INSURGENTS OF WARD FOUR MEET

Conservatives Who Have Left Parent Body Elect Officers.

HUSTLE FOR MEMBERS.

Those at Meeting Express Deter-mination to Make Body First in Ward.

Behind closed doors, Ward Four Ridings Association held its annual meeting and election of officers in McBean's Hall last night. Sometime ago a number of the Ward Four Conservative Association withdrew from that body and formed this new association. meeting was very tame. Two of the principal speeches would have been quite fitting on a recruiting platform for the army and navy. The old officers were re-elected, in each case by a standing unanimous vote by the forty or less present

On his re-election as president, J. S. G. Cornell, in thanking the meeting, said that he was glad the association was an all-British one. While there was no bylaw, membership was not granted to any foreigner. He admitted the foreign vote counted largely, but thought it was given too easily, and he would like to see the immigration regulations changed in this regard. Fort Point channel, just outside the South Station terminal. Twelve other immigration regulations changed in this regard.

In his report the secretary told of a letter that was sent by the association to Jas. Norris, asking that representation be granted the Ward Four Ridings Association at the nomination meeting that preceded the Southwest Toronto election. The reply, received from Hilliard Birmingham, stated that according to the constitution only the recognized ward associations of Toronto had representation on the nominating committee. by fire boats and tugs. One man, Thomas J. Gannon, died after being brought to shore. Two bodies were found with grappling irons, but the recovery of other bodies was delayed, as it was believed they were pinned into the car which rested on the bottom of the channel, 35 feet deep.

Gerald Walsh motorman of the car,

Railroad, in a statement issued soon after the accident, said his informa-draw and the tugboat started to come thru. Suddenly my attention was attracted by a crash and screams. As I looked around the car went right thru the gate of the draw and plunged into the channel. Only the rear trucks remained on the rail, the body of the car breaking away from these trucks and disappearing under the water.

It was more than five hours after the car went down that the divers started the actual removal of the bodies within it. One of them worked inside the car, passing each body, as he came to it, out to another diver who raised it to the police boat guardian at the surface. Ten bodies were thus taken out very quickly and were transferred to the police boat. All the bodies first recovered were those of men.

The bodies of five other men were taken from the vicinity of the sunkers in the Adige Valley, between Loppio and Mori, was undertaken by the Austrians on Sunday night. The war office announced today that the attempt was completely unsuccessful.

"In the Travignolo Valley the Austrians continued without success to attack Italian positions.

"No changes of importance are recorded in the region between Gorizia and the Adriatic, where the Italian offensive movement has been under way. The statement says that there was reciprocal artillery fighting yesterday on the Julian front. The Italians dispersed hostile columns and continued to strengthen their line and to clear the battlefield. The weather is unfavorable."

tion, the matter of whether members should take active part in the election was left with the individual members.

The treasurer reported the sum of six dollars on band, with five more in sight, but it was felt that the organization was prosperous, as high aspirations were held and no bills were outstanding, even the room in which the meeting was held had been paid for.

After the election of officers opportunity was given for the members to voice their opinion, but beyond a determination to hustle for an increased membership, with a view to becoming the recognized warf a ssocietion, politics were not mentioned. Col. Chipman recounted the experiences of Lieut.—Col. Guthrie and Mr. Wickham, previously the head of the Navy League in Toronto, and told of the peace training of the navy.
