discuss in detail the economic associations will be determined by the test established by President Wilson. If she abandons her old ways and her restless and aggressive policy, if she ceases to use economic policies as a preparation for further war, we shall not be slow to recognize the change. The sacrifices for which this war has called are too great and too bitter to permit of our neglecting the president's warning that a complete change of mind and purpose in her government are the necessary preliminaries to her admission to participation in our economic partnerships.

"Neither the United States nor the British Empire has pursued or will pursue any selfish policy. The pre-occupations of our internal reconstruction will never blind us to the obligations which we owe to our associates or limit the fullness and frankness of our discussions with them. There must be no jealousy between us, and no suspicions. I hope the time is not far off when we shall meet round the council board to

PERCE ROCK AND THE BEAUTIES OF GASPE PENINSULA

If the reader has looked on the map at the Gaspé Peninsula and thought of it as a bleak, inhospitable country, inhabited by a few fishermen, without beauty or value, dismiss such in the reader has looked on the map at the Gaspé Peninsula and thought of it as a bleak, inhospitable country, inhabited by a few fishermen, without beauty or value, dismiss such in the reader has looked on the map at the Gaspé Peninsula and thought of it as a bleak, inhospitable country, inhabited by a few fishermen, without beauty or value, dismiss such in the reader has looked on the map at the Gaspé Peninsula and thought of it as a bleak, inhospitable country, inhabited by a few fishermen, without beauty or value, dismiss such in the reader has looked on the map at the Gaspé Peninsula and thought of it as a bleak, inhospitable country, inhabited by a few fishermen, without beauty or value, dismiss such in the reader has a bleak, inhospitable country, inhabited by a few fishermen, without beauty or value, dismiss such in the reader has a bleak, inhospitable country, inhabited by a few fishermen, without beauty or value, dismiss such in the reader has looked on the map at the construction of the reader has looked on the read men, without beauty or value, dismiss such impressions at once, and think of one of the impressions at once, and think of one of the most beautiful spots in North America—a land of sunshine, world-renowned fishing streams, delightful scenery and rich and fertile valleys.

La Baie de Chaleur, an arm of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, divides the Gaspé Peninsula from the northern portion of the Province of New Brunswick. As the bay narrows into the estuary of the Restigouche, the scenery becomes polder and more majestic, presenting one of the most superb and fascinating panoramic views in America. The whole region is mountainous, and almost precipitous enough to be Alpine; but its grandeur is derived less from cliffs, chasms and peaks, than from far-reaching sweeps of outline, and continually rising domes that mingle with the clouds. On the Gaspé side, precipitous cliffs of brick-red sandstone flank the shore. Behind them the mountains rise and fall in long

PERCE AND THE ROCK

At Percé, which has been described as the "most dramatic spot in the Gaspé Peninsula where the powers of description fail," the land pushes out into the bay in lines of lofty cliffs, with the restless sea eternally gnawing at their base. The village, which has excellent hotel accommodation, is in an undulating valley be-tween the mountains and the shore cliffs, and in every direction there is a glorious panorama, the varying shades of brilliant greens of the verdant slopes and the equally brilliant reds of the sand-stone cliffs—a riot of color—yet all combining to make one harmonious whole.

In the wonderful atmosphere of this part of the Gulf, the distinctness with which objects are the Gulf, the distinctness with which objects are presented to the view is surprising. In the case of the "Pierced Rock," it is almost startling. Seen from the cliff or Mont Joli, and but a seeming stone's throw away, this singular monument stands out against the sea and sky as sharply defined as if cut by the chisel of some with perpendicular cliffs 286 feet high. Near the outer end is another smaller rock rising just as abruptly and to almost as great a height with a clear channel separating the two. Thousands of gulls and cormorants nest on the rocks and make a lively commotion during the day, with only a slight diminuendo during welcome to the mariner than the warning cries of the birds that out of the darkness, fog and mist proclaim the whereabouts of the rock and the dangerous reefs that encircle it.

GASPE BAY AND BASIN Gaspé Bay is sixteen miles in length, and is six miles in width for about twelve miles from its mouth. Then it narrows into the beautiful Gaspé Basin, forming one of the finest harbors

Gaspé village is gloriously situated on the lofty hills overlooking the Basin, and is a place of manifold attractions for the summer visitor who loves recreation and quiet, where there is plenty of boating, deep sea fishing and bathing, with pure and tonic air. The hotel accommodation is excellent, and each season brings a host of strangers from the larger centres to enjoy the

Gaspé will ever have a place in the greatest war of history, for it was within the security and vastness of its marvelous basin there rode securely, in the fall of the year 1914, that magnificent fleet of war vessels which carried the thirty and odd thousands of soldiers with their horses, guns and equipment, the first of many Canadian Contingents to the battlefields of Europe, where they were destined to bring undying lustre and fame to the Dominion of
