Coming to Can. the same year, he lived for a time at Woodstock, Ont., where he practised his profession, lecturing during the winter sessions in Toronto and at places adjacent. He also aided in the establishment of the Toronto Veterinary Coll. Removing to Montreal, 1866, he founded there the Montreal Veterinary Coll., now acknowledged to be the first of its kind in Am. Subsequently, on his recommendation, a quarantine station was established at Lévis, P.Q., to prevent the importation of certain cattle diseases from Eng., and he was apptd. by the Govt. the first inspr. of stock at the Cattle Quarantine, 1876. In 1879 he was despatched as a del. to the U. S. to report on the lung plague (pleuropneumonia) existing in certain portions of the Am. Union. Can. is also indebted to Dr. McE. for valuable services in connection with the initiation and development of the export cattle trade that has grown to such proportions. Since 1889 he has been Dean of the Faculty of Comparative Med. and Vet. Science, and Prof. of Vet. Med. and Surg. in McGill Univ. He is also a Fellow of the Royal Coll. of V. S., Eng. (elected 1875), and is the only one in Can. upon whom this honour has been conferred. He was vet. surg. to the Montreal Field Batty., 1871-81; and since 1883 has been Genl. Mangr. of the Walroad Cattle Ranch. He is the author of a handbook, "The Canadian Horse and His Diseases" (1867); of "A Trip to Bow River" (1881), and has been a frequent contributor to scientific journals. He acted as expert judge of hackneys at the National Horse Show, N. Y., 1891-92, and was judge of thoroughbred horses at the World's Columbian Expn., Chicago, Oct., 1893. Politically, a Lib.-Con.
