

gation is now in a very good position financially. The erection of the McClary works in the neighborhood of this church has transformed that section of the city, and houses are going up as if by magic at the time of writing. It is evident that a very much larger edifice will be needed to accomodate the increased membership. When that time does come, it is needless to say, means will be found to build a structure in keeping with the surroundings, and of such pretentions as will accord with the wishes of the members.
