Oyster Bay is, after all, not a noisy metropolis. It has always been a smallish village with a number of fine buildings, without either accommodation or invitation for the stranger. Lately the town has acquired a new and more modern opera house but even these adjuncts have altered it but little, and but few there are merely green lawns and a tennis court without any attempts at elaborate exotic garden-making. Beyond the house, on the right, as you approach, lie the vegetable gardens, the farmland and more woodland. The house itself, externally at least, is merely a pleasant-looking, what Stevenson called "fastidious" wooden country house peculiarly American, with its lone porches painted grey and with "cried awnings. The house stands upon the highest point in Oyster Bay, yet so thick is the wood about it that no other house can be seen from its porches and lawns. Altogether it is a very simple and charming.

DISEASES IN SCHOOLS MANY DEFECTS FOUND

Nose, Throat and Eye Troubles Numerous, Say Inspectors Graham and MacMurphy.

That diseases of the respiratory organs are most common in school children is made plain by the reports of examinations made in December. Eye troubles were also found to be numerous.

Dr. Willmot Graham, medical inspector for the boys, reports as follows: Number of visits, 34; scoliosis visited, 10; pupils with defects, 341; pupils absent, 31; examined for contagious disease, 42; examined for defective breathing, 32; throat and nose, 64; defective hearing, 35; skin diseases, 21; nervous condition, 11; enlarged glands, 14; anaemia, 5; other defects, 21; number of defects in 210 pupils, number referred to family physician, 116.

Dr. MacMurphy's figures. Dr. Helen MacMurphy's report on the girls is: Visits to school, 84; schools visited, 10; visited at homes, 12; reported to medical officer, 284; number of photos, 32; number absent, 68; examined for enlarged tonsils, 58; for defective sight, 42; for defective hearing, 18; for defective breathing, 32; for skin diseases, 24; pupils with two defects, 15; pupils to whom cards were sent to parents, 128.

Smuggled Bracelet in Photographs. Of smuggling tricks there is no end. The Bangor customs officials had a new dodge sprung on them one day recently in an attempt to get a gold bracelet through the payment of duty.

Some one took a number of cabinet photographs, but before trying them together to make them appear as a bundle of photos, he carefully hollowed out a hole in the centre and deposited the bracelet therein. A superficial examination of the package would have caused one to think that it was simply a bundle of photographs and allowed to proceed without question.—Portland Press.

"They say," remarked the student, "that truth lies at the bottom of a well."

"I guess that's right," replied the old lawyer, "judging by the amount of pumping we have to do in order to get a little of it."—Chicago News.

STREET RAILWAY FAILS TO QUASH INDICTMENT

Justice Riddell Made Slight Concession Only—Not Within Railway Commission's Province

The determined attempt on the part of the Toronto Railway Company to quash the indictment charging them with committing a common nuisance, on legal grounds, without pleading fault, in the criminal justice court yesterday. A change in the technique of the indictment was made and clause 5, charging the company with running too few cars and impeding the traffic, was struck out.

Justice Riddell decided that since the indictment is criminal in its nature it does not come within the jurisdiction of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, and his lordship disagreed with Wallace Nesbitt, K.C., senior counsel for the company, in his contention that the company was not responsible for overcrowding on its cars.

Mr. Nesbitt complained that the company did not receive proper assistance for nine months in the matter and that under present circumstances they were unable to prevent it. His lordship maintained that it was not a matter of the ability to prevent overcrowding but the fact that the common law specifically requires that there shall be no overcrowding of a common carriage. That rendered their attempt to offset the charge futile.

Charge Was Split. Taking the indictment count by count, Mr. Dewar argued that the count which referred to "the property and comfort of the public being in danger" didn't come under the head of a common nuisance as the statute read that a common nuisance had to do with the life, safety or health of the public. His lordship agreed that it was probably too general and so consented to having the clause split, making the property and comfort endangerment a separate count.

Justice Riddell also found fault with clause No. 4, charging the company with having too few cars and with impeding traffic as he did not believe that the former constituted a common nuisance, and so the count was struck out.

The demur, as yesterday's hearing was called, was a decided victory for the city in that the indictment remains almost the same as when it was served. The only change which came up before Mr. Justice Riddell and a jury at 11 o'clock Monday morning, when the Toronto Railway Company will endeavor to substantiate a plea of "not guilty."

"DRY'S" HOPE TO CREATE MANY MORE ARID AREAS

Ontario Temperance Alliance Looks For Banner Year—Aftermath of Battle.

"Already the campaign for 1912 is well begun, and the prospect is that this year will be the greatest in the local option history of the province." The foregoing statement is contained in the official announcement of the program of the executive committee of the Ontario branch of the Dominion Temperance Alliance, which will hold its annual meeting in the Confederation Life Building this afternoon.

It will be recalled that last year the alliance determined to use pressure upon the Ontario Government to repeal the three-fifths requirement in local option contests. The government firmly refused to budge, and it is doubtful whether the experiment will be tried again.

Hard to Come Back. Rev. Ben H. Spence, secretary, says in his report:

"The most striking thing about the campaign was the utter failure of the liquor interests to make the slightest gain in their efforts to repeal local option. There were 194 municipalities where local option bylaws had been in force for three years or more, and where, if the measure was such a dismal failure, as some folks said, the people had an opportunity to repeal it in 1910. In 131 places the matter was not even brought to a vote, in 16 of these places the liquor interests made the most strenuous efforts to get petitions signed or to induce councils to submit opposing bylaws. In three places repealing bylaws were submitted and in all three places local option was sustained by a decisive majority.

Popular Vote. "The aggregate vote in all these places was:

For local option . . . 25,766
Against local option . . . 20,492

Majority for . . . 5,274

"In the last three elections the local option question has, in one form or another, been before the electors in 238 municipalities, and the aggregate voting in all these places has been:

For local option . . . 55,574
Against local option . . . 56,753

Majority for . . . 29,091

"In 107 of the above places giving municipalities, however, the three-fifths requirement has operated to hinder the measure from coming into force."

Recent Battle Reviewed. Regarding recent local option campaigns, the report says that local option bylaws were voted upon in 81 municipalities. Of these, 22 carried the bylaws by sufficient majorities, and on the first day of May 65 licenses will be cut off. A majority was secured, but not sufficient to bring the law into force, in 30 other municipalities, in which there were 100 licenses. There was a majority against local option in 25 municipalities, in which there were 118 licenses. Of the 26 places carrying local option 3 are incorporated towns, 8 incorporated villages and 15 townships. These are: Aldboro, Bastard, Camden E., Elizabethtown, Flamboro E., Gullinbury N., Hinchinbrook, Howick, Kenyon,

Needn't Pay Tenant's Bills.

According to the judgment of Judge Morson in the division court yesterday, a doctor cannot hold the landlord liable to services rendered to his tenants. The case was that of Dr. C. W. WOULD VERY OFTEN FAINT AWAY.

Doctor Said That Sometime He Would Never Come Out of One.

Many people may be unaware of having anything wrong with their heart till some little excitement, overwork, or confinement in an overheated or overcrowded room or public building makes them feel faint or dizzy.

If you neglect the warning the slight feeling of dizziness gives you, and fail to take treatment, there will be a gradual progression to something more serious. There is no reason you should wait till your case becomes desperate before you avail yourself of a perfect cure by using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mr. F. S. Chute, Wheatley, Ont. writes—"It is with gratitude I tell you my Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills benefited me. I was very weak and run down, and had headache, nearly every day and would very often faint away. I would never come out of one of them. After taking three boxes of your pills I am glad to relate that it has been a number of years since I have had a fainting spell and scarcely have had a headache. Too much cannot be said in praise of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for in me they have effected a perfect cure."

Price, 50c per box, or 3 for $1.25. At all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.
