a most suitable reply. Three cheers were yiven for the host and He's a Jolly Good Fellow was same with a hearty good will. It was long past midnight before the hanquet came to an end, but Pullen's orchestra, which arrived from Bangor for this occasion, and, had discoursed music during the evening, continued to play un-til 2 o'clock on Wednesday morning, when the guests departed for their homes, and the president's hanquet of the St Croix club for 1904 had become history. A very, sad event, of the work was the sudden and unexpected death of Mrs. Helen G. Hill, which occurred, at her home in Calais on Sunday night of pneu-monia. Mrs. Hill was the widow of Chas. D. Hill, and the only daughter of the late Golonel W. B. King. She was gifted with great musical talent and with her bright and fascinating manners was always a fa-voite in society and among her friends, who feel the sorrow of her death most deeply. The funeral services took place on Tuesday afternoon and were conducted by Rev. C. G. McCuly, of the Congrega-tional church, and Rev. Charles Legal, of the Union church. The interment was made in the beautiful Rural cemetery in St Stephen. Mrs. W. Pride, who has been visiting er mother for the past month, returned o Moncton on Monday. Miss S. F.
