

AND CLASSICAL NAMES.

IXION. A king of Thessaly, who for his sins was broken on a wheel.

---

And men have been going broke on "the wheel" ever since.

---

LOTUS EATERS. A gang of ancient vegetarians, who chewed leaves and went to sleep.

---

Now succeeded by a club of New Yorkers, who chew the rag and keep awake.

---

MERCURY. A celestial messenger-boy, who wore wings on his shoes and knew how "to get there" in a hurry.

---

Now they all wear hobbles, and never exceed the speed limit in a public thoroughfare.
