himself for teaching or investigational work. Thus, the meetings of the Society are of great value to the College students, as well as to all the members. Throughout the entire year great interest was taken in the meetings by all the members, and the prospects of future meetings are bright, as the success of each year stimulates the members to greater efforts for the next.

Some idea of the instructive, comprehensive and highly scientific nature of the work undertakon by the members of the Society during the past year may be gained from the following list of papers read:

"The Sorghum Midge in Louisiana," by R. C. Treherne (4th-year student).

336

"A Classification of Muscoidean Flies," by W. R. Thompson (4thyear student).

"Rearing Pomace Flies," by E. W. Stafford (4th-year student).

"Suggestions for Field Inspection," by R. C. Treherne (4th-year student).

" Notes on Eriophyidæ," by J. Tothill (3rd-year student).

"Memoir of the late Dr. Fletcher," by Dr. C. J. S. Bethune (Professor of Entomology).

"Some Notes on Mites," by T. D. Jarvis (Lecturer in Entomology).

"The Chalcidid Subfamily Encyrtineæ," by Alfred Eastham (4th-year student).

"Remarks on the External Anatomy of Chalcids," by A. C. Baker (and-year student).

"The Genus Tetranychus," by R. C. Treherne.

"The Entomological Department at Macdonald College," by A. G. Cutler (4th-year student).

"Spiders," by Dr. C. J. S. Bethune.

"Injurious Insects of the Season," by L. Caesar (Demonstrator in Entomology).

While all the above papers were of a high order of excellency, the systematic papers by Messrs. Thompson, Eastham, Baker and Tothill are especially worthy of commendation, as they were the outcome of original and thoroughly scientific investigations.

The "Memoir of the late Dr. Fletcher" was given by Dr. Bethune at the special request of the members of the Society, who felt that they would like to be brought into closer touch with the life of their much lamented President, by one who had been his co-worker and intimate friend for so many years. It is needless to say that their desire was fulfilled in a kindly and sympathetic manner.
