And herein was Saul an instance addressed as carnestly as I could, and they gave me of what often occurs. How many who have despised the reason to hope they were not unmoved. The address advice of a father or a mother, and grieved their parents by was interrupted by a very interesting incident. A opposition and disobedience, long bitterly to bring them back young woman, who had long been desirous to be when they have gone down to the grave, that they may have confirmed, and had moved several times after the wish the benefit of the counsel which they once slighted and scorned. was formed, and in each place of her residence had If they could go to the necromancer in the hour of distress been under the kind instruction of the missionaries, it would not be, Bring me up the companion that cheered me was brought into the church, and with difficulty sup- on in my gaieties, who was with me at the revel, and the dance, ported as she came to the altar, where a chair was and the public show :-- but, Bring me up the father with his provided for her. And and every one present seemed moved by her appear- yet, if he neglect the Lord, and continue to resist the strivings ance. There was uncommon stillness while I con- of his Spirit, so that at length He depart from you as He firmed her singly; and new topics were suggested for departed from Saul, what would it avail the grave should give the remainder of my address to her and to the whole up its inhabitants at your bidding? All seemed deeply attentive; and the devo- with anguish of spirit, how he despised the command of his tion and apparent thankfulness of the sick sister, father, and forsook the law of his mother, round whom, as which seemed to revive her at the moment, increased round Saul, are gathered the Philistines-what profit would it the general interest in the scene. Stern, indeed, must be to him, that the earth should open, and a well-known form be the feeling that would not be moved on such an come up covered with a mantle? The father, or mother, could occasion. But another similar exercise of feeling was but say to him, "Why hast thou disquieted me, to bring me at hand. I was called to a most interesting young up? Wherefore dost thou ask of me, seeing the Lord is demember of the flock, who had been a great but most resigned sufferer for several years, and for the last with a faithful minister or friend. He has reproved you, and eight months could not be moved from her chair; for admonished you, week after week, and year after year—and she could not lie on a bed. She, too, had long desired you have either been indifferent to his pleadings or offended at covenant, in full hope of the attendant blessing from the Holy Spirit. Her sponsors were present, as strances. But you may think of him again, as you toss on a were several devout members of the Church and the sick-bed, and you can gather no hope that sin is forgiven; and Clergy. Need I say that I had delight in gratifying you may wish that he were yet upon earth to instruct you, and her pious wish, and in my endeavour to point out to her a sure defence in every peril, support under every trial and coinfort, and holy hope in the near prospect of her departure to her Redeemer and her God. I have seldom, in the course of a long and diversified ministry, been more deeply affected than in the case of this most engaging sufferer. From this interesting scene we were called away to the little church at Eagle Head, or Beach Meadows, (eight miles,) over a very bad road. Here 200 persons were waiting for us, who crowded the small building almost to suffocation. Of these I confirmed 44, and offered them serious exhortation, which they received with attention equally serious. A pious widow, who had been present at our morning service, and was then convinced departed from thee, and is become thine enemy?"-Ancoats' of the great importance of confirmation, followed us to this place, that she might receive it. Several persons both here and at Liverpool had come thirty miles for this object, and several females had walked from fifteen to twenty-five miles to be confirmed. Such instances, we may humbly hope, give testimony to a growing affection for the Church and her ordinances, and indicate an earnestness which encourages every hope that they will not be disappointed of the blessing which they seek. A Devonshire farmer, whose name is Selden, was among those who travelled thirty miles to bring his elder children to the holy rite. His residence is at New Caledonia, in the depth of the forest; and, although he has only been there a few years, his industry and regular habits have already procured for him many comforts; and his children are excellently instructed. THE CHRISTIANITY OF ROMANISM. If we teach not that which we have learned of Christ, or teach anything as needful to salvation, which we have not learned of Christ, we hazard, if not lose, the name of Christians; for disciples of Christ and Christians are all one; no disciple of Christ no Christian, and every one so far a Christian as a 2 disciple of Christ. What Christians then are Papists, whose creed, consisting of four-and-twenty articles, twelve of them they learned of Christ, the other twelve of Anti-Christ, as Bi may be seen in the bull of Pope Pius affixed to the Council of Trent? Shall we simply affirm that they are Christians? We wrong ourselves and all the Reformed Churches who have severed from them. Shall we absolutely deny that they are Christians? We wrong them who held with us the profession of the Trinity, the two Sacraments, Baptism and the Lord's Supper, and the three creeds, the Apostles', the Nicene or Constantinopolitan, and that of Athanasius. Although the Roman Cardinal might justly be blamed, who caused his election they are beloved for the fathers' sakes. (Rom. xi., 28.) During my late visitation it has been my privilege been my privilege consecrate 6 churches and 6 burial grounds, to hold these, that Papists, as concerning the principles of the comneither need it so to be, because the question is not simple. As it is superfluous to give a mixed or double answer to a simple question; so it is dangerous to give a simple and single answer to a mixed question, or a question of a mixed subject .-Daniel Featley, D.D.
