bellowing, snorting, puffing tug, looking like an animated demon with its colored eyes and inky crown of smoke as it drags the dim outline of a blackened hull and shrouded masts after it : the and shrouded masts after it; then hull and shrouded masts after it; then a curious group of street merchants loudly advertise their curious goods,—a Silas Wegg deals in a choice collection of popular bailads; a dirty Italian displays an array of ripe bananas and dyspeptic-looking figs; a learned astronomer reveals the hid-mysteries of the moon for a dime : a The first step towards "Russianizing" Russia has been taken by altering the pre-sent uniform of the army to the ancient Russian costume, which consists of a sheep-skin cap, a loose coat without buttons, and blind unfortunate sings a simple ditty in lieu of the nickels that drop into the cap of his little attendant—all forming a novel and curious phase of city life "under the baggy trousers gathered into high boots. On the line of statistics I should like know just how many members of e Corn Exchange die annually from ng disease? Imagine three sepa-te mobs gathered around three tforms and event men rallion and short the Corn dis lung disease ? rate platforms, and every man yelling and shouting and gesticulating in the most lively manner. It only shows how man may be for when the manner. It only shows how man may be created into a temporary lunatic when dol-lars and cents are concerned. The only wonder is that amid the general uproar any business is transacted, but the oc-casional doting down of notes and figures sho vs that, bargains are being made and fortunes won and lost.
