

The terror which the fly inspires in cattle is probably due to the insect's persistence, and indifference to the kicks and stamps of the animal.

The first larvae were found in the œsophagus on August 15, they were under 5 m.m. in length, and were provided with minute spines on all segments.

It is recommended that cattle be housed during the heat of the day, and that the grubs be squeezed out early in the season.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS.

I am indebted first to Dr. F. Torrance, my chief, for his help and encouragement in the work; to those who so kindly responded to the inquiries concerning the damage done to hides by warbles; to Professor Carpenter, and Dr. L. O. Howard, for specimens; to Mr. P. H. Moore, Superintendent of the Experimental Farm, for his friendly help and assistance during the past summer, and to Dr. C. Gordon Hewitt for reading over this paper and offering suggestions which I have adopted in places, rendering my meaning clearer.
