TWIN-SCREW STEAMSHIPS.

Royal Mail Route to Japan and China.

"Empress of India," "Empress of Japan," "Empress of China."

PORTS OF CALL:

VANCOUVER, VICTORIA, B.C., YOKOHAMA, KOBE,
NAGASAKI, SHANGHAI, AND HONG KONG.

In 1891 these magnificently equipped vessels were an experiment; in 1892 they are admittedly one of the greatest successes of the Mercantile Marine. They have brought Japan within ten days of Vancouver. They have made the passage across the Pacific a pleasure trip, and added additional attraction to the now fashionable trip to Japan.

In connection with the Canadian Pacific Railway's Transcontinental Line, they have enabled the tourist from the Eastern States to allow himself one month in Japan out of a sixty days' vacation.

The route from Vancouver is 300 miles shorter than any other trans-Pacific route, and Vancouver is several hundred miles nearer to the Atlantic than any other Pacific port.

Special attention has been paid to strength and safety. The hulls, in addition to having double bottoms extending their full length, are divided into numerous water-tight compartments, thus rendering them practically unsinkable.

The cabins are large and roomy, and contain all the modern improvements; many new features being added. No expense has been spared in the luxurious fittings. In a word, modern marine architecture has in these palaces excelled itself.

STEAMSHIPS LEAVE VANCOUVER, B.C., EVERY THREE OR FOUR WEEKS.

CANADIAN & AUSTRALIAN LINE,

SAILING EVERY MONTH.

These steamships are of about 6000 tons burden. They are new and have every modern appliance for safety and comfort, and they make the trip between Vancouver and Sydney in twenty-one days.
