Stay at Home is Emphasized More and More In Reports Coming From United States

That Canadians who have in mind getting employment in the United States should hesitate before leaving for "The Land of Liberty" is being more and more emphasized each day by stories gathered from Canadians who are returning to this country.

A young man, a member of a well known Maritime Province family, who has been working in Cleveland, Ohio, returned the other day, for his holidays and had a story to tell of conditions in the Ohio city which were far from encouraging. Not only is employment scarce, but there are many Canadians holding positions in that city who would be delighted if they had an opportunity to return to Canada and take on the jobs which they left.

Of course the depression is all blamed upon the presidential year, but the fact is that employment is scarce and when secured is not nearly as remunerative as it has been. Added to these facts is the undoubted return of thousands of Canucks from all parts of the United States. It would indeed be well for those thinking of seeking work in the south to be sure of their jobs before leaving these provinces.

John Knights, having visited the city on several occasions as a member of a degree team from Montreal.

St. John has been widely advertised as the "Winter Port of Canada," and as a fine place in which to spend a holiday and a great sport centre and in other ways. Now it is coming into outside recognition as the home of the best of salmon. From Chicago comes a letter to Leon A.
