

Button, Sir Thomas, expedition by, in quest of a North-west Passage, 203.

Bylott, his voyage in search of a North-west Passage, 204.

C.

Cabot, John and Sebastian, voyages of discovery by, 104.

Chancellor, Richard, one of the commanders in Sir Hugh Willoughby's expedition, 108. Reaches the White Sea, 113. Journey to Moscow and return to England, 114.

Cherie or Bear Island, 481. Geology of, ib.

Climate, changes which it has undergone in the Polar Seas, 22. Affected by the winds, 55.

Climate of Europe, supposed changes in, 47. Has acquired a milder character, 49.

Collinson, Captain R., his expedition through Behring's Strait in search of Sir John Franklin, 403-407.

Cortereals, the, voyages of, in search of a North-west Passage. See Portuguese Voyages.

Currents in the atmosphere, how modified, 26.

D.

Danish expeditions, under Jens Munk, 208, and Captain Grueh, 328.

Davis, John, his first voyage of discovery, 179. Interview with the Greenlanders, 180, 182. Second Expedition, 182. Sails up the strait called by his name, 184. Complaints against the natives, ib. Third Expedition, 186. Its return to England, 187.

Davis' Strait Whale-fishery, 51, 444, 449. See Whale-fishery.

Dease and Simpson's overland expeditions, 307. Their boat expedition, 360. Progress eastward from the Coppermine River, 361. Discovery of an inlet along the south of Boothia, 362. Examination of several coasts, and return to the Coppermine, 363-366.

Dog, importance of, to the Esquimaux, 83, 262.

E.

Egede, Hans, a Danish missionary, his residence in Greenland, 20.

Ellice River, 362, 365.

Esquimaux, 166, 170, 177, 215, 234, 242, 255, 283, 295, 345, 382, 398, 406, 409. Mode of constructing their huts, 35, 242. Thievish propensities of some tribes, 184, 186, 237, 346. General character and manner of life, 256. Dress, 258. Food, 260, 295. Moral qualities, 263. Religious ideas, 265.

Europe, supposed changes in the climate of, 47.

F.

Forsyth, Commander Charles C., his expedition in the Prince Albert in search of Sir John Franklin, 410. Exploit in Melville Bay, 413-415. Defeat of his object, 417. Return to Britain, 418-420.

Fotherby, Robert, voyages of, towards the North Pole, 151.

Franklin, Lady, her efforts on behalf of Sir John Franklin, 397, 398, 403, 409, 410.

Franklin, Sir John, his expedition for a North-west Passage, 370. Opinions respecting it, 371. Instructions, 372-375. Sailing and non-return of his ships, 375. Public anxiety about their safety, 375, 400-404. Three great expeditions in search of them, 376-397. Supplementary measures of search, 397-400. Three other great searching expeditions, 404-409. Private and auxiliary searching expeditions, 409-412. Progress of the new search onward to Cape Hotham, 412-419. Fictitious report about Sir John Franklin, 398. Probable position of his ships, 402. Traces of some of his company on Cape Riley, 419-421.

French Expeditions, under Blosseville, Dutailis, and Trebouart, 330. Frobisher, Martin, First Voyage in search of a North-west Passage, 165. Second Voyage 167. Affray with the natives, 171. Third Voyage, 173. Dangers encountered, 174. Return to England, 176. Observations on the natives, ib.

G.

Goodsir, Dr. R. A., his trip in search of Sir John Franklin, 399, 400. Grueh, Captain, voyage of, to the east coast of Greenland. See Danish Expeditions.