A WORD TO THE WISE.

Heart Disease the Most Sudden and Dangerous of Ailments.
Dr. Agnew's Cure.

"Stealthy as a thief in the night, Heart Disease heralds its coming only by the deadly grip it lays upon its victim—the distressing symptoms of Palpitation and Shortness of Breath, Smothering Spells, Vertigo, etc. Nothing will remove this fatal grasp save Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart. Totally unlike all other remedies, it acts on the nerves through the heart. It has saved thousands of lives—will save yours. A. Du Berger, Waterloo, Que., writes: 'Alfred Coulter, who lives at Geo. Bell's, in West Sheffield, has suffered from terrible heart trouble for the last four years. He has been completely cured after using eight bottles of Dr. Agnew's marvelous remedy.'"

Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder is universally recognized as a specific for Catarrh, Cold in the Head, Sore Throat, Influenza, Hay Fever, Tonsillitis and distressing results of a neglected cold. No. 39

Our Fair was favored on Saturday 3rd inst., by a fine warm day. Quite a large crowd was gathered during the afternoon to view the exhibits, indoors and out. The entries in each class were unusually good, but not quite so large as those of other years. A grand orchestral concert was held in the evening in the Orange Hall; the building was filled to its utmost. The program, which consisted mostly of music, was choice and varied. Miss M. Pierson, a graduate of Prof. Meyer, Germany, rendered several solos in an exquisite manner. Miss Mabel Tripp, of Dawn, sang in her usual sweet style, the orchestra gave several selections and the male quartette ably assisted. W. J. Robinson, of Dutton, acted as chairman and gave three amusing recitations.

PROFANITY.

Agitation to prevent cigarette smoking, the use of strong drinks, spitting on the sidewalks and divers other things, are common in this country, but we have not heard of any attempt to put a ban on profanity.
The pulpit declares against this evil, but there is no effort made to put the law on its trial.
The oaths and the filthy remarks one hears in a walk on the streets of any city, Chatham included, show that the young men, and yes, a good many old men, have little respect for the Almighty or morality.
It is a growing evil and something should be done to punish persons who offend others by vile language.
This is a free country, but freedom does not permit uncleanness of language any more than the crimes that a free country marks down as punishable.

SAVED BABY'S LIFE

Mrs. T. Brisson, Gold Rock, Ont., writes:—"Baby's Own Tablets saved my little boy's life when there seemed no hope, and he is now a bright, rosy healthy child. He suffered from constipation and medicine gave him no relief until I gave him Baby's Own Tablets. I would not be without the Tablets in the house, and I think they should be kept in every home where there are young or delicate children. All the minor ills of childhood, such as indigestion, colic, stomach troubles, diarrhoea, worms, give him simple fevers, and colds are promptly relieved and speedily cured through the use of these Tablets. They are guaranteed to contain no opiate and may be given with absolute safety to the youngest and most delicate child. P., the chair was ably filled by Neil Watson, mayor of Mill. The hall was profusely and tastefully decorated for the occasion; the national colors displayed was an evidence of the loyalty of the hearts of St. Paul's people. A splendid program was given by the county's best talent.

DISCUSSION IS WARM.
British Papers Are Expressing Vigorous Views.
London, Oct. 8.—The papers all continued the lively discussion of Mr. Chamberlain's proposals.
The London Daily Mail sees trouble ahead from the Canadian manufacturers. The cause of preferential tariffs with this and other opposition will fall to the ground.
Now that full details have been given, The Chronicle says, colonial circles in London are not enthusiastic over Mr. Chamberlain's scheme and believe that Canada chiefly will benefit. The city bankers are opposed to a return to protection.
The Times says that Mr. Chamberlain's Greenock speech again struck an Imperial note. There is no time to lose if we hope to consolidate the empire into an economic whole and make each part supplement the others in a self-sufficing unity. Mr. Chamberlain does not disparage the sentimental tie. No colony will secede from the empire because it does not get preferential treatment. The danger is more subtle. The colonies, unless we act, will secede day by day, industry by industry, until we find that their economic allegiances are with other nations. Thanks to Imperial sentiment, these barriers will not be erected.
The Standard says: We are told that the whole of the splendid edifice of British trade will collapse unless we secure the practical monopoly of the colonial markets for our manufacturers. Have the colonialists any intention to give privileges? England has already made substantial concessions to Imperial sentiment by placing colonial securities among trustee stocks. Mr. Bryce, when speaking on the trade question, attributed our loss to the fact that British commercial travellers do not push trade like the foreign houses and are less adaptive to foreign requirements.
The News says:—To put British industry in the British path to starvation diet for the doubtful benefit of 12,000,000 colonialists who have not asked for it would be a crazy scheme. Speaking at Woolwich yesterday, Sir John Gorst asked whether $1,600,000, the amount the colonies would benefit from the corn tax, would buy the union of the mother country and the colonies. The suggestion was a libel on the colonies.

We dig and toil, we worry and fret; and all the while close over us bends the infinite wonder and beauty of Nature, saying, "Look up my child! Feel my smile and be glad!"

When a Capuchin Dies, Death in the eyes of the Capuchin monks is chiefly a terrible reminder of the vanities of the flesh. Their cemetery in Rome is a cellar whose walls and ceiling are covered with the bones of their predecessors. Skulls, ribs, thigh bones and knuckles are arranged in grotesque designs, and even the chandeliers are constructed of parts of skeletons.

When a Capuchin dies he is buried in loose dirt without a coffin. As there is room for only forty bodies in this earth, which was brought from the Holy Land, the body that has lain in it longest is dug up, the skeleton is cleaned, garmented in monkish garb and placed in a niche. To make room the oldest skeleton in a niche is dismembered, and its various bones are added to complete some wall design.

Shirt waists and dainty linen are made delightfully clean and fresh with Sun-light Soap.

A Timid Plunger.
"I'll bet a dollar if I should ask you to marry me you'd refuse," ventured Gussie, trying to inject a little more spirit into the conversation.
"My, but you're a cheap one!" responded the girl.
"Y-y-y-why?" stammered Gussie.
"Because you won't bet more than a dollar on a sure thing."

Just Passing.
"Are you acquainted with Mrs. Tubby?"
"Yes; we have a passing acquaintance."
"Oh, as much as that?"
"Yes. We were at the same card table once. She passed, and so did I."

A Remedy.
