Night of Comparative Quiet Is Enjoyed in Nova Scotia Strike Area

SYDNEY, N. S., June 17.—Chief interest in the Cape Breton industrial situation centered today in the presence here of Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labor, and the possibilities of his efforts as a conciliator between the British Empire Steel Corporation and its employees. It is known that he held conversation today with representatives of the United Mine Workers and also with J. E. McLurg, vice-president of the corporation.

Mr. Murdock did not wish to say anything this morning, he intimated, both because the situation had not progressed far enough to make any announcement, and he felt any statement at this time might prejudice a delicate situation.

QUIET NIGHT

With a night of comparative quiet passed, and with the United Mine Workers' organization backing up the normal civil police by large numbers of their members sworn in as special constables, together with the presence of troops in the mining district, it was generally felt here today that the destructive part of the strike had passed, except for damage to mines from flooding.

STORE RAIDED

GLACE BAY, N. S., June 17.—The only depredation reported this morning was the raiding of a small colliery warehouse containing mine supplies at Dominion No. 1, and the breaking of the doors of the engine house at Colliery No. 1A. People were kept indoors by a gale and heavy downpour of rain.

Reunited After 48 Years

Winslow Hughson (right) and his brother William, who met this week after separation of nearly half a century.

WINSLOW AND WM. L. HUGHSON ENJOY REUNION

Four Brothers Left Havelock Home in 1877

GETS SURPRISE

Now Plan to Pay Short Visit To Old Hometown in Kings

"HAVE you some property at Havelock?" The question was asked Winslow Hughson of Adelaide street, aged 77, on Monday evening on the veranda of his summer home at Renforth by a strange man.

"Yes, I have," replied Mr. Hughson, and forthwith the two old gentlemen fell to discussing the matter in question, boundaries, price, etc. The strange visitor thought he might like to take a run up to Havelock and view the property, and this was agreeable to the owner, who also thought he noticed a queer little smile gathering on the stranger's face.

"By the way," asked Mr. Hughson, "I don't know your name?" "The stranger laughed. "Winslow, don't you know me?" he asked.

VISITOR ENJOYS IT

Winslow Hughson gazed up into the stranger's face and then thought he heard a suppressed chuckle from inside the house where the family were gathered. The longer he looked, the more convinced he became.

"It isn't you, is it, Will?" he asked. "It sure is," replied William L. Hughson. "It's a funny thing you don't know your own brother." There was no doubt about it now. It was his brother whom he had not seen for 48 years—nearly half a century.

His brother was typical of many New Brunswick families, whose sons and daughters are scattered far and wide across the continent. In company with four other brothers, Will Hughson set out from the old Havelock home at Havelock the year of the great fire in Saint John, 1877.

LEAVE FARM HOME

His parents were John and Sarah Hughson, long since dead, and although they were well cared for, the prospect of farm life did not appeal to them and they set out in the world to make their own way as best they could.

None of the four stopped in Saint John long as business was at a standstill then owing to the fire. Will Hughson first went to Troy, N. Y., and from there out to St. Louis. In time, he married and settled down and corresponded with Winslow Hughson, who in the meantime had come to Saint John to live. The years passed and correspondence ceased among the brothers. A few years ago, a letter came from Will Hughson, saying that he was living in Alton, Ill., with his son-in-law and that his wife had died. Winslow Hughson a few months ago almost decided to visit and to brother whom he had not seen for all those years, but was dissuaded from going.

Anglo-Catholic Conference On Church Union To Be Resumed In London, Says Shaftsbury

LONDON, June 17.—The fact that the famous conference at Malines, Belgium, under the patronage of Cardinal Mercier, and several dignitaries of the Church of England, and the Roman Catholic church, are to be resumed, was announced last night by the Earl of Shaftsbury, at a meeting held here on the question of church union.

The Earl of Shaftsbury declared that the goodwill of the Pope and the Archbishop of Canterbury had been accorded the coming conference. However, it would be rash, he said, to expect too much from it, although the difficulties in the way of reunion were not insurmountable. The latest of the Malines conferences was held in the second week of May.

Tuberculosis Vaccine Reported To Produce Effective Result

PARIS, June 17.—The preventive vaccine against tuberculosis known as "B. C. G." is producing most effective results, according to a report read before the Academy of Medicine, by Prof. Calmette, assistant director of Pasteur Institute.

Of 173 nursing babies vaccinated three years ago, the report said, none had died of tuberculosis and 94 examined last month were in perfect health. Of 137 babies vaccinated at the beginning of 1924, all members of tubercular families in Paris, none had died of tuberculosis.

"B. C. G." is administered in milk to babies from three to 10 days old.
